Ex-Marin Barber Found Guilty Of Wife-Slaying

THEY BUILD THEIR OWN TRUCKS

Yolo Jury In Session 9½ Hours

A San Rafael barber, who killed his estranged wife and turned the gun on himself last November, was found guilty of first degree murder today by a Yolo County jury.

Elwood J. Williams, 29, who worked at a Fourth Street barber shop in San Rafael until the shooting, faces death or life in prison. Judge C. C. McDonald of Yolo County set March 28 as the date for the jury to set the penalty.

FIRST DEGREE

Jurors deliberated for nine and one-half hours last night before bringing in a first degree murder verdict.

Williams' attorney, Lewis Shearer said that Williams did not intend to murder his wife, Holly Germaine, 27, when he visited her at her sister's home in Davis, Calif., last Nov. 10. He asked for a verdict of involuntary manslaughter.

The shooting occurred shortly after Williams' wife said she would divorce him. Davis police said Williams fired five bullets into his wife, then shot himself with the same weapon, a .22 caliber revolver.

For several weeks, he hovered between life and death, but recovered sufficiently to face the murder trial.

FILED FOR DIVORCE

The couple had lived at 46 Martens Boulevard, San Rafael, for about six weeks. Mrs. Williams filed for divorce on Nov. 4 last year.

Williams moved to Kentfield where he was staying with a friend. Mrs. Williams was living with her sister, Mrs. Jonellen Goddard in Davis when her husband showed up. They argued about a half-hour in the Goddard living room before the fatal shooting.

The Williams were married on Christmas Eve, 1955. Their 2-year-old daughter died shortly before the shooting from a heart attack after being seriously burned by a waffle iron while with Mrs. Williams' mother in Coos Bay.

First Of Four Special Sections Appears Today

The special 28-page tabloid section is printed on premium grade newsprint paper and contains many hitherto unpublished pictures and sketches of the earliest recorded history of Marin County. It also includes an account of the founding of Marin's first newspaper March 23, 1861, on the eve of the start of the Civil War.

Today's first commemorative section will be followed on the next two Saturdays by two more reviews of Marin and Independent-Journal history. A fourth section on the Independent-Journal in contemporary Marin will conclude the centennial observance.

EXTRA COPIES

Extra copies of the four special I-J centennial sections may be obtained at 50 cents for the complete series, including wrapping and mailing to any point in the U.S.A. Orders may be placed with the I-J circulation department. The 50 cents may be sent in either stamps or coin.

The old Marin County Journal was founded by County Judge Ai Barney with his son, Jerome Barney, as first editor. Only a couple of hundred copies were needed to serve the county's 1861 population of approximately 3,500. In early issues, some news was printed in Spanish as well as English.

The newspaper was founded less than 30 years after the closing of historic Mission San Rafael Arcangel. California had been a state only a little more than 10 years when the Journal first appeared.

DINNER PLANNED

The newspaper was more than 10 years old before San Rafael became an incorporated city.

Newspaper publishers of North Bay and Redwood Empire counties will hold a dinner meeting March 24 at Bob's of Marin to observe the I-J centennial.

The I-J will hold a public "open house" with conducted tours through the plant on March 31.

The Marin County Industrial Development Foundation will sponsor an I-J 100th "birthday party" April 5 at the Meadow Club marking "a century of service by one of Marin's oldest industries."

KTIM will broadcast interviews with I-J key staff members Mondays through Fridays at 6 p.m. during the next two weeks.

Gas Explosion Levels Ross Home Chimney

The explosion occurred when Mrs. Gaffney attempted to light the gas valve after she had left it on while getting some wood. According to Carl E. Olson, assistant fire chief, the chimney was completely leveled, with a chunk of brick, weighing about 40 pounds, thrown about 35 feet into the street.

Although the fireplace in the front room was cracked and the walls around it split, Mrs. Gaffney was not injured.

The Ross Fire Department was answering a call at the Katharine Branson School at 10:50 a.m., which turned out to be a faulty alarm switch, when the Gaffneys called.

When unable to get an answer from the Ross firemen, Gaffney called the San Anselmo Fire Department, who again called Ross, this time reaching the firemen just as they were returning from the school at 11 a.m.

The Ross firemen did a quick about-face and rushed to the Gaffney home. No fire erupted from the explosion but, according to Olson, all that remains of the chimney are the steel construction rods.

State Senate Commends I-J For 100th Year

The California state Senate yesterday paid tribute to the Independent-Journal, which celebrates its 100th anniversary Thursday, and commended the publishers "for their valued service to the community."

In a resolution introduced by Sen. John F. McCarthy of San Rafael and unanimously adopted, the senators congratulated the Independent-Journal publishers for the "excellent record they have made and their enviable position in the estimation of the people of the State of California."

The resolution noted that in its 100-year history, the Independent-Journal "has always been editorially outspoken for those things which will encourage the growth and development of Marin County." The newspaper's "loud, clear editorial voice" has been effective in influencing state and national affairs many times, the resolution stated.

The senators said that the Independent-Journal, "that forthright dispenser of news," is among the institutions "in which Californians have occasion to take unusual pride."

The Independent-Journal now has a daily circulation of more than 29,000, is printed on a 48-page high speed, color press and is one of the first newspapers in the west to install Linofilm, an advanced electronic system of typesetting, the resolution stated.

Rusk Reported Warning Russ Of Laos War Peril

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk was reported to have warned Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today that Russian meddling in Laos could trigger a major war in Southeast Asia.

Rusk and Gromyko met in Rusk's office for a "brass tacks" luncheon conference on Laos, the Congo, disarmament and other tension-ladened issues dividing East and West.

Rusk's aides said he hoped to persuade Gromyko that the Soviet Union should end its massive airlift of war supplies to the Communist-led rebels in Laos and convince the rebels that they should join the central government in seeking a formula for a stable, independent country.

The aides said the secretary hoped to convince Gromyko that meddling in Laos was poisoning the international atmosphere and would make it more difficult to negotiate on big cold war issues like disarmament, a nuclear test ban, the Congo, Berlin and Germany.

Thieves Strike School, Homes

A series of burglaries and thefts were reported in various parts of the county during the past two days.

A burglar, possibly with a master key, entered the Marin Catholic High School cafeteria and stole $177 in cash yesterday, sheriff's deputies reported.

In Marinwood, a 1953 flatbed truck and equipment, worth $2,500, is missing from a construction project. Victim is William M. Cash of Los Gatos.

Glassware worth $200 to $300 vanished from the garage of Mrs. Lewis Aaron, 325 Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

NO FUNDS

State Halts U.S. Worker Jobless Pay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California stopped paying unemployment benefits under two federal jobless programs today because funds are exhausted.

Irving H. Perluss, state director of unemployment, said he ordered a halt to payments for unemployed federal workers and recently discharged servicemen who are unemployed.

Legislation is pending before Congress to replenish the fund from which the payments are made.

"These two programs are entirely federal," Perluss told a reporter. "We are strictly the paymaster."

"They're out of funds, and I'm simply not going to use our own state funds to pay these benefits until Congress appropriates the money." He said he expected such action early next week.

Fair Closes Tonight

ANOTHER BREAK WIDENS OLD TUNNEL CRATER

Another large section of the old Northwestern Pacific Railroad tunnel in Woodacre caved in today, making a "crater" about 18 feet deep and about 35 feet across.

L. R. Peacock, who lives on Laurel Avenue, across from the tunnel, and owns property in back of it, said he was standing on the road when he saw the cave-in. Several apple trees went into the hole as the land collapsed, he said.

The hole is on county property. The tunnel, once used by trains from San Rafael to Point Reyes and later by fire trucks, has been closed about four years.

U.N. Troops Moving Against 'Fanatic Pagans' In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo — (AP) — Hundreds of pagan fanatics are running wild through the Congo's Kivu Province in a new terror campaign against white people, the United Nations reported today.

A joint force of U. N. Malay troops and Congolese soldiers is preparing to set out from the U. N. base at Kindu in a bid to end the outbreak of lawlessness.

A U. N. spokesman described the fanatics as a "terrorist group several hundred strong." They are concentrated around the Kivu town of Kasenge and are known as "kartelites."

According to reports brought back to Kindu by missionaries recently in Kasenge the Kartelites are armed with bows and arrows and wear a band of leopardskin around their heads.

Their avowed intent is to "kill all whites," a U. N. spokesman told newsmen. So far no reports of any killings by them have reached the United Nations.

The spokesman said the Congolese population around Kasenge also was in fear of the fanatic terrorists.

NEW TYPE SERMON FOR YOUNGSTERS

Rev. David C. Jacobsen, pastor of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church, 112 Bulkley Avenue, has introduced into Sunday morning worship services what is called a "sermonette." They are sermons for children. During the regular service the youngsters seat themselves on the chancel steps around the pastor to hear a short message particularly for them. Rev. Jacobsen, who assumed duties at the Sausalito church several months ago, was formerly pastor of a Los Angeles parish.

SERRA CLUB

Catholic Group Seeks Priests

This month is "Vocations Month" in the Roman Catholic Church and an organization whose continual purpose is the fostering of youngsters to the priesthood is the International Serra Club, whose No. 40 chapter is in Marin County.

In addition to leading youth to the priesthood, the organization also contributes financially to the Archdiocese seminary program.

The highlight of the club's activities this month was the Altar Boy Awards given to two youths from each of Marin's 14 Catholic parishes, and St. Anne's at Hamilton Air Force Base.

CONSENT OF PASTOR

"The selection is made by a special committee of the Serra Club of Marin with the consultation and consent of the parish pastor," explained Earl G. Grady, club secretary and member of St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

The awards are given for the boy's faithful and outstanding service at the altar which includes knowledge of liturgical material used in assisting the priest, and the identification of such terms as an "amice" and "ostensorium," among others. Some larger parishes, like St. Raphael's with 80 rotating altar boys, hold written examinations for selection.

GET CERTIFICATE

Those selected are given a Certificate of Loyalty and Devotion which ironically enough is engraved with the boy's name by inmate hand printers at San Quentin Prison. The boys, all of whom are in grammar school, also are given Silver Servers Medals.

The Serra Club was founded in Seattle, Washington in 1935 by Catholic laymen and is named after California missions founder, Father Junipero Serra. Its Marin president is Charles D. Owen, owner of the Colonial Motel in San Rafael. It was formed 11 years ago and has 36 members who represent nearly all the county's Catholic parishes.

About six or eight young men from Marin have been ordained as priests. Presently there are 25 Marin youths in seminaries, reported Grady.

NEW TYPE SERMON FOR YOUNGSTERS

Rev. David C. Jacobsen, pastor of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church, 112 Bulkley Avenue, has introduced into Sunday morning worship services what is called a "sermonette." They are sermons for children. During the regular service the youngsters seat themselves on the chancel steps around the pastor to hear a short message particularly for them. Rev. Jacobsen, who assumed duties at the Sausalito church several months ago, was formerly pastor of a Los Angeles parish.

SERRA CLUB

Catholic Group Seeks Priests

This month is "Vocations Month" in the Roman Catholic Church and an organization whose continual purpose is the fostering of youngsters to the priesthood is the International Serra Club, whose No. 40 chapter is in Marin County.

In addition to leading youth to the priesthood, the organization also contributes financially to the Archdiocese seminary program.

The highlight of the club's activities this month was the Altar Boy Awards given to two youths from each of Marin's 14 Catholic parishes, and St. Anne's at Hamilton Air Force Base.

CONSENT OF PASTOR

"The selection is made by a special committee of the Serra Club of Marin with the consultation and consent of the parish pastor," explained Earl G. Grady, club secretary and member of St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

The awards are given for the boy's faithful and outstanding service at the altar which includes knowledge of liturgical material used in assisting the priest, and the identification of such terms as an "amice" and "ostensorium," among others. Some larger parishes, like St. Raphael's with 80 rotating altar boys, hold written examinations for selection.

GET CERTIFICATE

Those selected are given a Certificate of Loyalty and Devotion which ironically enough is engraved with the boy's name by inmate hand printers at San Quentin Prison. The boys, all of whom are in grammar school, also are given Silver Servers Medals.

P-TA Member Resigns In Row Over Teacher

Mrs. James J. Roberts has resigned from the board of the Pacheco Parent-Teacher Assn. in the San Jose School District in a row over charges against a teacher, according to Mrs. John H. Tindell, Pacheco P-TA president.

Mrs. Tindell said that Mrs. Roberts telephoned her Thursday, asking her to withdraw her challenge to Mrs. Robert W. Dodson, the P-TA second vice president, to debate alleged "degeneration" in the classroom of seventh grade teacher Edwin L. Hanchett. Mrs. Roberts said the challenge might cause Mrs. Tindell "personal embarrassment," Mrs. Tindell said.

Declining to withdraw her challenge, Mrs. Tindell informed Mrs. Roberts she would appreciate Mrs. Roberts' resignation as inspiration chairman of the P-TA. It was given by telephone, she reported.

Asked if she would ask for Mrs. Dodson's resignation, Mrs. Tindell declined comment.

Pacheco principal Fred Newton said dancing in Hanchett's class, which Mrs. Dodson attacked at a Monday night school board meeting, lasted about 10 minutes during a physical education period. It was part of a farewell party for a departing student. Mrs. Dodson charges the dancing lasted an hour.

She also protested that the shades in the classroom were drawn, the lights out and that five other dances had been held previously in the classroom.

Newton said the curtains had been drawn because other students had been disturbing the class by peering in the windows; that two teachers, including Hanchett, were present during the dancing; that an undetermined number of dancing sessions had been held previously during physical education.

Mrs. Tindell Tuesday offered to resign as president of the P-TA if Mrs. Dodson would resign as first vice president, so the two could debate the questions without reference to any parent-teacher group.

Said Mrs. Dodson yesterday: "I am very undecided about what I should do."

Laos Holding Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Laotian army should be able to hold its cities—although the pro-Communist rebels are likely to overrun more of the countryside—until U.S. instructors can get loyal troops in shape to put up a stronger fight, U.S. officials said today.

These officials indicated U.S. military aid personnel will intensify efforts to assure that royal Laotian troops are prepared adequately to cope with the growing threat from the Pathet Lao rebels. This announcement came out of a meeting yesterday between leaders of an Italian-American group; Desi Arnaz, producer of the show, and representatives of the American Broadcasting Co.

Action In Angola

LUANDA, Angola Portuguese West Africa (AP)—Portuguese troops have been flown northward to the Angola-Congo border area, where tribal terrorists have been hacking to death and mutilating any whites they find on remote Angola plantations. At least 30 planters and families were reported slain.

Portuguese colonial rulers here turned to armed might in hopes of ending the Mau-Mau type of slaughter. The same planes that rushed in troops brought back terrified settlers.

Faced with the prospect of growing Congo-like massacres, colonial authorities here in the capital said today they are confident they can put down the bloody anti-white uprising despite the hindrance of torrential rain.

Desperado Taken

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (UPI)—A brave farm wife's religious plea was credited today with ending the police-shooting spree of a desperado whose rampage started with two other fugitives a week ago.

But before Mrs. Eva Clannahan talked Douglas Wayne Thompson into surrendering to a cordon of police around her farm, he killed a hostage and shot a state policeman yesterday in a final dash to avoid capture that befell his two companions a week earlier.

Thompson, 27, slipped up on the Clannahan farm even before police knew he had wounded State Trooper Glen Davis, 24, and shot Raymond S. Glover, 45, Clubb, Mo.

"I told him that if he went out there with his hands over his head, the Lord would be with him. Then I got him to promise me that if I went out there he would follow me with his hands over his head."

Thompson told authorities he was surprised they still were hunting for him.

"In California they only look for you four or five days," he said.

Block On Russ Seen

Assembly President Frederick H. Boland tentatively scheduled a Congo debate Monday, in response to the Soviet demand, but diplomatic sources predicted that only Russia and its satellites would speak in a debate held that day.

These sources said the Afro-Asian nations would wait until their governments had had time to adopt an attitude toward the situation created by the proclamation of a Congo federation, apparently replacing the Leopoldville government to which a number of them had objected.

CHICAGO (AP)—Surgeons have amputated the left leg of William McCoy, a wrecking company employee rescued from the rubble of a collapsed building where he was pinned 18 hours.

Blair Expected To Return To Supervisors

Return to active duty Monday of Supervisor J. Walter Blair of Mill Valley after several weeks of illness and an operation is expected to bring forth several continued matters to supplement an otherwise sparse agenda for the Monday and Tuesday meetings of the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

With Blair present, the board is expected to send a reply to the claim of the civic center primary contractors, Rothschild, Raffin and Weirick, who have asked $14,047 on behalf both of themselves and of subcontractors because of the one-week work stoppage caused by the majority action of the supervisors in January.

It is expected that in line with county counsel advice the board will offer time extension but reject the money claim, subject to court decision.

The regular agenda for Monday lists only "communications," starting at 2 p.m. Congratulatory telegrams will be read from the governor of Oregon and the mayor of Richmond, praising Marin County's win in the All-America Cities national contest.

Treatment Plant Costs Detailed

Expansion of San Rafael's sanitation treatment plant could cost more than a million dollars in the next ten years, according to consulting sanitary engineers Harry N. and John H. Jenks of Palo Alto.

Jenks' report, accepted by the San Rafael Sanitation Commission Thursday, shows that a four-phase enlargement program would cost $730,000 or $1,025,000, depending on whether pile foundations are used.

The engineers recommended that a soil investigation be made to determine the possibility of construction without pile foundations. They also recommended steps be taken to finance the first stage of the enlargement as soon as possible.

The first stage additions will include a rectangular aeration tank and final settling tank. The exisiting digester would be cleaned and modern mixing equipment would be installed.

These enlargements "would provide the needed up-grading of treatment to meet the newly established Water Pollution Control Board requirements for effluent disposal."

The estimated cost of these enlargements is $180,000 if pile foundations are not used and $250,000 if used.

The proposed second stage enlargements will include the construction of a secondary digester, additional sludge drying beds, laboratory installation and chlorination equipment modifications. According to the report, "the need for these enlargements will depend on the rate at which the average flow will increase to the plant."

The estimated cost of the second stage enlargements is $125,000 if pile foundations are unnecessary. If the pile foundations are needed, the cost will be upped $75,000 to an estimated $200,000.

The final stage of the plan calls for the addition of one final settling tank and two aeration tanks together with modifications.

The need for the fourth stage enlargements "will be dependent on the necessity of providing complete treatment due to the nature of development in the area of plant outfall discharge."

The cost for the final stage enlargements would be approximately $225,000 if pile foundations are not used. The cost would be $300,000 if piling is required.

CORRECTING FALSE STATEMENTS ABOUT DRAKES BEACH ESTATES

Reproduced below is a letter from Drakes Beach Estates Inc. to the Marin Co. Board of Supervisors, correcting false statements made by a San Francisco newspaper about the Drakes Beach Estates subdivision.

On the basis of the facts mentioned below, demand has been made upon the publishers and editor of the newspaper for full and complete retractions.

Meanwhile, we wish our friends in Marin County to know the true facts. This letter was read at the March 14 meeting of the Board of Supervisors and is a document of public record.

March 14, 1961

Honorable William D. Fusselman
Chairman, Board of Supervisors
County of Marin Court House
San Rafael, California

Re: Draes Beach Estates, Inc.

Gentlemen:

We have viewed with growing concern and amazement the false and defamatory misstatements of fact which are appearing in the press in regards to Drakes Beach Estates. Particular reference is made to the article published in the San Francisco News-Call Bulletin on Monday, March 6th and Tuesday, March 7th, all written by Staff Writer George Dusheck.

By innuendo and fragmentary reporting the articles imply that the entire development was precipitated after the National Park Service started propagandizing the Point Reyes Seashore Area. To the contrary, negotiations leading to the purchase of the property for development were commenced in 1956, three years before the first Park bills were introduced in Congress. A reference to the public records of Marin County will show that a one-half interest in this property was sold in 1957, and the written agreement consummating the sale required that the property be developed forthwith. The inference in newspaper articles that private citizens can violate contracts and destroy agreements at will, merely because other private citizens, the press, or governmental agencies desire another use of private property, leaves us appalled. Such a position is untenable and morally reprehensible. Derogatory statements by politicians are ignoring all of the basic economic facts with which every businessman is familiar.

After stating in the article of March 7, 1961, that the subdivider obtained exemption from County road standards, the News-Call Bulletin article proceeds, "The roads would not be accepted by the County in their present condition . . . their tar topping is too thin. They have already begun to wash out and gully at the shoulders here and there." Our reply is that the roadbed is still under construction and the paving of the roads cannot even be commenced until dry weather arrives. Furthermore, the One Hundred Three Thousand Dollar ($103,000.00) subdivision performance bond posted by us with the County of Marin guarantees that both the four and one-half mile access road and roads within the subdivision will be paved. Your County Engineer is familiar with these facts, as the subdivision improvement agreement provides for his inspection of the paving job.

The most flagrant misstatement of fact was made in the News-Call Bulletin article of March 7, 1961, in which it said:

"Ordinarily, a subdivider must file with the Planning Commission a map showing any parts of the subdivision that conceivably could be flooded by rain, run-off, high tides, high waves, or any combination of these."

"THE SUBDIVIDER also asked exemption from the legal requirements that such areas (subject to flooding or wave washing) be filled to a level seven feet above mean sea level . . . the records show the subdivider is legally exempt from this requirement . . ."

The public records of your Planning Commission and your Board will show that those statements are false. They are clearly libelous both to your Board and to us. No variances were requested or granted either to Section 2.13 or Section 5.1(b) (7) of Marin County Subdivision Ordinance 640. The original petition contained requests for exemptions, but these requests were stricken from the petition at OUR request during the hearing. The engineer in charge of the development stated that such variances were unnecessary.

The proceedings will also show that Mr. Niels Schultz stated that he did not want the Planning Commission to be in the position of having approved variances as to those sections. By mutual agreement, therefore, no variances as to filling ground to a safe level or mapping inundated areas were requested by us or granted by your Board or Planning Commission. Statements to the contrary are plainly false and extremely damaging both to you and to us. We sincerely hope that the transcript of the Planning Commission hearing will be preserved for use in possible damage actions. Mr. George Dusheck was informed in detail of all particulars of the proceedings. It is almost inconceivable that Mr. Dusheck could have consulted with a competent, loyal member of your Planning Staff and then have written such damaging and erroneous statements.

We would also like to clarify the misstatement of the law regarding the mutual water company. The article states that the subdivider can control the water system to the detriment of the property owners. This is simply untrue. California law, as enforced by the Commissioner of Corporations, prevents a subdivider from owning any stock in the mutual water company and our permit from his office clearly prohibits such ownership on our part.

In conclusion, we deeply regret that your Board has to suffer such untrue and unjust criticism. We intend to take all available steps to clarify and correct the misrepresentations, and hope that you will aid us in this endeavor.

Very truly yours,
BENJAMIN P. BONELLI, Pres.

P-TA Member Resigns In Row Over Teacher

Mrs. James J. Roberts has resigned from the board of the Pacheco Parent-Teacher Assn. in the San Jose School District in a row over charges against a teacher, according to Mrs. John H. Tindell, Pacheco P-TA president.

Mrs. Tindell said that Mrs. Roberts telephoned her Thursday, asking her to withdraw her challenge to Mrs. Robert W. Asked if she would ask for Mrs. Dodson's resignation, Mrs. Tindell declined comment.

Mrs. Tindell Tuesday offered to resign as president of the P-TA if Mrs. Dodson would resign as first vice president, so the two could debate the questions without reference to any parent-teacher group.

Said Mrs. Dodson yesterday: "I am very undecided about what I should do."

They have already begun to wash out and gully at the shoulders here and there." Our reply is that the roadbed is still under construction and the paving of the roads cannot even be commenced until dry weather arrives. Furthermore, the One Hundred Three Thousand Dollar ($103,000.00) subdivision performance bond posted by us with the County of Marin guarantees that both the four and one-half mile access road and roads within the subdivision will be paved. Your County Engineer is familiar with these facts, as the subdivision improvement agreement provides for his inspection of the paving job.

The most flagrant misstatement of fact was made in the News-Call Bulletin article of March 7, 1961, in which it said:

"Ordinarily, a subdivider must file with the Planning Commission a map showing any parts of the subdivision that conceivably could be flooded by rain, run-off, high tides, high waves, or any combination of these."

"THE SUBDIVIDER also asked exemption from the legal requirements that such areas (subject to flooding or wave washing) be filled to a level seven feet above mean sea level . . . the records show the subdivider is legally exempt from this requirement . . ."

The public records of your Planning Commission and your Board will show that those statements are false. They are clearly libelous both to your Board and to us. No variances were requested or granted either to Section 2.13 or Section 5.1(b) (7) of Marin County Subdivision Ordinance 640. The original petition contained requests for exemptions, but these requests were stricken from the petition at OUR request during the hearing. The engineer in charge of the development stated that such variances were unnecessary.

The proceedings will also show that Mr. Niels Schultz stated that he did not want the Planning Commission to be in the position of having approved variances as to those sections. By mutual agreement, therefore, no variances as to filling ground to a safe level or mapping inundated areas were requested by us or granted by your Board or Planning Commission. Statements to the contrary are plainly false and extremely damaging both to you and to us. We sincerely hope that the transcript of the Planning Commission hearing will be preserved for use in possible damage actions. Mr. George Dusheck was informed in detail of all particulars of the proceedings. It is almost inconceivable that Mr. Dusheck could have consulted with a competent, loyal member of your Planning Staff and then have written such damaging and erroneous statements.

We would also like to clarify the misstatement of the law regarding the mutual water company. The article states that the subdivider can control the water system to the detriment of the property owners. This is simply untrue. California law, as enforced by the Commissioner of Corporations, prevents a subdivider from owning any stock in the mutual water company and our permit from his office clearly prohibits such ownership on our part.

In conclusion, we deeply regret that your Board has to suffer such untrue and unjust criticism. We intend to take all available steps to clarify and correct the misrepresentations, and hope that you will aid us in this endeavor.

Very truly yours,
BENJAMIN P. BONELLI, Pres.
Drakes Beach Estates, Inc.

New, Clear Laws Are Needed To Ban Practice Of Selling Babies

Q) "Recently I read about a ring of lawyers and doctors who sold babies to childless couples. They charged thousands of dollars per baby. I was surprised to learn that the laws are not clear on this. Shouldn't it be illegal to sell babies?" F.N.

A) Indeed it should. One state had to go back to antislavery laws to find a basis for arresting a ring of unethical doctors and lawyers. Authorities in another state recently found they had no way to stop the baby black market. New, clear laws are needed.

Q) "We have one child, a girl of 12. She and her father used to be very close. They love each other; however, our daughter now seems to resent him. She would rather go to baseball games with her classmates than with him. He heard her apologizing to a friend for his appearance. It hurt him deeply. Why has she changed? Has he made mistakes with her?" L.V.

A) Your girl is growing up. Probably there have been no mistakes. It is normal for a girl of 12 to feel critical toward her parents. She is becoming independent but she will change again later.

Q) "My son has a ducktail haircut. He greases his hair and combs it ad nauseam. He smokes constantly. Until we moved here he was a good boy. We've been here three years. Now he runs with bad companions. He is 16. Is there any way we can force him to get a haircut? Or to improve his choice of friends?" S.L.

A) I doubt if you can force him. Probably your efforts would make matters worse. Are there legitimate activities in which he could excel? Baseball, for example? Or swimming, or football? Almost certainly success in athletics would lead to better attitudes. Try to get him interested. Good luck!

Crowd Cheers Rally For Tam High Bonds

A crowd of 600 partisans cheered a two-hour program aimed at getting out the vote for Tamalpais High School Bonds at the Corte Madera Recreation Center last night, but the unquestioned star of the evening was radio's Don Sherwood.

"Coming in to Corte Madera to help with this campaign is, no doubt, the result of a guilt complex for the years I wasted my time," said a soft-spoken, serious Sherwood. "When I read that Marin County had the highest per capita income in the country and was the hardest to get to vote in bond elections, I decided to help you do something about it."

Sherwood's group of entertainers included Joe and Eddie, who record folk songs; Al Collins, a bearded disk jockey, who read "Little Red Riding Hood"; The Big Barman Band, a professional stage band and the Sherwood foil, Aaron Edwards.

Edward Colthurst, Corte Madera Mayor, was the chairman of the evening.

At the election April 18, voters of the Tamalpais High School District will ballot on the proposal for a three-million-dollar bond issue to expand the three high schools of the district and buy an additional site. At a special election last year the measure was approved by 60 per cent of the voters but failed to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

Drunken Driver Gets Fine Of $132

Hawley Buster Adams, 59, of House 180, Marin City, must pay $132 fine and remain on six months probation for his first drunken driving offense.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Adams yesterday for driving while intoxicated at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue in Mill Valley on Feb. 24. For the next 90 days, Adams may drive only for work.

Six Die In Fire

SANDY RIDGE, N.C. (UPI)—A mother and her five children burned to death today when fire swept their six room home. The victims were identified as Mrs. Pauline Hawkins, 36, and her children, Gallion, 13, Larry, 9, Teresa, 6, Timmy, 5, and Danny, 3. Cause of the fire was not determined.

Tiburon Doctor Divorced By Wife

Judge N. Charles Brusatori granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce on grounds of cruelty and approved a property settlement that gives her their home at 259 East Strawberry Drive, Mill Valley. Dr. Bentinck retains his medical practice and property connected with it. Mrs. Bentinck did not ask for support.

They were married in October of 1956 and separated last May.

Mrs. Bentinck's suit for divorce alleged that he had a violent temper, drank to excess, was anti-social, used vile language, and choked her pet cat to death.

The doctor filed a countersuit, complaining that she drank to excess, used vile language, refused to serve adequate meals, made advances to other men, and stayed away until early morning hours.

However, at the hearing this morning, the doctor did not contest the action.

Radar Station Boss Shifted

Lt. Col. Gus Weiser, commanding officer of the 666th Radar Squadron at Mill Valley Air Station atop Mount Tamalpais for the past 19 months, has been named director of operations of the 552nd Airborne Early Warning and Control Wing at Sacramento.

Maj. Paul S. Miller has assumed duties as commanding officer from his previous post as operations officer of the squadron. Major Miller lives at 16 Shelby Drive, Mill Valley, with his wife and children.

Colonel Weiser is on temporary duty in Mill Valley to wind up his affairs and will report to the wing at McClellan Air Force Base April 1. His wife and five children will remain in Mill Valley until the close of the school year. The Weisers live at the base.

It has also been announced that Weiser will be promoted to full colonel Monday.

Dinner-Dance Slated

A dinner-dance will be held tonight by the California Society of Professional Engineers at the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association Clubhouse on Mount Tamalpais. The social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. Dancing will follow a ham dinner.

New, Clear Laws Are Needed To Ban Practice Of Selling Babies

Q) "Recently I read about a ring of lawyers and doctors who sold babies to childless couples. They charged thousands of dollars per baby. I was surprised to learn that the laws are not clear on this. Shouldn't it be illegal to sell babies?" F.N.

A) Indeed it should. One state had to go back to antislavery laws to find a basis for arresting a ring of unethical doctors and lawyers. Authorities in another state recently found they had no way to stop the baby black market. New, clear laws are needed.

Q) "We have one child, a girl of 12. She and her father used to be very close. They love each other; however, our daughter now seems to resent him. She would rather go to baseball games with her classmates than with him. He heard her apologizing to a friend for his appearance. It hurt him deeply. Why has she changed? Has he made mistakes with her?" L.V.

A) Your girl is growing up. Probably there have been no mistakes. It is normal for a girl of 12 to feel critical toward her parents. She is becoming independent but she will change again later.

Q) "My son has a ducktail haircut. He greases his hair and combs it ad nauseam. He smokes constantly. Until we moved here he was a good boy. We've been here three years. Now he runs with bad companions. He is 16. Is there any way we can force him to get a haircut? Or to improve his choice of friends?" S.L.

A) I doubt if you can force him. Probably your efforts would make matters worse. Are there legitimate activities in which he could excel? Baseball, for example? Or swimming, or football? Almost certainly success in athletics would lead to better attitudes. Try to get him interested. Good luck!

Crowd Cheers Rally For Tam High Bonds

A crowd of 600 partisans cheered a two-hour program aimed at getting out the vote for Tamalpais High School Bonds at the Corte Madera Recreation Center last night, but the unquestioned star of the evening was radio's Don Sherwood.

"Coming in to Corte Madera to help with this campaign is, no doubt, the result of a guilt complex for the years I wasted my time," said a soft-spoken, serious Sherwood. "When I read that Marin County had the highest per capita income in the country and was the hardest to get to vote in bond elections, I decided to help you do something about it."

Sherwood's group of entertainers included Joe and Eddie, who record folk songs; Al Collins, a bearded disk jockey, who read "Little Red Riding Hood"; The Big Barman Band, a professional stage band and the Sherwood foil, Aaron Edwards.

Edward Colthurst, Corte Madera Mayor, was the chairman of the evening.

At the election April 18, voters of the Tamalpais High School District will ballot on the proposal for a three-million-dollar bond issue to expand the three high schools of the district and buy an additional site. At a special election last year the measure was approved by 60 per cent of the voters but failed to win the necessary two-thirds majority.

Drunken Driver Gets Fine Of $132

Hawley Buster Adams, 59, of House 180, Marin City, must pay $132 fine and remain on six months probation for his first drunken driving offense.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court sentenced Adams yesterday for driving while intoxicated at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue in Mill Valley on Feb. 24. For the next 90 days, Adams may drive only for work.

Six Die In Fire

SANDY RIDGE, N.C. (UPI)—A mother and her five children burned to death today when fire swept their six room home. The victims were identified as Mrs. Pauline Hawkins, 36, and her children, Gallion, 13, Larry, 9, Teresa, 6, Timmy, 5, and Danny, 3. Cause of the fire was not determined.

Tiburon Doctor Divorced By Wife

Judge N. Charles Brusatori granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce on grounds of cruelty and approved a property settlement that gives her their home at 259 East Strawberry Drive, Mill Valley. Dr. Bentinck retains his medical practice and property connected with it. Mrs. Bentinck did not ask for support.

They were married in October of 1956 and separated last May.

Mrs. Bentinck's suit for divorce alleged that he had a violent temper, drank to excess, was anti-social, used vile language, and choked her pet cat to death.

The doctor filed a countersuit, complaining that she drank to excess, used vile language, refused to serve adequate meals, made advances to other men, and stayed away until early morning hours.

Radar Station Boss Shifted

Lt. Col. Gus Weiser, commanding officer of the 666th Radar Squadron at Mill Valley Air Station atop Mount Tamalpais for the past 19 months, has been named director of operations of the 552nd Airborne Early Warning and Control Wing at Sacramento.

Maj. Paul S. Miller has assumed duties as commanding officer from his previous post as operations officer of the squadron. Major Miller lives at 16 Shelby Drive, Mill Valley, with his wife and children.

Colonel Weiser is on temporary duty in Mill Valley to wind up his affairs and will report to the wing at McClellan Air Force Base April 1. His wife and five children will remain in Mill Valley until the close of the school year. The Weisers live at the base.

It has also been announced that Weiser will be promoted to full colonel Monday.

Dinner-Dance Slated

A dinner-dance will be held tonight by the California Society of Professional Engineers at the Muir Woods Park Improvement Association Clubhouse on Mount Tamalpais. The social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. Dancing will follow a ham dinner.

Here's Candidate List For Schools

Marin County voters go to the polls April 18 to select trustees for 73 posts on school district boards from 110 persons who filed declarations of candidacy by the 5 p.m. deadline yesterday.

For the first time since school districts were established in California, a majority of all trustee posts will be up for election in the same year.

Filing yesterday afternoon, just "under the wire" before the 5 p.m. deadline, were: Charles E. Thompson, heavy equipment operator of 637 Plum Street, Novato, for the Novato board; Glen E. Twitchell, civil engineer of Lagunitas, for the Lagunitas board; Walter Lord of 41 Harrison Street, Sausalito, for the Sausalito board; Edith W. Painter of 1291 Leafwood Drive, Novato, for the San Jose board, and Charles S. Roach, Crown-Zellerbach Corp. employee of 613 Idylberry Road, San Rafael, for the Dixie board.

The terms of a majority of board members will expire in all but three districts—Marin Junior College District, with one term expiring; Novato Unified and San Rafael, each of which has two expiring. San Rafael, which has a different procedure for filing, has seven candidates running in its election on April 10.

The terms of four of the members of the county board of education also are expiring. As the result of new trustee area boundaries, a new representative will be elected for a new trustee area comprising Tomales Bay, Laguna Joint, Lincoln, Union Joint and Burdell School Districts. Each member of the county board must reside in the trustee area he represents—a requirement made necessary by 1959 state legislation which outlaws "at large" members. The law also established seven areas instead of the original five.

Voters will elect trustees for two new districts, Tomales Bay Union, composed of the Marshall and Tomales districts, and Bolinas-Stinson Beach, a merger of the separate Bolinas and Stinson Beach Districts.

In 12 districts and in three trustee areas of the county board, there will be no contest because the number filing is no more than the number of terms expiring. These are Burdell, Kentfield, Laguna Joint, Lincoln, Nicasio, Point Reyes, Ross, San Anselmo, Tomales Bay, Union Joint, West Marin, Marin Junior College, and trustee areas 3, 6 and 7. Lincoln is short one candidate for its two posts.

In Ross district, which has three posts expiring, there were five candidates, but incumbents William C. Bricca and George Hart withdrew after filing.

Tamalpais Union High School District has 11 candidates for four vacancies—including three of the incumbents. Four candidates—Tom McDougall, Joe V. Lopes, Charles S. Graham and Philip J. Rowland—are apparently running as an "economy" slate. Lopes, Graham and Rowland listed their occupations as "tax economist" on their declarations.

Fairfax will have eight candidates competing for three vacancies on the board, Larkspur has nine running for four posts, and San Jose has 8 for three openings.

The complete list of candidates:

BOLINAS-STINSON (5 to be elected): Robert E. Shockey, Arthus E. Carpenter, Blanche Eustis, Joyce Huntley and Henry B. Lacaze (incumbents); Rolland M. McCready.

BURDELL (2 to be elected): Joseph Corda, James Grossi (incumbents).

DIXIE (3 to be elected): Robert S. Winnford, Dorothy C. Brown (incumbents; John R. Christofferson, John A. Starkweather, Lawrence I. Kramer Jr., Charles S. Roach.

FAIRFAX (3 to be elected): James Henington, Harry Carpenter, John J. Hourihan, Jay M. Hutchinson, Laurence G. Hermann, Robert C. Lauppe, Gordon B. Adams, John W. (Bill) Shirley.

LAGUNA (2 to be elected): Antone Moreda, T. G. Ielmorini (incumbents).

Peat's fine . . . but try Fertimulch and see why thousands are switching to this new forest mulch that lasts so long and makes soil so rich and loamy. Spade in Fertimulch when you plant trees or shrubs. Rake it in your flower beds. See how it breaks up heavy clay soils and aerates the root zone. Use it to provide composted material and hold moisture in sandy soils. Note its pleasant, woodsy fragrance. Fertimulch works magic with lawns, shrubs and flowers. It won't blow away. Beds won't settle. Try Fertimulch. See how it does the work of peat . . . and lasts years longer.

Sausalitan Safe As Battered Ship Gets Coast Guard Tow

A jinxed luxury yacht, with a Sausalito man aboard as navigator, will finally make it from Honolulu to California — on the end of a Coast Guard tow line.

Al Rubiford is one of five men aboard the 75-foot Endymion. The yacht lost a mast and its radio yesterday in heavy seas about 300 miles southwest of San Francisco.

A Coast Guard cutter early today reached the vessel and is towing it to Monterey or San Francisco.

It was the fourth time since last August that the ship, owned by retired Honolulu and San Francisco businessman Lee Baron, had tried to make it from Honolulu to the Golden Gate.

Here's Candidate List For Schools

Marin County voters go to the polls April 18 to select trustees for 73 posts on school district boards from 110 persons who filed declarations of candidacy by the 5 p.m. deadline yesterday.

For the first time since school districts were established in California, a majority of all trustee posts will be up for election in the same year.

Filing yesterday afternoon, just "under the wire" before the 5 p.m. deadline, were: Charles E. Thompson, heavy equipment operator of 637 Plum Street, Novato, for the Novato board; Glen E. Twitchell, civil engineer of Lagunitas, for the Lagunitas board; Walter Lord of 41 Harrison Street, Sausalito, for the Sausalito board; Edith W. Painter of 1291 Leafwood Drive, Novato, for the San Jose board, and Charles S. Roach, Crown-Zellerbach Corp. employee of 613 Idylberry Road, San Rafael, for the Dixie board.

The terms of a majority of board members will expire in all but three districts—Marin Junior College District, with one term expiring; Novato Unified and San Rafael, each of which has two expiring. San Rafael, which has a different procedure for filing, has seven candidates running in its election on April 10.

The terms of four of the members of the county board of education also are expiring. As the result of new trustee area boundaries, a new representative will be elected for a new trustee area comprising Tomales Bay, Laguna Joint, Lincoln, Union Joint and Burdell School Districts. Each member of the county board must reside in the trustee area he represents—a requirement made necessary by 1959 state legislation which outlaws "at large" members. The law also established seven areas instead of the original five.

Voters will elect trustees for two new districts, Tomales Bay Union, composed of the Marshall and Tomales districts, and Bolinas-Stinson Beach, a merger of the separate Bolinas and Stinson Beach Districts.

In 12 districts and in three trustee areas of the county board, there will be no contest because the number filing is no more than the number of terms expiring. These are Burdell, Kentfield, Laguna Joint, Lincoln, Nicasio, Point Reyes, Ross, San Anselmo, Tomales Bay, Union Joint, West Marin, Marin Junior College, and trustee areas 3, 6 and 7. Lincoln is short one candidate for its two posts.

In Ross district, which has three posts expiring, there were five candidates, but incumbents William C. Bricca and George Hart withdrew after filing.

Tamalpais Union High School District has 11 candidates for four vacancies—including three of the incumbents. Four candidates—Tom McDougall, Joe V. Lopes, Charles S. Graham and Philip J. Rowland—are apparently running as an "economy" slate. Lopes, Graham and Rowland listed their occupations as "tax economist" on their declarations.

Fairfax will have eight candidates competing for three vacancies on the board, Larkspur has nine running for four posts, and San Jose has 8 for three openings.

The complete list of candidates:

Peat's fine . . . but try Fertimulch and see why thousands are switching to this new forest mulch that lasts so long and makes soil so rich and loamy. Spade in Fertimulch when you plant trees or shrubs. Rake it in your flower beds. See how it breaks up heavy clay soils and aerates the root zone. Use it to provide composted material and hold moisture in sandy soils. Note its pleasant, woodsy fragrance. Fertimulch works magic with lawns, shrubs and flowers. It won't blow away. Beds won't settle. Try Fertimulch. See how it does the work of peat . . . and lasts years longer.

A Gay Bon Voyage Party Given Boyds

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Over the buffet table was a model airplane, depicting the Boyds' mode of travel. Centering the table was a large globe of the world. Red, white and blue streamers falling from the chandelier marked the places on the globe where the travelers will stop. On the individual tables were dolls in costumes of the countries to be visited and travel posters were on the walls.

Guests had been asked to wear costumes of countries on the itinerary. Costume-wise Hawaii predominated. In island garb were Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, Richard's cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robling of Santa Clara, Mr. and Mrs. Jud Kirby of Walnut Creek, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Flagellot of San Francisco.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

A Gay Bon Voyage Party Given Boyds

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

A gay costume bon voyage party was given last Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Taylor of Corte Madera honoring the Richard A. Boyds of Kent Woodlands who leave March 29 for a five months trip around the world. Co-hosting the party with the Taylors was Mrs. Helen Reynolds of Greenbrae.

Over the buffet table was a model airplane, depicting the Boyds' mode of travel. Centering the table was a large globe of the world. Red, white and blue streamers falling from the chandelier marked the places on the globe where the travelers will stop. On the individual tables were dolls in costumes of the countries to be visited and travel posters were on the walls.

Guests had been asked to wear costumes of countries on the itinerary. Costume-wise Hawaii predominated. In island garb were Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, Richard's cousin and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robling of Santa Clara, Mr. and Mrs. Jud Kirby of Walnut Creek, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Flagellot of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hoffman of San Francisco wore Japanese costume. Mr. and Mrs. John Gunther of Murray Park and Mrs. Robert Petroni of San Francisco represented Germany and Mr. Petroni was a Frenchman. Dressed as Apache dancers were Mr. and Mrs. Wes Gudmundson of Loch Lomond. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Halkens who live in Burlingame were Scottish couples. Mrs. Reynolds and her escort, William Wion of Reno, were gay Spaniards. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burton of San Francisco were in Chinese costume and Dr. and Mrs. Porter Forcade of San Rafael were garbed as Mexicans.

FIJI WILL be the vacation locale of the Mert Hispleys. On April 7 with the Stanford Glucks of Hillsborough they are flying to the Southwest Pacific and will stay there two weeks. Most of the time they will be in Suva on Viti Levu Island where parents of Mrs. Gluck, who was born in the islands, live. From Fiji the two couples will fly to Tahiti for a week and then return home. Tonight the Glucks are entertaining at a dinner for the Hipsleys. Other Marin guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Gus Niederholzer and Mr. and Mrs. Melville London.

FLYING TO Hawaii on April 9 will be the Paul Spenglers who will be in Honolulu for two weeks, the first at the Surfrider and the second at the Royal Hawaiian. Then they will go to Kauai for an 11-day stay at Coco Palms renewing friendships they made on a visit a year ago and playing golf at the exclusive Lihue Country Club.

A FABULOUS four months' world trip has been planned by Mrs Walter Flegal of Sausalito. Leaving by plane, the first stop in Honolulu will be followed by 12 days in Japan after which Mrs. Flegal will fly to Hong Kong, Manila, Formosa and Cambodia. Mrs. Flegal is looking forward to colorful Bangkok, with India to follow including stops in Rangoon and Calcutta. A flight to Nepal in the Himalayas will precede a visit to Agra and New Delhi, then to Cairo, Jerusalem and Istanbul. At Athens, Dorothy will forsake plane travel for a cruise on the "Stella Maris" that will last a week and includes visits to the Greek islands of Rhodes, Crete and Delos. For the month of June Dorothy will visit in the British Isles with London as "home" away from home. The following month is reserved for Paris before returning to Sausalito in August.

PARIS will be the first city to be visited by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Close of Mill Valley who leave on Wednesday for a three months' tour of Europe. They are buying a car there and then will travel in France, Switzerland, Italy and England. They will be joined by Mrs. Close's niece, Susan Seymour, daughter of the Kent Seymours of Mill Valley. She has just completed her junior year at the Stanford University institution in Tours, France. Friends will be occupying the Closes' home during their absence.

A WEST INDIES cruise has been chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Gratama of Sausalito for their travels this year. They leave next month by freighter, going through the Panama Canal to Curacao. From there they fly to Trinidad and visit other West Indies Islands including Haiti and Jamaica. In the Barbados, they will visit Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Urbutt, who by then will have left Sausalito and be settled for a year's stay. Before returning home, the Gratamas will spend some time in Miami and visit Mrs. Gratama's family in Washington, D.C.

A TWO WEEKS FLYING vacation is being enjoyed by Mrs. Edson Adams of San Anselmo who left on Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Elton S. Macdonald, long time friends, in their private plane, a Martin 404. The Macdonalds maintain homes in Palm Springs and Detroit. Aboard the plane when it left the San Francisco International Airport were the pilot, the Macdonalds, Stephanie Adams and another woman friend. They flew to Dallas, Texas for a couple of days and then to Louisiana, stopping at New Orleans. The plane then heads north to New York City and then to Michigan where the travelers will attend the wedding of Mr. Macdonald's son, Elton Macdonald Jr. in Grosse Point. Stephanie will jet home from there.

WOODLAND SPONSORS INC. is the name of Marin women's youngest organization. It has about 45 founders, residents of Kent Woodlands, Kentfield and Ross mostly. The organization was formed at a luncheon on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward Solinsky. The group will be a philanthropic one. Major project is providing campership for children of needy families. The meetings will be on the third Wednesday of each month and on April 19 the proposed by-laws, prepared by Mesdames John P. McFarland, Stanley Eager and Peter Ridar, will be presented.

Cynthia will be en route to Taipei in Formosa where she has been assigned to a secretarial position by the State Department. She is completing an indoctrination course in Washington, D.C.

INTO THEIR NEW HOME in Bayside Acres, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adams moved yesterday. The beautiful modern house, which is on a knoll and has a marvelous view, was designed by Gary L. Tucker, who is married to the Adams' daughter, Helen. The new home is not as large as the one Mr. and Mrs. Adams owned in Del Mesa and which they sold to the Girvan Pecks but the children are all grown now and away from home. Dr. and Mrs. Thorne J. Butler (Katy Adams) are in Japan. Dr. Butler, a pathologist, has the rank of captain in the Air Force, and is at Tachikawa Air Force Base. Rebecca Adams is in her junior year at Swarthmore College. She was away a year studying in Berlin. Douglass Adams is an attorney with offices in San Jose and Saratoga. Another son, Robert Adams, is an Episcopal minister and lives in Lockwood, Calif. and is vicar of two missions. The Tuckers are closer. They are residents of Bayside Acres. After Mr. and Mrs. Adams sold their Del Mesa home, they moved to San Francisco. They were only there six months because they liked Marin County better.

ANOTHER MILL FOR MILL VALLEY

Two New Angles Arise In Pt. Reyes Discussion

Two lively letters have contributed new angles to discussion of the proposed Point Reyes National Seashore.

Attorney Benjamin P. Bonelli wrote for Drakes Beach Estates to the Marin County Board of Supervisors expressing "concern and amazement" over "false and defamatory misstatements of fact" voiced by press and politicians in portraying the estates subdivision as an effort to cash in on the seashore prospect.

Douglas Hertz, president of the Bolema Club, Inc., also doing business as the Point Reyes Land and Development Co. and Bolema Palisades, Inc., wrote to Rep. Clement W. Miller (D-Corte Madera) that the proposed seashore would cost 200 million dollars for purchase and development. Miller is a sponsor of the seashore idea.

Both letters attacked allegedly wrong statement of facts. But Bonelli stuck to affairs of Drakes Beach while Hertz used his experience with property to charge the National Park Service with poor planning and potential extravagance.

Hertz said the land held by the 100 members of his club, each of whom may build a home if he wishes, amounts to 1,600 acres within the proposed park, all bought at an average $500 an acre but that by government appraisal of the adjoining 2,500-acre Tevis ranch the price is now $700, totaling nearly 40 million dollars for a 53,000-acre park.

Bonelli said Drakes Beach Estates purchase negotiations were started not after the park project was known but three years before the first park bills were introduced. He said the Marin Connty Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors have been unjustly accused of giving special concessions.

Writer Workshop Starts Monday

The second quarter of the Mill Valley writing workshop led by novelist and short story writer Nathan Asch will start Monday.

Asch said beginners are welcome to attend and that anyone interested should call Mrs. Edward Ripley, 5 Josephine Street, Sausalito.

Asch also conducts a workshop in Novato which meets Thursday nights. Interested northern Marin residents may call Mrs. Jerome B. Gilbert of Novato.

Marin Could Lose U.S. School Funds

Marin County public schools will lose $169,932 in federal aid if Public Law 874, providing funds for districts with federally connected children, is not renewed, Roy E. Simpson, state superintendent of public instruction, warned yesterday.

Last year Marin received $552,281 under this law, which allocates aid to districts with pupils whose parents work on federal property and live on or off federal bases.

The law expires June 30. Simpson urged California's congressmen to seek immediate passage of a bill insuring continued aid to districts qualifying for it.

The superintendent said President John F. Kennedy's aid-to-education plan would provide such aid at a lower rate.

Last year 4,044 children in 12 districts in Marin were counted for Public Law 874 support. Under the president's plan, Marin would receive $382,348.63, Simpson said.

Bulk of the funds in Marin last year went to San Jose School District, which received $160,728.52. Novato Unified School District was given $100,209.88. Money also went to Dixie, Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Reed, San Anselmo, San Rafael elementary and high school, Sausalito and Tamalpais High districts.

Democratic Club Names Officers

Lucien C. Haas of 1422 Cambridge Street has been elected president of the Novato Democratic Club, newly affiliated with the California Democratic Council.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Bea Carpenter of 2155 Vineyard Road, vice president and Mrs. Margaret Pedroli of 705 Lamont Avenue, secretary.

Directors of the new club are Mrs. Isaac Greer, Mrs. Alice Yarish, Gilbert Guerin, Mrs. Fred Volz, Mrs. William Moyer, Mrs. Louis MacPhee, Carlos Rivamonte, Robert Kitchak and Anthony Franklin.

William Luft is legislative chairman. Haas, Robert D. Carrow and William Carpenter will represent the club on the Marin County Democratic Council.

Pat Carpenter, a political science major at Dominican College, was appointed organizing chairman of a proposed Youth for Democrats Club.

More Job Injuries

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Employee for the City of San Francisco suffer more than twice as many on-the-job injuries as do California industrial workers. The State Division of Industrial Safety reports that the injury rate per 1,000 San Francisco employees is 66. The rate, per thousand, for workers in all California industry is 32.

San Rafael Considering Adopting 'Sister City'

Shall San Rafael adopt San Rafael?

Preliminary work has been done by the U.S. State Department under its city affiliation program. Papers have been sent to San Rafael, Argentina, from the embassy in Buenos Aires, to see if that city would welcome such an idea.

No word has been received yet from the Argentina city, according to Jess France, chairman of the civic affairs committee.

"The adoption of a sister city is still in the early planning stages," France said. "It has not yet been discussed by the full committee."

However, the committee has it scheduled on its agenda for a meeting on March 28, according to France.

"We don't know very much about San Rafael, Argentina," France said. "We know that it is a city just under 30,000 population, 120 miles south of Mendoza in western Argentina."

France said that he had one name to write to in San Rafael, Argentina: that of Senor Deodoro Victor Alarcon, intendente de la municipalidad de San Rafael—in short Mr. D. V. Alarcon, mayor.

Of course, if San Rafael, Argentina, is not adopted for a sister city, there are San Rafael, Spain; San Rafael, Haiti; San Rafael, Guatemala; etc.

Miller (D-Corte Madera) that the proposed seashore would cost 200 million dollars for purchase and development. Miller is a sponsor of the seashore idea.

Both letters attacked allegedly wrong statement of facts. Lut Bonelli stuck to affairs of Drakes Beach while Hertz used his experience with property to charge the National Park Service with poor planning and potential extravagance.

Hertz said the land held by the 100 members of his club, each of whom may build a home if he wishes, amounts to 1,600 acres within the proposed park, all bought at an average $500 an acre but that by government appraisal of the adjoining 2,500-acre Tevis ranch the price is now $700, totaling nearly 40 million dollars for a 53,000-acre park.

Bonelli said Drakes Beach Estates purchase negotiations were started not after the park project was known but three years before the first park bills were introduced. He said the Marin Connty Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors have been unjustly accused of giving special concessions.

Writer Workshop Starts Monday

The second quarter of the Mill Valley writing workshop led by novelist and short story writer Nathan Asch will start Monday.

Asch said beginners are welcome to attend and that anyone interested should call Mrs. Edward Ripley, 5 Josephine Street, Sausalito.

Asch also conducts a workshop in Novato which meets Thursday nights. Interested northern Marin residents may call Mrs. Jerome B. Gilbert of Novato.

Marin Could Lose U.S. School Funds

Marin County public schools will lose $169,932 in federal aid if Public Law 874, providing funds for districts with federally connected children, is not renewed, Roy E. Simpson, state superintendent of public instruction, warned yesterday.

Last year Marin received $552,281 under this law, which allocates aid to districts with pupils whose parents work on federal property and live on or off federal bases.

The law expires June 30. Simpson urged California's congressmen to seek immediate passage of a bill insuring continued aid to districts qualifying for it.

The superintendent said President John F. Kennedy's aid-to-education plan would provide such aid at a lower rate.

Last year 4,044 children in 12 districts in Marin were counted for Public Law 874 support. Under the president's plan, Marin would receive $382,348.63, Simpson said.

Bulk of the funds in Marin last year went to San Jose School District, which received $160,728.52. Novato Unified School District was given $100,209.88. Money also went to Dixie, Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Reed, San Anselmo, San Rafael elementary and high school, Sausalito and Tamalpais High districts.

San Rafael Considering Adopting 'Sister City'

Shall San Rafael adopt San Rafael?

Preliminary work has been done by the U.S. State Department under its city affiliation program. Papers have been sent to San Rafael, Argentina, from the embassy in Buenos Aires, to see if that city would welcome such an idea.

No word has been received yet from the Argentina city, according to Jess France, chairman of the civic affairs committee.

"The adoption of a sister city is still in the early planning stages," France said. "It has not yet been discussed by the full committee."

However, the committee has it scheduled on its agenda for a meeting on March 28, according to France.

"We don't know very much about San Rafael, Argentina," France said. "We know that it is a city just under 30,000 population, 120 miles south of Mendoza in western Argentina."

France said that he had one name to write to in San Rafael, Argentina: that of Senor Deodoro Victor Alarcon, intendente de la municipalidad de San Rafael—in short Mr. D. V. Alarcon, mayor.

Of course, if San Rafael, Argentina, is not adopted for a sister city, there are San Rafael, Spain; San Rafael, Haiti; San Rafael, Guatemala; etc.

March Of Dimes Benefit Game Tomorrow

Major league baseballers of former years and the cream of Marin County's present young ballplayers will participate in a benefit all-star game tomorrow at Albert Field in San Rafael, with all the proceeds from the gate receipts and refreshment sales going to the 1961 March of Dimes.

Admission prices for the 1:30 p.m. contest have been set at $1 for adults and 50 cents for youngsters aged 16 and under.

Appearing in uniform will be such past heroes of the diamond as Sam Chapman, former outfielder of the Philadelphia Athletics; Augie Galan, one-time star flychaser for the Chicago Cubs; Bill Serena, ex-third baseman for the Cubs; Dario Lodigiani, also a third baseman in Chicago, with the White Sox; and lefthanders Artie Schallock and Lloyd Dickey, who pitched for the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates, respectively.

Among other horsehiders slated to see action include Ed Vigno Jr., who starred at shortstop for Redwood High; semi-pro outfielder Ralph Boccabella; pitcher Art Camara; outfielder Bob DeRosa; first baseman Bill Enos; shortstop Ray Hamric; outfielders Walt Pocekay and Al Endriss; second baseman Willie Reed, and third baseman Reno DeBenedetti.

The opposing teams will be the Gino DeBenedetti Stars and the Marin All-Stars, but the assured winner is the Marin County chapter of the National Foundation.

On hand to throw out the first ball will be State Senator John McCarthy, while also in attendance at the game will be such Marin County dignitaries as Mayors John McGinnis of San Rafael and William Franchini of San Anselmo; Supervisor Walter Castro, and San Rafael Chief of Police Charles Chiesa. Members of the San Francisco 49ers have been invited to attend. Cub Scout Pack 30 of San Rafael will present the colors.

The organizational effort behind the game has been provided by San Rafael resident Don Lauters, who will participate further in his creation by taking part in the game itself. If tomorrow's game is successful, Lauters said he will plan a similar benefit for next year's March of Dimes before the current major league players have left for spring training.

5 Hamilton Boxers Win In Tourney

Hamilton Air Force Base's cracker-jack boxing team rang up a five-won, two-lost record last night in semi-finals of the Golden Gloves tournament at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium.

And two of the five winners got into the finals the easy way—by default. They were defending champion Ralph McCoy in the 147-pound class and heavyweight Clure Foster.

Those who advanced to the finals the hard way were Alfredo Pena, 125-pounder; Clemon Maddox, 132, and George Leach, 139.

Pena defeated Jesse Arceo of Stockton, Maddox beat Harold Shaw of Lewis Athletic Club and Leach defeated James Kelly of San Francisco.

Hamilton losers were Benjamin Burns, 147 pounds and John Hampton, 165. Burns was stopped in the second round by Charlie Brown of San Jose and Hampton was decisioned by Ramire Mendez, also of San Jose.

Arenas At Tahoe; Agrees To Appear In Court Monday

SAN JOSE (AP)—Joe Arenas, former San Francisco 49er halfback, has agreed to appear in Municipal Court Monday to answer a charge that he forged a business partner's name to a $264 check.

Attorney Albert J. Ruffo, part owner of the 49ers and former San Jose city councilman, appeared in court yesterday and said Arenas phoned him from Lake Tahoe. Judge Grandin Miller said Arenas could remain free without bail until Monday.

Arenas had been sought on a forgery warrant issued by the Santa Clara County district attorney's office on a complaint signed by Dante Panepa

Drake Swimmers Defeat Lincoln

Sir Francis Drake swim team yesterday left a slight wake that tipped over Lincoln High of San Francisco by 15 points. The Pirates came through with 55 counts, Lincoln with 40.

Tony Crossler and Dennis Smith for Drake who made the difference. Crossler touched in with a one minute, 4.8 seconds time in the 100-yard butterfly and went to town to win the always exciting but grueling individual medley.

After the 100-yard freestyle, Smith came out of the water with a winning 59.1 seconds time. Also in the 200 free relay, he ended his stretch in victory.

It was the Drake Bs who really knew the tides yesterday. They literally drowned Lincoln 70 to 7 for the Marin club's second straight victory. Terry Politi was taking first and second places like sardines from a bait tank. His best winning time was turned in after the backstroke race: One minute, eight seconds. He also won the individual medley. B Pirate Bill Kelsey won the 50 and 100 freestyle.

GIANTS' NEW LOOK

S. F. Conditioning Pays Off . . Sort Of

The only trouble seems to be that the sluggers aren't slugging and the pitchers seem to be throwing every place but across the plate.

In yesterday's Cactus League game with the Chicago Cubs, Manager Dark had his Giants hitting-and-running, bunting and scoring runs with almost picturebook deftness.

And Orlando Cepeda, playing right field for the first time, made two spectacular catches, showing he's almost as versatile as Harvey Kuenn. Kuenn, who has been playing a new position almost every day, played centerfield while Willie Mays got a day off.

But maybe there's some virtue to going slow. The Cubs squeezed out a 9-8 victory by walking.

Giant pitchers Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell, rarely given to wildness, allowed 11 Cub walks. And Chicago catcher Sammy Taylor hit a pair of two-run homers to help his team overcome an 8-3 deficit.

Chicago had only eight hits to San Francisco's 12. But 11 of the 12 were singles, the only blow a double by rookie Mattie Alou.

BRIGHT SPOTS

Dark still saw some bright spots. Cepeda, Willie McCovey, Jim Davenport and Hobie Landrith had two singles apiece. And rookie Bob Farley, replacing Davenport who pulled a groin muscle, singled a run across — delivering for the fourth straight game.

"And anyway, it was Willie Mays' turn for a day off."

Mays was told not to go near a ballpark yesterday, indicating Dark is serious about his announced intention of giving the star a day off now and then.

Cepeda has not been used at first base this spring. McCovey, who now has a .471 Cactus League batting average, appears to be earning a place for himself.

And Dark continues to experiment. He said he still plans to try outfielder Felipe Alou at third base—just to have a look.

Redwood Mermen Swamp Santa Rosa

Frost in the orthodox breaststroke touched the trough for a new Redwod record of one minute, seven seconds. Chambers commanded both the 400 and 200 yard freestyle races with times of four minutes .30.3 and two minutes .08.8 respectively. Frost's efforts reflected support of his reputation as one of northern California's outstanding prep swimmers.

Other Giant points were stacked by butterflyer Paul Foster, who stopped the win watch at one minue :04.6 seconds and poised J. P. Rodrigo, who went off the rusty springs well enough to sweep the diving event.

REDWOOD BALL GAME CALLED, TOO MUCH SUN!

Fickle weather didn't stop the Redwood Giant-McClymonds High baseball game at Oakland yesterday. That practice contest was called after the seventh inning because of SUNSHINE!

The game was deadlocked at 2-all and pitcher Rich Brear of the Giants was doing fine with 12 strikeouts and no walks when the sun got in everybody's eyes. Officials and teams agreed that it would be too dangerous to continue the game, so they quit.

Other games, meanwhile, were called for a different reason—RAIN!

49er Waters In Surgery; Damaged Knee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bob Waters, rookie quarterback who became an overnight hero last season with the San Francisco 49ers, underwent surgery today for damaged cartilage in his left knee.

Waters was flown here from his home in Sylvania, Ga., Thursday after the knee, which was damaged in the last game of the season against the Baltimore Colts, began to swell. He had been exercising it in an attempt to get rid of the stiffness.

Dr. Frank Cox, who was scheduled to perform the surgery, said that Waters should be ready to play by the time the 49ers open training in July.

Waters, an all-time great at Presbyterian College in South Carolina, became a sudden pro star when he clicked on two passes in as many attempts late in the game to pace the 49ers to a 30-22 upset of the Colts.

In a later game with them, he sustained the knee injury while being knocked out of bounds after gaining nine yards.

Coach Red Hickey has said that Waters is a prominent factor in the quarterback spot which includes the aging Y. A. Tittle and John Brodie.

New Teaching Pro For Las Gallinas

A teaching professional will join head pro Jim Perrin at the Las Gallinas Golf Club north of San Rafael on April 1, it was announced today.

The newcomer to Marin will be Ted Benedict, a veteran of golf in Hawaii, Benedict was for 33 years the head pro at Waialae Country Club near Honolulu.

Bucks Barely Survive NCAA; Trojans Fall

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surprise defeats of St. Bonaventure and Southern California and the narrow escape from elimination of Ohio State's unbeaten and top-ranked Buckeyes featured the start of a hectic weekend in the National Collegiate (NCAA) Basketball Championship Tournament.

Ohio State chalked up its 30th straight victory (25 this season) 56-55 over a fired-up Louisville team. The Buckeyes, with their All-America Jerry Lucas held to nine points, came from seven points back to tie at 54-54, then won in the last six seconds on John Havlicek's basket.

With one second left Louisville's John Turner got a chance to tie the score from the free-throw line on a 1-and-1 situation. He made the first charity toss, but missed the second as 18,883 spectators groaned.

St. Bonaventure and Southern California, third and seventh ranked nationally, weren't so fortunate. Wake Forest tripped the Bonnies 78-73 in the East regionals at Charlotte and Arizona State University, champions of the Border Conference, upended the Trojans 86-71 in the Far West regionals at Portland, Ore.

UTAH WINS

Ohio, State, Wake Forest and Arizona State were joined in the national quarter-finals by Cincinnati, Kansas State, Kentucky, Utah and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Cincinnati, second ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, won its 19th straight by drubbing Texas Tech 78-55. Kansas State, fourth-ranked, downed Houston 75-64. Utah walloped Los Angeles Loyola 91-75 and St. Joseph's defeated Princeton 72-67.

Regional finals will be played tonight with the winners going to Kansas City for the semi-finals and final next Friday and Saturday.

Little 5-9 Larry Armstrong led Arizona State to its upset triumph. His dribbling, long accurate shooting and interception of passes kept Southern California off balance. He finished with 27 points and was given an ovation when taken out near the end of the game.

Wright, Thompson In TVer Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Wright, hard-punching knockout artist from Detroit, will be seeking his second straight victory over a "name" opponent when he faces Argentina's Federico Thompson in a nationally-televised 10-round bout in the St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Wright upset Sugar Hart of Philadelphia in his last start Feb. 27. He'll go into the ring with a 34-5-3 record including 16 knockouts. Thompson was outpointed by Benny "Kid" Paret in a welterweight title bout Dec. 10. The Argentine has 54 knockouts among 99 victories in 116 matches.

Cage Fix Scandal Spreads; Three Players Questioned

Already three players have been accused of accepting bribes to shave points and two gamblers are in custody.

Police sources said that 15 to 20 schools from coast to coast might be involved in the scandal which has been under investigation five months.

"We expect it to be far bigger than the 1951 scandals," said one high official. "The investigation is continuing. Other schools and other players are the subject of inquiry."

A grand jury at that time found that 86 games had been fixed in 23 cities in seven states. Thirty-three players had been bribed.

Only two of the three players involved in the current scandal have been identified. Both play for Seton Hall. They are Henry Gunter, a center from New York, and Arthur Hicks, a forward from Chicago. Neither had any comment.

One player on the University of Connecticut team is involved, but neither the office of Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan, nor the university would name him.

"In fact," said a Connecticut official, "we are not sure just who the boy is. But we have a pretty good idea from the questioning by the district attorney."

The two gamblers in custody, described by Asst. Dist. Atty. Peter D. Andreoli as representing a nationwide syndicate, are Aaron Wagman, 28, Joseph Hacken, 41, both of New York. They are charged with bribery and conspiracy in an attempt to fix college games.

Two games are specifically mentioned in the charges. On Feb. 9, Dayton defeated Seton Hall, 112-77, and on March 1, Colgate defeated Connecticut, 83-71, of Hamilton, N.Y.

Andreoli said the two Seton Hall players each received $1,000 for their part in the game against Dayton, and the Connecticut player was paid $1,500 for his efforts against Colgate.

The puzzling aspect of the new scandal is that both Seton Hall and Connecticut were underdogs in the betting. Apparently what happened was that the fixers decided on a new strategy of making the underdog lose by an even greater margin than anticipated.

POINT SPREADS

So-called point spreads are set on all games by a midwest concern. Dayton, for example, was listed as a 6-point favorite over Seton Hall in one of the games involved. That meant that if a bettor chose to wager on Dayton, the team would have to win by six or more points for him to collect.

Actually, there were suspicions at the time, and bookmakers—who usually are the heavy losers in such actions — finally refused to take any bets on the game. They, too, were suspicious.

Seton Hall Coach Richie Regan said he had no reason to suspect anything was wrong in the game.

"I just attributed it to a bad night," he commented. "It's hard to tell when a player is not doing his best or just having an off game."

Connecticut Coach Hugh Greer also was bewildered.

"I don't understand how a club like ours could be involved," he said. "It might have been possible that gamblers might be interested in one of our better clubs, but not this one."

Marin Keg Tournament Champions Announced

Secretary Clay Anderson yesterday announced winners of all divisions in the Marin County Bowling Assn.'s annual tournament which ended last weekend.

Winner of the all-events prize with a total pinnage of 1933 was Bob Curtin, Anderson announced. All-events includes scores of singles, doubles and team events plus handicap. Curtin had a 30-pin advantage over Earl Hoffman and Fletcher Bates who tied for second at 1903.

Singles championship was won by Paul Schiller, a 147 average kegler, who does most of his bowling at Nave Lanes. Schiller cranked out a three-game series of 704 pins. Marv Deutsch was the runnerup with 695 pins.

The doubles prize also was won by Nave Lanes' bowlers—Tom Stark and Fred Schroers. They compiled 1297 pins. Runners up were Dennis Regan and Ed Clinton with a 1291 score.

Winner of the team championship—announced last Monday—was the Filippo Construction quintet from Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. Its score was 3135. Trailorboat Engineering was second with 3122. Third place, and the only other team penetrating the 3000 mark, was Marin Bowl Coffee Shop with 3005.

A complete list of prize winners in all divisions will be published in Monday's Independent-Journal along with the regular weekly Marin bowling roundup.

Major league baseballers of former years and the cream of Marin County's present young ballplayers will participate in a benefit all-star game tomorrow at Albert Field in San Rafael, with all the proceeds from the gate receipts and refreshment sales going to the 1961 March of Dimes.

Admission prices for the 1:30 p.m. contest have been set at $1 for adults and 50 cents for youngsters aged 16 and under.

Appearing in uniform will be such past heroes of the diamond as Sam Chapman, former outfielder of the Philadelphia Athletics; Augie Galan, one-time star flychaser for the Chicago Cubs; Bill Serena, ex-third baseman for the Cubs; Dario Lodigiani, also a third baseman in Chicago, with the White Sox; and lefthanders Artie Schallock and Lloyd Dickey, who pitched for the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates, respectively.

Among other horsehiders slated to see action include Ed Vigno Jr., who starred at shortstop for Redwood High; semi-pro outfielder Ralph Boccabella; pitcher Art Camara; outfielder Bob DeRosa; first baseman Bill Enos; shortstop Ray Hamric; outfielders Walt Pocekay and Al Endriss; second baseman Willie Reed, and third baseman Reno DeBenedetti.

The opposing teams will be the Gino DeBenedetti Stars and the Marin All-Stars, but the assured winner is the Marin County chapter of the National Foundation.

On hand to throw out the first ball will be State Senator John McCarthy, while also in attendance at the game will be such Marin County dignitaries as Mayors John McGinnis of San Rafael and William Franchini of San Anselmo; Supervisor Walter Castro, and San Rafael Chief of Police Charles Chiesa. Members of the San Francisco 49ers have been invited to attend. Cub Scout Pack 30 of San Rafael will present the colors.

The organizational effort behind the game has been provided by San Rafael resident Don Lauters, who will participate further in his creation by taking part in the game itself. If tomorrow's game is successful, Lauters said he will plan a similar benefit for next year's March of Dimes before the current major league players have left for spring training.

5 Hamilton Boxers Win In Tourney

Hamilton Air Force Base's cracker-jack boxing team rang up a five-won, two-lost record last night in semi-finals of the Golden Gloves tournament at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium.

And two of the five winners got into the finals the easy way—by default. They were defending champion Ralph McCoy in the 147-pound class and heavyweight Clure Foster.

Those who advanced to the finals the hard way were Alfredo Pena, 125-pounder; Clemon Maddox, 132, and George Leach, 139.

Pena defeated Jesse Arceo of Stockton, Maddox beat Harold Shaw of Lewis Athletic Club and Leach defeated James Kelly of San Francisco.

Hamilton losers were Benjamin Burns, 147 pounds and John Hampton, 165. Burns was stopped in the second round by Charlie Brown of San Jose and Hampton was decisioned by Ramire Mendez, also of San Jose.

Arenas At Tahoe; Agrees To Appear In Court Monday

SAN JOSE (AP)—Joe Arenas, former San Francisco 49er halfback, has agreed to appear in Municipal Court Monday to answer a charge that he forged a business partner's name to a $264 check.

Attorney Albert J. Ruffo, part owner of the 49ers and former San Jose city councilman, appeared in court yesterday and said Arenas phoned him from Lake Tahoe. Judge Grandin Miller said Arenas could remain free without bail until Monday.

Arenas had been sought on a forgery warrant issued by the Santa Clara County district attorney's office on a complaint signed by Dante Panepa

Drake Swimmers Defeat Lincoln

Sir Francis Drake swim team yesterday left a slight wake that tipped over Lincoln High of San Francisco by 15 points. The Pirates came through with 55 counts, Lincoln with 40.

Tony Crossler and Dennis Smith for Drake who made the difference. Crossler touched in with a one minute, 4.8 seconds time in the 100-yard butterfly and went to town to win the always exciting but grueling individual medley.

After the 100-yard freestyle, Smith came out of the water with a winning 59.1 seconds time. Also in the 200 free relay, he ended his stretch in victory.

It was the Drake Bs who really knew the tides yesterday. They literally drowned Lincoln 70 to 7 for the Marin club's sceond straight victory. Terry Politi was taking first and second places like sardines from a bait tank. His best winning time was turned in after the backstroke race: One minute, eight seconds. He also won the individual medley. B Pirate Bill Kelsey won the 50 and 100 freestyle.

GIANTS' NEW LOOK

S. F. Conditioning Pays Off . . Sort Of

The only trouble seems to be that the sluggers aren't slugging and the pitchers seem to be throwing every place but across the plate.

In yesterday's Cactus League game with the Chicago Cubs, Manager Dark had his Giants hitting-and-running, bunting and scoring runs with almost picturebook deftness.

And Orlando Cepeda, playing right field for the first time, made two spectacular catches, showing he's almost as versatile as Harvey Kuenn. Kuenn, who has been playing a new position almost every day, played centerfield while Willie Mays got a day off.

But maybe there's some virtue to going slow. The Cubs squeezed out a 9-8 victory by walking.

Giant pitchers Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell, rarely given to wildness, allowed 11 Cub walks. And Chicago catcher Sammy Taylor hit a pair of two-run homers to help his team overcome an 8-3 deficit.

Chicago had only eight hits to San Francisco's 12. But 11 of the 12 were singles, the only blow a double by rookie Mattie Alou.

BRIGHT SPOTS

Dark still saw some bright spots. Cepeda, Willie McCovey, Jim Davenport and Hobie Landrith had two singles apiece. And rookie Bob Farley, replacing Davenport who pulled a groin muscle, singled a run across — delivering for the fourth straight game.

Mays was told not to go near a ballpark yesterday, indicating Dark is serious about his announced intention of giving the star a day off now and then.

Cepeda has not been used at first base this spring. McCovey, who now has a .471 Cactus League batting average, appears to be earning a place for himself.

And Dark continues to experiment. He said he still plans to try outfielder Felipe Alou at third base—just to have a look.

Redwood Mermen Swamp Santa Rosa

Frost in the orthodox breaststroke touched the trough for a new Redwod record of one minute, seven seconds. Chambers commanded both the 400 and 200 yard freestyle races with times of four minutes .30.3 and two minutes .08.8 respectively. Frost's efforts reflected support of his reputation as one of northern California's outstanding prep swimmers.

Other Giant points were stacked by butterflyer Paul Foster, who stopped the win watch at one minue :04.6 seconds and poised J. P. Rodrigo, who went off the rusty springs well enough to sweep the diving event.

REDWOOD BALL GAME CALLED, TOO MUCH SUN!

Fickle weather didn't stop the Redwood Giant-McClymonds High baseball game at Oakland yesterday. That practice contest was called after the seventh inning because of SUNSHINE!

The game was deadlocked at 2-all and pitcher Rich Brear of the Giants was doing fine with 12 strikeouts and no walks when the sun got in everybody's eyes. Officials and teams agreed that it would be too dangerous to continue the game, so they quit.

Other games, meanwhile, were called for a different reason—RAIN!

49er Waters In Surgery; Damaged Knee

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bob Waters, rookie quarterback who became an overnight hero last season with the San Francisco 49ers, underwent surgery today for damaged cartilage in his left knee.

Waters was flown here from his home in Sylvania, Ga., Thursday after the knee, which was damaged in the last game of the season against the Baltimore Colts, began to swell. He had been exercising it in an attempt to get rid of the stiffness.

Dr. Frank Cox, who was scheduled to perform the surgery, said that Waters should be ready to play by the time the 49ers open training in July.

Waters, an all-time great at Presbyterian College in South Carolina, became a sudden pro star when he clicked on two passes in as many attempts late in the game to pace the 49ers to a 30-22 upset of the Colts.

In a later game with them, he sustained the knee injury while being knocked out of bounds after gaining nine yards.

Coach Red Hickey has said that Waters is a prominent factor in the quarterback spot which includes the aging Y. A. Tittle and John Brodie.

The newcomer to Marin will be Ted Benedict, a veteran of golf in Hawaii, Benedict was for 33 years the head pro at Waialae Country Club near Honolulu.

Bucks Barely Survive NCAA; Trojans Fall

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surprise defeats of St. Bonaventure and Southern California and the narrow escape from elimination of Ohio State's unbeaten and top-ranked Buckeyes featured the start of a hectic weekend in the National Collegiate (NCAA) Basketball Championship Tournament.

Ohio State chalked up its 30th straight victory (25 this season) 56-55 over a fired-up Louisville team. The Buckeyes, with their All-America Jerry Lucas held to nine points, came from seven points back to tie at 54-54, then won in the last six seconds on John Havlicek's basket.

With one second left Louisville's John Turner got a chance to tie the score from the free-throw line on a 1-and-1 situation. He made the first charity toss, but missed the second as 18,883 spectators groaned.

St. Bonaventure and Southern California, third and seventh ranked nationally, weren't so fortunate. Wake Forest tripped the Bonnies 78-73 in the East regionals at Charlotte and Arizona State University, champions of the Border Conference, upended the Trojans 86-71 in the Far West regionals at Portland, Ore.

UTAH WINS

Ohio, State, Wake Forest and Arizona State were joined in the national quarter-finals by Cincinnati, Kansas State, Kentucky, Utah and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Cincinnati, second ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, won its 19th straight by drubbing Texas Tech 78-55. Kansas State, fourth-ranked, downed Houston 75-64. Utah walloped Los Angeles Loyola 91-75 and St. Joseph's defeated Princeton 72-67.

Regional finals will be played tonight with the winners going to Kansas City for the semi-finals and final next Friday and Saturday.

Little 5-9 Larry Armstrong led Arizona State to its upset triumph. His dribbling, long accurate shooting and interception of passes kept Southern California off balance. He finished with 27 points and was given an ovation when taken out near the end of the game.

Wright, Thompson In TVer Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Wright, hard-punching knockout artist from Detroit, will be seeking his second straight victory over a "name" opponent when he faces Argentina's Federico Thompson in a nationally-televised 10-round bout in the St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

Wright upset Sugar Hart of Philadelphia in his last start Feb. 27. He'll go into the ring with a 34-5-3 record including 16 knockouts. Thompson was outpointed by Benny "Kid" Paret in a welterweight title bout Dec. 10. The Argentine has 54 knockouts among 99 victories in 116 matches.

Cage Fix Scandal Spreads; Three Players Questioned

Already three players have been accused of accepting bribes to shave points and two gamblers are in custody.

Police sources said that 15 to 20 schools from coast to coast might be involved in the scandal which has been under investigation five months.

"We expect it to be far bigger than the 1951 scandals," said one high official. "The investigation is continuing. Other schools and other players are the subject of inquiry."

A grand jury at that time found that 86 games had been fixed in 23 cities in seven states. Thirty-three players had been bribed.

Only two of the three players involved in the current scandal have been identified. Both play for Seton Hall. They are Henry Gunter, a center from New York, and Arthur Hicks, a forward from Chicago. Neither had any comment.

One player on the University of Connecticut team is involved, but neither the office of Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan, nor the university would name him.

"In fact," said a Connecticut official, "we are not sure just who the boy is. But we have a pretty good idea from the questioning by the district attorney."

The two gamblers in custody, described by Asst. Dist. Atty. Peter D. Andreoli as representing a nationwide syndicate, are Aaron Wagman, 28, Joseph Hacken, 41, both of New York. They are charged with bribery and conspiracy in an attempt to fix college games.

Two games are specifically mentioned in the charges. On Feb. 9, Dayton defeated Seton Hall, 112-77, and on March 1, Colgate defeated Connecticut, 83-71, of Hamilton, N.Y.

Andreoli said the two Seton Hall players each received $1,000 for their part in the game against Dayton, and the Connecticut player was paid $1,500 for his efforts against Colgate.

The puzzling aspect of the new scandal is that both Seton Hall and Connecticut were underdogs in the betting. Apparently what happened was that the fixers decided on a new strategy of making the underdog lose by an even greater margin than anticipated.

POINT SPREADS

So-called point spreads are set on all games by a midwest concern. Dayton, for example, was listed as a 6-point favorite over Seton Hall in one of the games involved. That meant that if a bettor chose to wager on Dayton, the team would have to win by six or more points for him to collect.

Actually, there were suspicions at the time, and bookmakers—who usually are the heavy losers in such actions — finally refused to take any bets on the game. They, too, were suspicious.

Seton Hall Coach Richie Regan said he had no reason to suspect anything was wrong in the game.

"I just attributed it to a bad night," he commented. "It's hard to tell when a player is not doing his best or just having an off game."

Connecticut Coach Hugh Greer also was bewildered.

"I don't understand how a club like ours could be involved," he said. "It might have been possible that gamblers might be interested in one of our better clubs, but not this one."

Marin Keg Tournament Champions Announced

Winner of the all-events prize with a total pinnage of 1933 was Bob Curtin, Anderson announced. All-events includes scores of singles, doubles and team events plus handicap. Curtin had a 30-pin advantage over Earl Hoffman and Fletcher Bates who tied for second at 1903.

The doubles prize also was won by Nave Lanes' bowlers—Tom Stark and Fred Schroers. They compiled 1297 pins. Runners up were Dennis Regan and Ed Clinton with a 1291 score.

Winner of the team championship—announced last Monday—was the Filippo Construction quintet from Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. Its score was 3135. Trailorboat Engineering was second with 3122. Third place, and the only other team penetrating the 3000 mark, was Marin Bowl Coffee Shop with 3005.

A complete list of prize winners in all divisions will be published in Monday's Independent-Journal along with the regular weekly Marin bowling roundup.

Refugee Dutch Family Finds Home In Marin

It is a long way from Jjarkarta, Indonesia, to Fairfax, California, especially by way of Holland. Even though is has taken them thousands of miles and five years to make the trip, the Jean Peters family will find a warm welcome to their new home when they arrive Thursday.

Members of St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross are sponsoring the Dutch family who fled the former Dutch colony in 1956.

The five members of the family will find a house all furnished by the church members, waiting for them at 22 Spruce Road in Fairfax. The church members rented the house and have donated furniture for it. The only item which they have bought is a used washing machine.

Jean Peters, 39, was in the Dutch army during World War 2. He was captured in the early stages of the war when the Japanese conquered the Dutch East Indies. He spent three years as a Japanese prisoner of war.

After the war he married Euginie Hoorn and they have a daughter Jennifer, 7. Mrs. Peters' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willem L. Hoorn, are accompanying them to Fairfax.

Peters worked for a Dutch accounting firm in Djarkarta. Mrs. Peters worked for an American firm in Djarkarta.

When they were forced from their home in 1956, they went to The Hague, Holland. Peters has been employed as a clerk for the Royal Dutch Air Force and Mrs. Peters has been working as a secretary for the New Orleans Fruit and Steamship Co.

The Peters family were eligible to come to the United States under the War Refugee Act. The Dutch government is paying their passage and three months health insurance. They will seek employment here.

Members of the church will welcome the family to their new home. And the Peterses are eager to get to California. All of them were born on the island of Java and are used to a warmer climate than Holland.

San Rafael To Start Spraying Trees Monday

San Rafael street trees were not sprayed Thursday and yesterday because of the wet weather, but public works department crews will start spraying trees in Bret Harte and Sun Valley at 6 a.m. Monday, weather permitting, Public Works Director Norris Rawles announced today.

Monday, Modesto ash trees in the two areas will be sprayed to protect them from aphis and anthracnose, Rawles said.

Sycamore trees beside streets throughout the city will be sprayed Tuesday.

Man Draws Fine For Battery Against Wife

James C. Francis, 26, of 115 West Street, San Rafael, drew $52.50 fine yesterday for battery against his wife last Sunday.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court also put Francis on six months probation. San Anselmo police said Francis began striking his wife after an argument at Hank's Wilshire Station.

S.F. MAYOR'S TRIP

Kent School Pupils See Slides On Russ

Adaline E. Kent School seventh and eighth graders this week were given a glimpse of life in the Soviet Union — thanks to the curiosity and persistence of 13-year-old student Tom Bingham.

Showing 60 color slides and speaking to the students on Russia was Joseph J. Allen, executive secretary to San Francisco Mayor George Christopher. Allen accompanied Christopher on his 23,000-mile tour of the USSR last year.

The groundwork for Joseph's visit was laid by Mrs. Catherine Gray, seventh grade teacher who recently conducted discussions on Russia in her social science class.

Mrs. Gray tried without success to obtain a film on Russia to illustrate her classroom discussion.

So great was young Tom Bingham's disappointment that he vowed to find a film on his own, with the help of his mother, Mrs, Edward R. Bingham of 29 Bretano Way, Greenbrae.

Together they queried commercial sources for films, even those in the San Francisco telephone book. The closest they came was locating an "arty" French film made up wholly of angle shots of slavic faces.

The mayor responded by telephone, saying he was unable to come because of pressing duties on the city's upcoming budget. He suggested, however, that his executive secretary would be delighted to speak to the students and show the slides Christopher had taken.

Allen happily accepted the invitation to speak Thursday, preceded by a noon lunch at which the guest of honor was the teacher who started it all: Mrs. Gray.

Allen was introduced by Lynn McFarland, student body president.

View Policy Won't Affect Yacht Club

Members of the San Francisco Yacht Club have received official assurance that Belvedere's "open waterfront view" plan won't jeopardize the club's buildings and docking facilities.

Alarmed by a city planning commission report last November that long-range policy for the Beach Road waterfront was "to eventually have the property completely open to the public view," yacht club officials mailed to the membership a letter urging "yes" votes in the March 28 special election on whether the city should abandon condemnation proceedings to acquire a 500-foot waterfront strip.

Planning commission chairman George Goddard and City Councilman Ida Scott attended a board meeting of the club Thursday and said a terrible misunderstanding had occurred.

Club property is not included in the scheme which aims at forestalling construction of apartments which would block the view, it was explained. Far from suffering injury the club would benefit through added land dedicated to recreational use, the speakers said.

Commodore L. E. von Schulteis said today that the board is now convinced that the city never intended menace to the club. But he said the board doesn't plan a second mailing to countermand the first.

School Bus Purchased In Lagunitas

A 67-passenger school bus has been purchased by the Lagunitas School District board.

The board decided to accept an $8,530 bid by Bianco Motors of San Rafael for a GMC six-cylinder vehicle with Wayne body and special safety precautions in construction.

This was one of 10 offers, with varying bodies and accessories, from four bidders. Lowest was also from Bianco, also with GMC six-cylinder but with Carpenter body and different accessories, the figure being $7,656. High bid was $10,157.

Supt. Clifford L. Frye reported enrollment of 373 pupils from kindergarten through eighth grade as of Thursday, two fewer than last month and comparing with 380 for the same period a year ago.

The board was told that 234 books costing $433 had been added to the school library during this school year, as well as two sets of encyclopedias.

Easter Music Slated

A choral concert of passion and Easter music will be presented by the senior, junior high and youth choirs of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley Sunday at 7 p.m.

Transfer Denied

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The department of alcoholic beverage control has denied transfer of an on-sale beer license to Dorothy Ferral and Joseph Mendoza of the Keg, 872 Vallejo, Novato, as the applicants are not entitled to or in possession of the specific location for which the license is sought.

Police Get More Reports Of Pellet-Damaged Glass

The wave of window breaking that started last weekend is still continuing, according to reports received by the San Rafael police.

Buck L. Rowley of 204 Scenic Road, Fairfax, reported to San Rafael police Thursday that as he was returning a car to Haney and Whitt Auto Glass and Upholstery Shop at 1818 Second Street, a pellet was fired through the windshield near Second and E Streets. The car belonged to Scripture Oldsmobile Co. at 740 Francisco Boulevard.

A 7-by-10 foot plate glass window in the showroom of E. F. Sweeney British Cars at 523 Francisco Boulevard was broken by a pellet gun last Saturday. Edward C. Fitzpatrick of 472 Redwood Avenue, Corte Madera told police that although it happened Saturday, he did not get around to reporting it for the company until Thursday.

A windshield in a Chevrolet truck was broken at the North Coast Distributors at 735 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael. Eugene L. Brandlein of 307 Laurel Place, San Rafael, told police it was broken last Sunday, probably by a pellet gun.

Registration Set For Kindergarten

Children who will enter kindergarten in San Rafael next September may be registered at any of the San Rafael elementary schools next Wednasday or Thursday between 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., Supt. Frank L. Lucas has announced.

To meet legal age requirements for kindergarten, a child's birthdate must be on or before Dec. 2, 1956. This must be supported by a birth certificate, baptismal certificate, or other evidence presented at the time of registration.

So great was young Tom Bingham's disappointment that he vowed to find a film on his own, with the help of his mother, Mrs, Edward R. Bingham of 29 Bretano Way, Greenbrae.

Together they queried commercial sources for films, even those in the San Francisco telephone book. The closest they came was locating an "arty" French film made up wholly of angle shots of slavic faces.

The mayor responded by telephone, saying he was unable to come because of pressing duties on the city's upcoming budget. He suggested, however, that his executive secretary would be delighted to speak to the students and show the slides Christopher had taken.

Allen happily accepted the invitation to speak Thursday, preceded by a noon lunch at which the guest of honor was the teacher who started it all: Mrs. Gray.

Allen was introduced by Lynn McFarland, student body president.

View Policy Won't Affect Yacht Club

Members of the San Francisco Yacht Club have received official assurance that Belvedere's "open waterfront view" plan won't jeopardize the club's buildings and docking facilities.

Alarmed by a city planning commission report last November that long-range policy for the Beach Road waterfront was "to eventually have the property completely open to the public view," yacht club officials mailed to the membership a letter urging "yes" votes in the March 28 special election on whether the city should abandon condemnation proceedings to acquire a 500-foot waterfront strip.

Planning commission chairman George Goddard and City Councilman Ida Scott attended a board meeting of the club Thursday and said a terrible misunderstanding had occurred.

Club property is not included in the scheme which aims at forestalling construction of apartments which would block the view, it was explained. Far from suffering injury the club would benefit through added land dedicated to recreational use, the speakers said.

Commodore L. E. von Schulteis said today that the board is now convinced that the city never intended menace to the club. But he said the board doesn't plan a second mailing to countermand the first.

School Bus Purchased In Lagunitas

A 67-passenger school bus has been purchased by the Lagunitas School District board.

The board decided to accept an $8,530 bid by Bianco Motors of San Rafael for a GMC six-cylinder vehicle with Wayne body and special safety precautions in construction.

This was one of 10 offers, with varying bodies and accessories, from four bidders. Lowest was also from Bianco, also with GMC six-cylinder but with Carpenter body and different accessories, the figure being $7,656. High bid was $10,157.

Supt. Clifford L. Frye reported enrollment of 373 pupils from kindergarten through eighth grade as of Thursday, two fewer than last month and comparing with 380 for the same period a year ago.

The board was told that 234 books costing $433 had been added to the school library during this school year, as well as two sets of encyclopedias.

Easter Music Slated

A choral concert of passion and Easter music will be presented by the senior, junior high and youth choirs of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley Sunday at 7 p.m.

Choir directors are M. P. Richardson, Claudia Colburn and Logan McFadden. Mrs. Edward Colburn is the organist and Jackie Colburn, the pianist.

Transfer Denied

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The department of alcoholic beverage control has denied transfer of an on-sale beer license to Dorothy Ferral and Joseph Mendoza of the Keg, 872 Vallejo, Novato, as the applicants are not entitled to or in possession of the specific location for which the license is sought.

Police Get More Reports Of Pellet-Damaged Glass

The wave of window breaking that started last weekend is still continuing, according to reports received by the San Rafael police.

Buck L. Rowley of 204 Scenic Road, Fairfax, reported to San Rafael police Thursday that as he was returning a car to Haney and Whitt Auto Glass and Upholstery Shop at 1818 Second Street, a pellet was fired through the windshield near Second and E Streets. The car belonged to Scripture Oldsmobile Co. at 740 Francisco Boulevard.

A 7-by-10 foot plate glass window in the showroom of E. F. Sweeney British Cars at 523 Francisco Boulevard was broken by a pellet gun last Saturday. Edward C. Fitzpatrick of 472 Redwood Avenue, Corte Madera told police that although it happened Saturday, he did not get around to reporting it for the company until Thursday.

A windshield in a Chevrolet truck was broken at the North Coast Distributors at 735 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael. Eugene L. Brandlein of 307 Laurel Place, San Rafael, told police it was broken last Sunday, probably by a pellet gun.

Registration Set For Kindergarten

Children who will enter kindergarten in San Rafael next September may be registered at any of the San Rafael elementary schools next Wednasday or Thursday between 9 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., Supt. Frank L. Lucas has announced.

To meet legal age requirements for kindergarten, a child's birthdate must be on or before Dec. 2, 1956. This must be supported by a birth certificate, baptismal certificate, or other evidence presented at the time of registration.

Ex-Clerk's Aide Appeals For Two Weeks More Pay

A former deputy county clerk, who left the county job after an argument with his boss last month, appealed to the Marin County Personnel Commission yesterday for two weeks additional pay.

Doyle Trent Cleveland told the commision at a 25-minute hearing that County Clerk George S. Jones wrongfully dismissed him on the spot when he gave his boss two weeks' notice that he was quitting.

Clevéland, 38, lives with his wife and four children at 1110 Cambridge Street, Novato. He had worked for the county clerk for six years and was drawing $431 per month.

The personnel commission, headed by Chairman Julius H. Selinger, took the case under submission and announced that its findings would be turned over to the Marin County Board of Supervisors within 15 days.

I-J Gets Fire Report During Call On Survey

The I-J's Ellen Adamson was calling the Heath home on a telephone survey when suddenly Mrs. Phyllis Heath yelled: "Please hang up. The house is on fire!"

Heath explained later that while he was telephoning, electrician Dante Mazzoni from Bowman Electric of Corte Madera, had called out "fire!" He turned the phone over to his wife and dashed for the garden hose.

Mazzoni said he was installing an electric heater in the bathroom and had gone into the attic to make electrical connections. Suddenly, "there was a big flash." He suffered singed eyebrows and arm.

Ex-Clerk's Aide Appeals For Two Weeks More Pay

A former deputy county clerk, who left the county job after an argument with his boss last month, appealed to the Marin County Personnel Commission yesterday for two weeks additional pay.

Doyle Trent Cleveland told the commision at a 25-minute hearing that County Clerk George S. Jones wrongfully dismissed him on the spot when he gave his boss two weeks' notice that he was quitting.

Cleveland, 38, lives with his wife and four children at 1110 Cambridge Street, Novato. He had worked for the county clerk for six years and was drawing $431 per month.

The personnel commission, headed by Chairman Julius H. Selinger, took the case under submission and announced that its findings would be turned over to the Marin County Board of Supervisors within 15 days.

I-J Gets Fire Report During Call On Survey

The I-J's Ellen Adamson was calling the Heath home on a telephone survey when suddenly Mrs. Phyllis Heath yelled: "Please hang up. The house is on fire!"

Heath explained later that while he was telephoning, electrician Dante Mazzoni from Bowman Electric of Corte Madera, had called out "fire!" He turned the phone over to his wife and dashed for the garden hose.

Mazzoni said he was installing an electric heater in the bathroom and had gone into the attic to make electrical connections. Suddenly, "there was a big flash." He suffered singed eyebrows and arm.

To Make Field Trip

A Chapter of Occult [illegible]

A very curious, if not extraordinary [illegible] has recently come to light, and is [illegible] attracting the attention of [illegible] circles in Great Britain. We [illegible] the facts, and present the principal [illegible] to our readers. The title of the [illegible] vs. The Attorney [illegible] American re[illegible] an important one, [illegible] a gen[illegible] which [illegible] the historians of the country, [illegible] because it lifts a corner [illegible] the veil [illegible] are as follows:

[illegible] Jane Horton [illegible] the plaintiff's name [illegible] petition [illegible] claim [illegible] Duchess [illegible] the grand-daughter [illegible] the female [illegible] of [illegible] royal [illegible] Henry Frederick Duke of [illegible]berland [illegible] died intestate in the [illegible] 1790.—It appears that on the [illegible] day of March 1767, his Royal Highn[illegible] Henry Frederick Duke of Cumb[illegible]nd, the brother of George the Th[illegible] was married at the house of Lord Archer in London, to Olive, the daughter of the Rev. Dr. James Wilmot, who was at the time highly honored in court. This lady, Olive, was the daughter of a private marriage contracted by Dr. Wilmot with a Polish princess, daughter of Stanislaus, King of Poland. Miss Wilmot having found favor in the eyes of the Duke of Cumberland, he offered his hand and was accepted. The ceremony was performed [illegible] father, Dr. [illegible]mot, and [illegible] by King George the Third, the celebrated Earl of Chatham (William [illegible] the Earl of Warwick, and Lord A[illegible] in whose house the marriage took [illegible] The certificate of this marriage a[illegible] duced in court, duly attested, rea[illegible] follows:

"I hereby certify that I marrie[illegible]

"to Olive Wilmot, March 4, 1767,
"such marriage having been duly sol-
"emnized according to the rites and
"eremonies of the Church of Eng-
[illegible] (Signed) J. WILMOT,
[illegible] "G[illegible]

On the 3d day of April 1772, Olive, the lawful wife of the Duke of Cumberland, was delivered at Warwick of a female child, who was also named Olive. The certificate of the birth of this child as appeared in proof is as follows:

"Olive, the daughter of Henry
"Frederick, Duke of Cumberland, and
"Olive, his lawful wife, born April 3,
"1772, at Warwick.

"J. WILMOT,
"ROBERT WILMOT.
(Signed) "J. DUNNING.
[illegible]

[illegible] baptized [illegible] as the offspring of the Duke of Cumberland, and was declared by the Earl of Warwick; but was afterwards re-baptized by directions of the King, so that she might pass as the child of Robert Wilmot. Mr. Dunning, afterwards created Lord Ashburton, wrote in relation [illegible]

"I [illegible] are [illegible] Cumberland's [illegible] legal, by command of the King."—

His majesty also made a provision of £500 a year for the infant daughter of the marriage, "until a more suitable "provision could be made for her."—The King afterwards issued the following:

"GEORGE R.—We declare the birth "of Olive, the infant of the Duke of "Cumberland, by Olive his Duchess, "to be legitimate, who is condemned to "privacy by the act of bigamy com-"mitted by her royal father.

(Signed) "CHATHAM,
"DUNNING,

(Signed) "WARWICK,
"J. WILMOT."

The marriage of the Duke was kept secret, and the child, Olive, passed as the child of Mr. Robert Wilmot, and resided with her grand-father, Dr. Wilmot, at "Barton on the Heath," until her marriage with one John Thomas [illegible] 1792. She remained ignorant of her royal birth [illegible]15, when the [illegible] by the Earl [illegible] Third in his will bequeathing [illegible] of Cumberland [illegible] their and [illegible] the same privately, to our said [illegible]e, for her use, as a recompense [illegible] the misfortunes she may have [illegible]n through her father."

[illegible] Warwick made the Duke of [illegible] acquainted with the facts, who [illegible] recognized Mrs. Serres as [illegible] His Royal Higness when [illegible]ed, wrote thus:

"Should I not recover, I recom-"mend my dear cousin Olive to my "wife, who will, for my sake, love and "serve her until she recovers her loyal "rights. I solemnly recommend my "daughter to revere the Princess Olive "of Cumberland for my sake.

"EDWARD."

And again—

"If this paper meets my dear Alex[illegible] "andrina's eye, my dear cousin Olive [illegible] daughter [illegible] for my sake [illegible] one [illegible] and "serve, should I depart this life."

[illegible] account of her mother and herself to the amount of £100,644, and also £105,320, as a bequest from the royal family of England.

Serres, the father of the petitioner [illegible] more than twenty years ago, leaving six children, whom she has creditably supported ever since.

There are many other minor details corroborative of the main facts which are interesting, but which we must omit for want of space. Suffice it to say, that the court before which the case is pending, has clearly intimated the right of the petitioner to the claims which she has advanced; and little remains but to pronounce judgment in her favor. Is not this the romance of History?

☞THE AUSTIN INTELLIGENCER, has been permitted to publish the following extract from a letter written by General Houston to an old friend, which defines his position thus;

"You say it is reported that I am for secession. Ask those who say so to point to a word of mine authorizing the statement. I have declared myself in favor of peace, of harmony, of compromise, in order to obtain a fair expresion of the will of the people. Dangerous as may be the precedent inaugurated by the Convention, before the majesty of the law, which recognizes its power to submit the question of disunion to the people, I yield in the same spirit that actuated Andrew Jackson in paying the fine arbitrarily imposed on him at New Orleans. I am determined that those who would overthrow law shall learn no lesson from me. I still believe that secession will bring ruin and civil war. Yet if the people will, I can bear it with them. I would fain not be declared an alien from my native home in old Virginia, to the scenes of my early toils and triumphs in noble Tennessee. I would not, of my own choice, give up the banner beneath which I have fought; the Constitution which I have revered, or the Union which I have loved and cherished as the glorious priceless heritage bequeathed me by my fathers.

Sixty-seven years of freedom, the recollection of past triumphs and suffer[illegible] of heroes whom I [illegible] would haunt my [illegible]ps [illegible] may perhaps have made me too devoted to the Constitution and the Union, but be it so. Did I believe that liberty and the rights of the South demanded the sacrifice, I would not hesitate. I believe that less concession than was necessary to frame the Constitution will now preserve it.

Thus believing, I cannot vote for se-[illegible]cession. I have hesitated to say any thing on this topic, because I desire the people to act for themselves. My views are on record. Yet it is perhaps but right that my friends should know that the charge that I am for secession is false. If I err in holding on still to the skirts of my venerated old mother, Virginia, and the foster-mother which matured me from boyhood, glorious Tennessee, my countrymen will forgive me, as they have forgiven me for many other things I have done. I am willing [illegible]nist for [illegible]ury ad-[illegible]n of a [illegible]whom it [illegible]arolina. But isn't there some danger that so many cannibals might some morning eat up for breakfast all the white folks in that little State—and then start off to Florida for their dinner?

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

We Start The Observance Of Our 100th Birthday

Today we start the observance of our 100th anniversary.

The actual birthdate is not until next Thursday, but today with your Independent-Journal is being delivered the first of our four special historical sections.

We are particularly proud of these sections. Marin County has no written history. In telling the story of 100 years of the Independent-Journal, it was necessary to go back into the county's earliest days to find out how and why Marin County reached a stage where a newspaper was needed and could be successful on March 23, 1861.

One of our staff members, Dorothy Slattery Gardiner, has spent the major part of her time for nearly a year in historical research, collecting photographs and in writing most of the four editions.

She has had wonderful cooperation from old Marinites, Marin Historical Society, the libraries, California Historical Society and many other individuals and organizations.

We believe that the four special sections, printed without advertising as a public service, will indeed become a historical reference library.

From our first editions, when the couple of hundred Marin Journal copies carried stories in Spanish so many of the county's 3,500 residents could read them, until today when more than 29,000 copies daily reach practically every part of our county, the I-J's objective has been to fairly and factually reflect what is happening in Marin.

Because we believe that our four special sections reflect a condensation of this effort and in fact have true historical merit, we are giving to the County Board of Education 400 sets for distribution to the county schools. It is the hope of the county schools superintendent that he will be able to bind at least one set for every school library in every school in the county. In addition, he plans to give additional unbound copies to every school for classroom use.

We hope that you too will enjoy these sections. And we invite you also to help us celebrate our birthday by paying us a visit. We will hold open house at our San Rafael office on the evening of Friday, March 31. There will be conducted tours of our plant. You are invited to drop by.

The Lowly Kumquat

We have suddenly developed an unexpected respect for the ignominious kumquat. Up until recently, we had regarded it as the lowest form of citrus fruit.

But not at all — their small fruits are as plump and tasty as plums. The "trees" are the size of house plants, but may bear 70 or 80 fruits. Of course, in our cool Marin climate, kumquats are generally hot-house plants.

In the Far East, the kumquat is a symbol of good luck and many boys in the family.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the 60 or so individuals who make up eight citizens committees advising the Novato Planning Commission in preparation of the new city's master plan. Meeting one or more times per week, these people are putting in long hours and doing a real service for their community.

BRICKBATS to Larkspur's new garbage ordinance which forces residents to pay for service whether they receive and need it or not; reasonable exceptions shouldn't be eliminated because they create "policing problems."

A BRICKBAT to Assemblyman Jack Schrade (R, El Cajon) for his resolution to allow each legislator two sets of license plates with his special district number on them. No two sets of plates should have the same number and besides one car with police immunity per legislator is enough.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

"FANTASTIC" BURGLARY NETS $50,000

Safe crackers showed a determination and thoroughness worthy of a far better cause when they stole $50,000 in Miami, Fla.

The police had only one word for the burglary—"fantastic." The thieves smashed two large safes to get at the money, knocking down a warehouse wall in the process. They rolled two other safes out on dollies and packed them into a truck. Apparently they came equipped with an electric drill. The whole job was estimated by police to have taken a good five hours.

All this time the night watchman was asleep in the room above. It was his first evening on the job.

"I didn't hear a thing," he told authorities.

The forces of evil don't stand a chance when good people are wide awake and do what they are supposed to. Otherwise the initiative goes by default to the unscrupulous.

Those who love God and their fellow men should use as much ingenuity to save the world as others do to wreck it.

Should Parochial Schools Get Aid?

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's education program, presented to Congress last week, is running full blast into the emotion-ridden controversy over federal aid to parochial schools.

Participants on all sides of the issue base their arguments on what they believe the Constitution allows or forbids.

The President's program calls for grants to public elementary and secondary schools, but omits either grants or loans for parochial schools. The President has said "aid" to parochial schools is clearly unconstitutional. However, Kennedy is requesting low-interest loans, for construction of classrooms, to both public and private, sectarian colleges. His proposed college scholarship program would make grants to both the student and his college, public or private.

LEADING AMERICAN Catholics say they will oppose the program if it does not include loans to parochial schools. While not asking for grants, the Catholic hierarchy says long-term, low-interest loans would be "strictly within the framework of the Constitution" and discriminatory not to provide them.

Since 1950, the government has granted long-term, low-interest loans to public and private colleges for dormitory construction. Sectarian colleges — and most non-public colleges do have a sectarian basis—may receive the loans, but colleges whose main purpose is the teaching of religion, such as theological seminaries, may not. The administration's college classroom plan works the same way.

Money for the education of a veteran under the GI Bill was given to the school, and veterans were free to choose any school, including a religious seminary.

UNDER TWO programs, the government aids parochial elementary and secondary schools.

The National Defense Education Act, passed by Congress in 1958, authorized loans to private elementary and secondary schools for the purchase of equipment to improve the teaching of science and mathematics. Public schools were given grants for this purpose.

The National School Lunch Act grants money to the states for the purchase of food for non-profit lunches in public and private schools.

None of these programs has been challenged in the courts on the church-state issue and there has been almost no controversy about them on the religious issue.

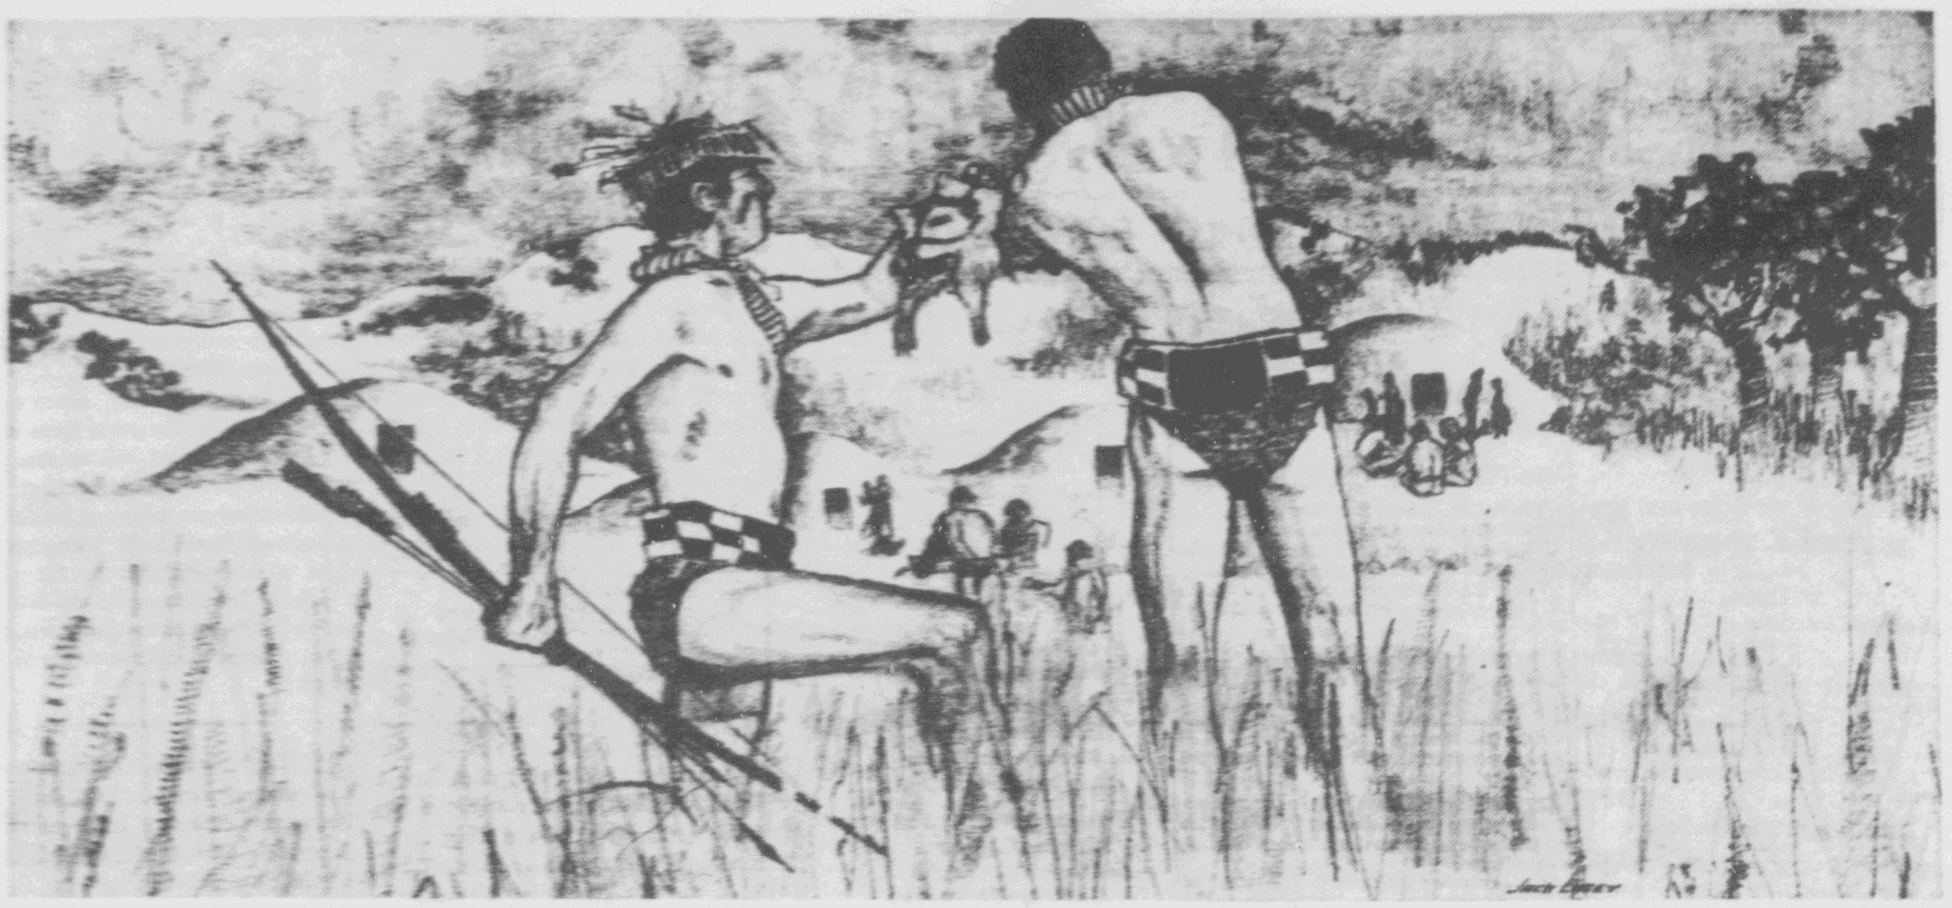
What Supreme Court decisions there are on the issue of the use of public funds for aid to religious schools were based on state laws. Although the justices often went beyond the immediate case to offer general opinions about the intent of the First Amendment, their decisions offer no clear guidelines on how the Court would rule on both existing and proposed federal programs.

AN AMENDMENT for loans to private schools was rejected by the Senate last year by a 37-49 roll-call vote. In the House, where the issue is considered explosive enough to kill a general education bill, a similar amendment was ruled out of order.

In the interest of getting any elementary and secondary school aid through Congress and of avoiding great embarrassment to President Kennedy, a Catholic, administration officials and school bill sponsors are hoping that a showdown may again be avoided in 1961.

The Country Parson

"The surest way to doom a man to failure is to arrange for things to come to him too easily."



INDIANS STALK GAME—The hills were overrun with wild herds of deer, elk and bear. The Indians were expert hunters. They also ate the mussels and sturgeon they took from the waters off the Marin coast. The grey-robed Franciscan taught them to plant crops and eat vegetables and fruit. The padres also brought the horse to California. The Indians became hard riding vaqueros, who galloped across the Marin hills herding the long horn. Other Marin Indians became expert mariners of the waters of the Bay.

Newspapers Told Marin History

As an Indian land, as focal point for mission development, as the land discovered by Sir Frances Drake for the English in June, 1579, Marin's history spans far back into the past.

What is legend, what is fact, what is hard undisputable history? Much of Marin's very early history is mingled with pure story. Then came the keeping of records, one of the earliest of which was Drake's famous plate of "brasse," planted on Marin's shores when The Golden Hinde sought temporary refuge, and Drake's men made brief explorations. This much, say most historians, is fact.

It is legend that some of the ship's men stayed behind and intermarried with the native Indians.

Although Drake proclaimed the land Nova Albion, after his homeland, it was the Spanish who came to be earliest rulers. They left their records, too; much of the fact was contained in the early deeding of land grants, the turning over of vast ranchos to settlers.

Then came Mexican rule, and finally American. California became a state of the union. Villages and towns developed, and man had need for information and trading of ideas. Marin's first newspaper was born, and from then on there has been steady publication of events on every plane of human development.

It has been one hundred years since Marin's first newspaper was published. It is that event we now celebrate.

IN THE BEGINNING:

At First Marin's Valleys, Hills Slept, Then Spaniards Arrived

The canyons and hills were stocked with towering redwood, fir and laurel. Valleys dozed under a rich blanket of wild oats and tall grasses. The earth was moist and arable. Streams trickled down the sides of the palamino colored hills.

Brown-skinned Indians roamed the hills and plied the creeks and broad bay in tule canoes. The native lived off this land eating the wild oats and stalking big herds of deer and elk. They fished sturgeon and mussels from the bay waters and the clear running creeks.

THEY MADE THEIR homes in rush huts that frequently became vermin infested. But this was a simple problem to solve. The huts were burned to the ground and the tribe moved on to a new homesite.

Unmarried girls of the coastal Miwok tribe wore bracelets around the upper arm to designate a single status. The tribes were polygamous with the chief usually taking 11 wives, a sub-chief, nine and the average warrior, two.

In 1776, a detachment of Spanish dragoons crossed the San Francisco Bay and treked north to the area of the Olompali Indians, near the present site of Novato. The Indians were friendly and helped the Spanish leather jackets build a small adobe house.

FORTY-ONE YEARS slipped by. Then a worried Franciscan padre made a decision that awakened this sleeping area and stirred local Indians into a mood of rebellion.

Father Sarria, head of the flourishing mission of St. Francisco de Assis in San Francisco became alarmed that so many of his neophytes were ill and dying. He blamed the biting winds and coastal fogs for the illness that had overtaken his Indian charges and ordered a hospital mission to be built in San Rafael.

On Dec. 18, 1817, more than 500 sick neophytes were ferried across the Bay and moved to the new mission site on a six acre parcel of land surrounded by oak studded hills.

ONE OF SURVIVORS—After the California Missions were secularized in 1834 the local Coastal Miwoks were turned loose in a world they were not ready to cope with. Many died in smallpox epidemics and others from starvation. The few survivors were employed as domestics by the ranch-eros. (From "Tamal Land")

FIRST OF FOUR HISTORY EDITIONS

DOROTHY SLATTERY, a member of the Independent-Journal editorial staff, has worked for the better part of a year to produce from old files and countless interviews the history of Marin prior to and during the past century — the century of newspapering in Marin.

The first issue of the Marin County Journal was printed on a Washington hand press Mar. 23, 1861 in San Rafael. The Journal has been recording the story, the history, the growth of the county since that time. On the threshhold of a new century, we pause to look back at the past 100 years.

This is the first of four special editions that will tell of the days of the past.

Many other persons and organizations have been helpful in the production of this series. We would like to express our appreciation to the Marin County Library, Marin County Historical Society, Society of California Pioneers, California Historical Society, San Rafael Public Library and the countless historians and descendents of Marin early settlers who have shared their knowledge with us.

Nixon Is Coming To Marin Next Month

CHIP DAY

The plan is that Nixon will make an informal swing through Bay Area counties. He probably will meet in Marin with people from Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties who supported him in his successful campaign to carry California last November.

Just where the meeting will be held and of what it will consist is still to be worked out. One thing is certain; it will NOT be a fund raising event—no $100 a plate dinners or whatever.

On the contrary, it may well wind up as an informal kaffee klatsch sort of thing, or a buffet luncheon, where the former vice president will be strolling around with the other guests chatting.

He will come here from a day in San Mateo-Santa Clara counties and later the same day will move over to Contra Costa-Solano. San Francisco and Alameda will also have their Day With Nixon.

If he actually does make it, it will be the first time Nixon has set foot in Marin County since he ran for U. S. Senator against Helen Gahagan Douglas in 1950. Last time we recall hearing him in Marin was speaking to a handful of people gathered in Mill Valley's Golf Clubhouse.

It was a very dull speech. He's improved since then.

THE REPUBLICANS had a big last weekend in Sacramento. Marin Sen. John F. McCarthy introduced Gov. Norman Erbe of Iowa at a State Central Committee banquet. He told how the governor was born in Boone, Iowa, was educated in Boone, went away to college, came back to Boone to enter practice of law, married a Boone girl and now "the governor and Mrs. Boone have three fine children." The laughter so fussed him he took "pleasure in presenting Governor Boone," and the house about came down.

The governor himself, brother of Mill Valleyan Ellen Bergman, made a similar slip. Telling how well the Republicans had done in Iowa and California because of organization, he declared, "With this kind of organization, there is no excuse for a Republican landslide in 1962."

Carl Conelly of Santa Cruz, chairman of the County Central Committee Chairmen's Association, also urged full organization. "We've got to take advantage of our women," he boomed. As the chairmen roared, he fixed it: "What I mean is we have to make every use of them possible.""

It was quite a weekend in Sacramento.

MARIN - SONOMA Assemblyman William T. Bagley pushed Senator McCarthy's resolution urging federal aid to rapid transit systems through the Assembly, but not without a fight.

Final vote was 41 to 32 after Bagley was forced to call in the absentees to get his bare majority of the 80-man Assembly. Seems his fellow Republicans were loath to open a new field of federal assistance and most of them voted against him.

NOTICED AN ITEM in a column of one of those out-of-county papers which said directors of the Golden Gate Bridge are considering stringing colored lights on the bridge towers for the Christmas season.

This is an old suggestion turned down again and again by the bridge directors — a dead duck unless their new public relations man has something going.

ONE OF THE interesting things about the recent book-burning fiasco was why they had the extra books in the first place.

At a press conference recently they explained it.

Seems that instead of stopping printing books when they had the number ordered, they continue printing until all of the paper is gone. It "doesn't cost much more after the press is once set up." The reason they had extra paper was that they'd ordered 10 per cent too much to begin with for "spoilage."

Then after the books are printed, it doesn't cost too much more to bind them. So they do.

Of course binding them makes them unusuable for scrap paper, so they burn them.

All clear now?

Things get so quiet in the summer in western Illinois, mourns Joe E. Lewis, that the Mississippi River runs only three times a week.

A minor auto mishap brought a traffic cop on the run. He found an irate male motorist jawing away with the even more irate female driver of the other vehicle involved in the accident. The cop pulled the male motorist aside and whispered sympathetically, "If I was you, Bud, I'd settle here and now. After all, it's just your word against thousands of hers!"

Independent-Journal:

A belated "bouquet" to you for the fine editorial of Feb. 16 on Major Gen. Krulak's speech before the Freedom Forum at San Diego. We need more publicity of this sort. The Freedom Forums are doing a great service for Americans and our country, and I for one appreciate your recognition of it by giving it editorial space.

I had occasion a few weeks ago to hand you a "brickbat" for your editorial on the House Rules Committee, the letter which you so kindly printed.

I wish also to thank you and commend you for the means you are using to increase your circulation and to make available to everyone the standard of our country — specifically your new American Flag offer.

I think it is a tremendous idea and one which I, and I know many others, greatly appreciate.

Keep up the fine work you can do to alert the citizens of our republic to awaken and to act in order that our constitutional freedoms will not be lost or adulterated.

Critic Didn't Tell Full Story

Independent-Journal:

As long as my name was mentioned in your paper by Leslie Smith, I feel it is my duty to reply, even to the point of lowering myself by doing so.

Mr. Leslie Smith . . . failed to mention the removal of the vast amount of eucalyptus trees (sale or otherwise) along Shoreline Highway 1 which was to Tamalpais Valley so much protection from the fog and wind from the ocean. Is it a question of whom the trees belong to that make a difference? Or what side you are on.

Also he failed to mention the sand that I gladly gave to the Muir Beach property owners for their road work whenever they needed it, and many others as well.

As far as old Highway 1 is concerned, if that's what the people of Marin want, I can get along with that, too.

But, when mothers' sons from other states in the service of their country visit our beautiful shores of Marin County to lose their lives or get injured on scenic Highway 1, something is wrong and someone is to blame for it.

The California Highway Department knows what kind of a highway is needed. Let them do the job which is theirs even if they don't intend to start for 10 years, as they so stated.

The More We Think About Being 'All-American' Better We Like It

Some sophisticated citizens of the county might pooh-hoo all of this to-do about Marin's being named "All American City."

But the more we think about it, the more we like it.

Sure, we have our ups and downs, but that's what makes this place so lively and interesting. Who wants a place with no ups and downs, just a flat expanse of land stretching to both sides of a straight state highway?

THAT'S WHERE we once lived—in a Central California town. The only relief from working in the hot vineyards was a quick dip in the irrigation ditch when Paw wasn't looking. By the time he got back, we were soaking wet, but he was never sure whether it was from perspiration or from the ditch.

A trip to an ocean beach was just about unthinkable. The closest we got was when we chugged off to the Kings River in an old Model A for a day of fishing. An eight-inch catfish hauled out of the little stream looked as good as a 20-pound bass out of Racoon Straits.

The only greenery for miles were grapevines and peach orchards. The only grass that abounded were called Johnson and Bermuda.

BY COMPARISON, Marin County sparkles.

Everywhere you turn, you see little gems almost every day. Just last Monday, a fellow tossed out his fishing line at Tiburon, got a strike and hauled in. He had snagged some old lines and hooks lost by other fishermen. And on those hooks were six big rock cods. He pulled in all six with the one cast.

If you don't believe it, ask Charles Roth of Tiburon. He was the one standing nearby, watching in astonishment as the string of cods came flopping out.

TREE PLANTING on city streets is in style. San Rafael, San Anselmo and Novato are putting out greenery in decorative containers.

San Rafael's Beautiful Committee reports that money for the trees is coming in at a fast clip on a voluntary basis from merchants.

But is it true that San Anselmo is already having some trouble? They tell me that on the day the concrete containers were laid out on the streets, one heavy container was promptly stolen.

The first grade alone has four sets of twins, and the school as a whole has seven sets.

CALIFORNIA'S Bear Flag must have been flying upside down for all these years at the San Anselmo city council chambers.

SAN RAFAEL is still red-faced for forgetting to invite Harry Heifetz to the grand opening of its Terra Linda firehouse.

Horses, Cattle Came To Marin

A year after the founding of Mission San Rafael Arcangel the rich brown earth, north of the Golden Gate had been struck for the first time. Orchards were planted on both sides of the L shaped adobe building and the horse and Spanish long horn had arrived on the scene.

Fine Arabian stock imported from Spain grazed on the hillsides and fat longhorns roamed over the Mission lands.

The grey-robed padres taught the Indian neophyte to dress, plant crops, tend livestock, ride a cow pony and navigate streams. The sick were nursed.

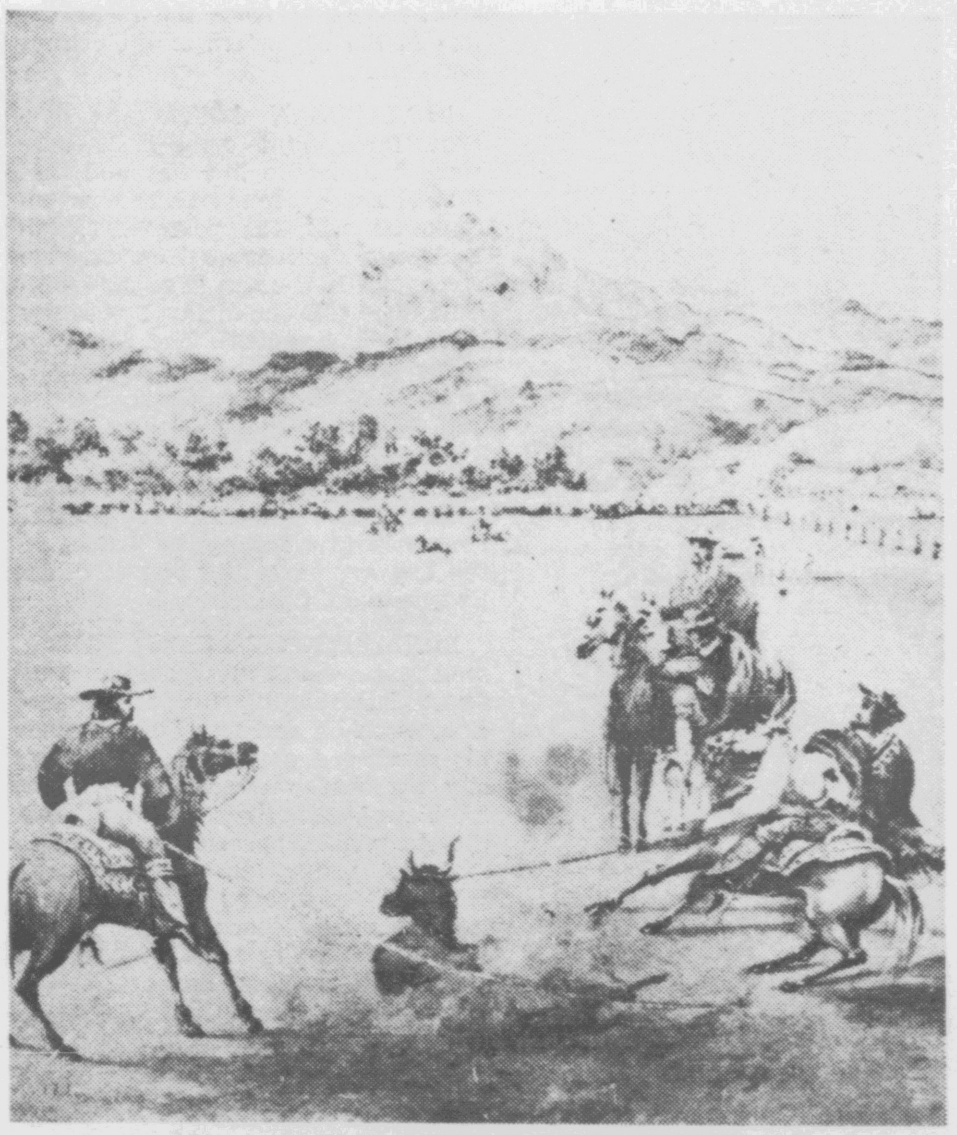
The Indian learned craftsmanship under the watchful eye of the Franciscan. The priests felt the land belonged to the Indian and that they were merely acting as guardians until the Indian had advanced to where he could manage his own affairs.

BUT WHEN California passed from Spanish hands into the Mexican realm in 1822 things began to change. The mission land was rich and it was wanted.

In 1834 the Act of Secularization closed the missions in California, the Franciscan was ousted and his Indian ward was turned loose in a world with which he was not ready to cope.

The result was eventual destruction of the Marin Indian, the disposing of large land grants and the birth of a new way of life that has never been equaled. It was the birth of an era called, "Paradise."

INDIANS CALLED MISSION "NANAGUANI"—But the Franciscan Fathers named it Mission San Rafael Arcangel when they established the 21st Upper California Mission in a flower-laden Marin valley in the winter of 1817. They erected an adobe rancho, chapel, baptistry and cemetery and dedicated it to St. Raphael "to care for bodies as well as souls." The original Mission was razed in 1861. (Courtesy of Mrs. Helen Ohman of San Rafael)



ON EVE OF RODEO—At an old California rancho, Mexican and Indian vaqueros worked together to round up horses and wild cattle. Usually two men worked together from horseback. One lassoed the horns while the second tossed his riata over the animal's hind legs. The riders reined back their horses jerking the cow to the ground. If they were slaughtering the beast, the vaquero working the hind legs dismounted and plunged a knife into the animal's neck. (Society of California Pioneers)

Mexicans Granted Ranchos; Era Was Called 'Paradise'

From the mountains falling off to narrow valleys to the grass covered plains, Marin was wild, wide open and untamed. Then six men arrived in the 1830s, took land, stocked ranchos and civilization was born.

Marin began to progress.

THE OLD INDIAN chief, Marin, the last of the warriors died quietly in the Mission at San Rafael and was laid to rest in the church graveyard. The Mexican government closed the Missions, the Franciscan padres left the land they found and "paradise" dawned in the eastern skies.

The man who opened the eden of the Spanish-speaking pastoral was born in Dublin, Ireland.

John Reed was only a boy when he jumped ship in San Francisco Bay in 1826. He was given quarters at San Francisco presidio.

WHILE ON an excursion across the harbor straits he saw land he coveted for his own, and when he was 21 petitioned the Mexican governor at Monterey to grant him the Rancho Saucelito. Reed was a man who wanted to get things done. Before the grant was approved he moved across the Bay and pitched camp.

But the government said no to Reed's request. The land was too valuable as a military holding. A disappointed Reed packed his things and shoved off for the north. Again he set up camp and asked the government for a grant, this time in Sonoma County, but before the governor could reply hostile Indians had driven Reed back to the Presidio.

THE HEAD OF THE Mission Dolores in San Francisco felt sorry for Reed and made him major-domo at the San Rafael Mission, but six years later Reed was back on the Rancho Saucelito, again petitioning the government for the grant.

This time Reed built a wooden shanty and opened a ferrying business. He plied his small boat back and forth between Marin and Yerba Buena Island before the governor agreed to give him an 8,878-acre grant directly across the bay from the Rancho Saucelito.

The Corte Madera del Presidio included the Tiburon peninsula to the south, Mill Valley to the west and the sloughs of San Quentin to the north.

REED HIRED Indians at Sutter's Fort to come south and work at his rancho. He bought basalt stones from the Russians at Fort Ross and built the first saw mill on the land in the tangled, timber stacked forest at the western end of his grant.

He fenced the land, planted orchards and imported cattle. He dressed like a Spaniard, he spoke Castillian, went by the name Juan and became a don when he married into California aristocracy in 1836. His bride was Hilarita Sanchez, the youngest daughter of the commander at the Presidio. Reed was not yet 30.

The age called "paradise" was staring the land full in the face.

"Can My Fur-Type Coat Be Dry Cleaned?"

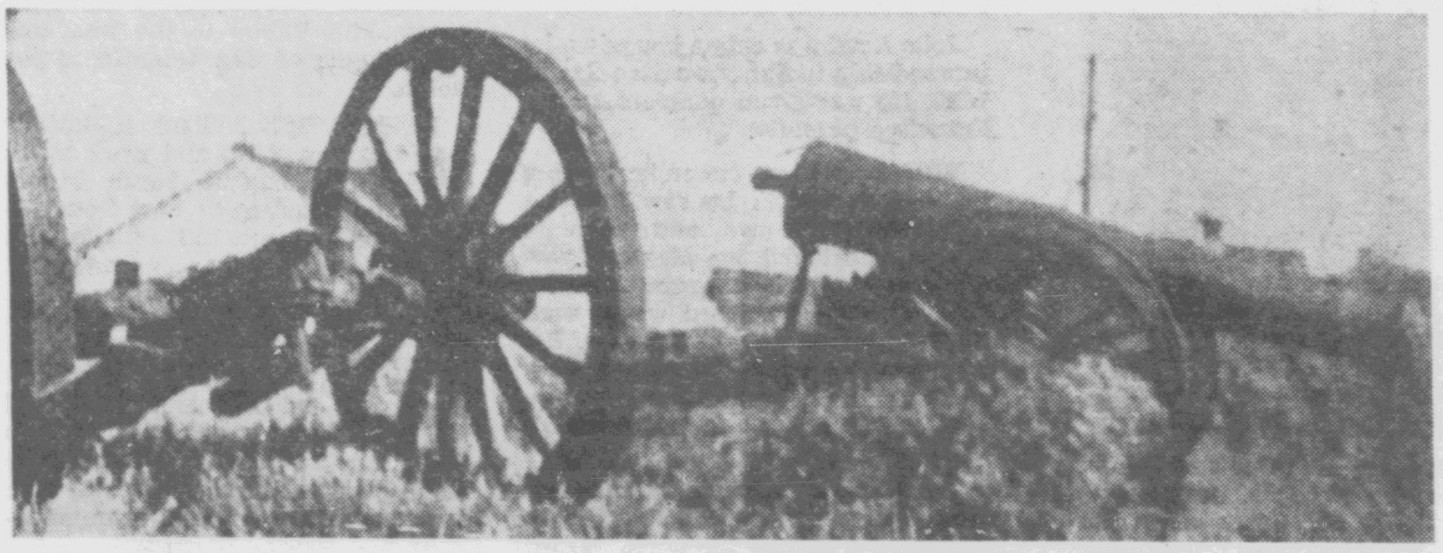
This is the season that these coats begin to show soil and wear. Naturally, you want to restore your fur-type coat as nearly as possible for future use. Therefore, you should take your coat to an authorized Fur Frost cleaner.

Deep pile fur-type coats, as you know are luxurious in appearance and feel; however, in wear they tend to mat down and the fibers sometimes bunch together and "tuft." The amount of tufting depends upon the fiber content, fabric construction, finished amount of wear and method of cleaning. The pile on knit-back types is usually deeper than those with woven backs and the former are most likely to tuft. If your coat is made of Wild or Tussah silk pile, which resembles seal, it will not tuft like synthetic piles. It will dryclean. Because these fabrics are of a synthetic nature, heat such as exposure to a hot steam radiator or a cigarette burn, will permanently mar the fabric. Nothing can be done to restore it after this damage.

However, if your deep pile fur-type coat has had normal wear and care, drycleaning by an authorized Fur Frost cleaner, who knows how to handle it, for it must be treated differently than ordinary garments, will clean and preserve it for you to wear again and again.

CAPTAIN'S SON—Stephen J. Richardson is pictured attending a meeting of the Native Sons of the Golden West in San Rafael after the turn of the century. Describing his boyhood on the Rancho Saucelito he reminisced, "Sometimes, it is true, it makes me sad, to think of all the Rancho being gone. As a boy I used to ride, chasing the cattle, climbing the steep mountain sides followed by our vaqueros . . . and how wild it was then and so beautiful." (Marin County Historical Society)

IN 1852—Richardson's Rancho Saucelito was the social mecca of the Bay Area. During the American military occupation of the 1840s many a young officer including William Tecumseh Sherman courted Richardson's young daughter, Mariana. But the high spirited senorita, called the "most beautiful girl in California" by her admirers spurned their proposals, whipped the United States Rifle Team in a shooting match and married a Peruvian, Manuel Torres. (Marin County Historical Society)



FIRST FOG SIGNAL—This cannon, replacing Richardson's pilot boat manned by a crew of eight Indians and moored in the Bay, was placed by the United States government on a bluff near Point Bonitas in 1855. During the foggy weather it was fired every hour and a half both day and night. During the days of Mexican rule Capt. Richardson's pilot boat sped to the side of all ships demanding entry to the San Francisco Bay. Richardson was appointed captain of the Bay in the 1830s. (From "Tamal Land")

Business Born As Richardson Came To Land

When an English whaler moored in the waters off the San Francisco Presidio in 1823, the young first mate was sent ashore to buy provisions from the Mexican officials.

When he arrived at the adobe outpost he spotted a beautiful, young girl. She was the daughter of one of the most prominent early California families. The Englishman stayed at the outpost for dinner, an evening of fiesta and dancing.

Before starting back for his ship early the next morning, young William Richardson glanced again at the blushing Maria Antonia Martinez and decided he wanted to stay at the Presidio.

But how? He was an English officer and his conscience would not allow him to jump ship.

HE SAT SADLY in the small boat as a Mexican crew rowed him to the waiting whaler. He was long past due.

The captain, irate at having been kept in the raw, empty port by a wandering first mate berated the young Richardson as soon as he reached the ship. Words led to blows and Richardson downed the skipper. The captain ordered Richardson off.

Richardson must have laughed to himself. This was exactly what he had wanted.

TWO YEARS LATER Richardson married Maria at the Mission Dolores in San Francisco. Later he built the first house in the pueblo that was to become the city of San Francisco, was the first man to chart the waters of the Bay, and in 1835 was named chief of the port of Yerba Buena by the Mexican governor at Monterey.

By 1836 Richardson had fallen in love again. This time with a sprawling piece of land. A wildly beautiful stretch jutting from the clear waters of the bay north of the harbor entrance.

RICHARDSON ASKED the governor for a grant to the 19,500-acre Rancho Saucelito but was told that it had already been given to Jose Antonio Galindo, the prior year. Galindo was destined to later become a corporal in the San Francisco militia and to fall out of favor with the Mexican government. The Saucelito grant was placed in Richardson's name in 1838.

RICHARDSON PREDICTED a metropolis would grow on the sand dunes surrounding the San Francisco Presidio and was assured that his ranch one day would be a twin city across the straits. He tapped fresh running springs running down the steep hills, barreled it and sold the first water in San Francisco. Whale boats moored in the waters lapping at the shore of his ranch, also bought water from Richardson and fresh beef from him and other Marin ranchers.

BUSINESS WAS BORN in this wild land that only a few years before had been Indian hunting grounds.

The bay was called "Whaler's Bay" by the visiting seamen, but before the second cinch of progress was tightened, the same waters were known around the world by the name of the man who opened Marin's first embarcadero: Richardson's Bay.

FIRST ALCADE, WIFE—Don Ignacio Pacheco and Senora Ignacio Pacheco entertained at lavish parties and fiestas held at the 6,660 acre land grant given to Pacheco in 1838. On the south it was bounded by Las Gallinas, the west by Rancho Nicasio, the north, Novato, and the east, San Pablo Bay. Pacheco was appointed San Rafael's first alcalde (mayor) in 1845 and had an office in a large room in the abandoned mission. After Pacheco's death in the early 1860's, his widow, the former Dona Maria Loreta Duarte, married James Black, wealthy Marin cattleman. (Marin County Historical Society)

Early Settlers Were Tallow, Hide Dealers

Rafael Garcia who had come to Marin as a young soldier stationed at the Mission in 1817 was given a 30,000-acre grant running along the Inverness Ridge overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Garcia almost single handedly put down an Indian uprising in San Rafael in 1824, and 10 years later the grateful Mexican government paid its reward. Garcia immediately moved his family to his new rancho, to a site that is now near Olema. The first family to settle the wild land had arrived.

A FEW YEARS LATER Garcia gave the 8,920-acre Rancho Las Baulinas to his brother-in-law Gregorio Briones, former alcalde of Contra Costa and San Mateo, keeping the larger Baulines de Tomales for himself.

The two dons, dressed in their velvet coats and rich serapes instituted a flourishing business.

Their Spanish long horns were slaughtered in the fall for the tallow. The vaqueros galloped their wild, vicious looking horses into the middle of the herd, selected the animals to be used and stabbed them to death with long lances. Indian helpers stripped the suet from the carcasses and placed it in large blubber pots brought to the ranchos by visiting American whale boats. Later the tallow would be poured into large bags made from strips of the animal's hide. Each bag held 25 pounds of tallow.

Prior to 1840 Garcia had pioneered farming on his rancho. He ordered potatoes planted, and when the crop came up had it stored in sacks on a cliff near Wild Cat Beach. But before the potatoes could be picked up by the trading schooners, a land storm sliced away the cliff dumping the potatoes into the ocean. That was the end of farming on the rancho and Garcia happily returned to the profitable hide and tallow trade.

Another Army man, Ignacio Pacheco, whose family had arrived in Upper California with the D'Anza expedition in 1776 was given a 6,660 acre grant he called Rancho San Jose in honor of his birthplace. Later it became the site of the present town of Ignacio.

ANOTHER SPANISH speaking pioneer Don Antonio Osio received Angel Island as a grant. He stocked the island with cattle and sheep and placed it under the management of a majordomo.

Large grants began to mark off the wilderness. Paradise was staked out. To the east, west, north and south, long horns grazed, adobe haciendas were built by Indian laborers, vaqueros rode stallions over the hills, and guitars strummed at fiesta time.

SAN RAFAEL'S FIRST HOME—This two story tile-roofed hacienda was erected by Don Timoteo Murphy in 1844 on a site later to become Fourth and C Streets. Five years after Murphy's death in 1852 the County courthouse was transferred from a hall in the old Mission to this adobe purchased from Timothy Mahon. (Courtesy family)

Timoteo Murphy Befriended Indians, Constructed San Rafael's First House

He was a hunter, one of the best, when the governor gave him a mammoth land grant. Later as a land baron, he built the first home in San Rafael, was appointed alcalde (mayor), befriended the Indian and spoke his Spanish in an Irish brogue.

Timoteo Murphy was a giant of a man, standing six foot, two inches; his bones were large and he weighed more than 200 pounds. His stance was straight, complexion fair.

MURPHY'S SENSE of humor made him legendary among the Californians. Sitting at the head of his massive dining room table he told visiting Spanish rancheros hair-raising tales of the banshees in Ireland or patted his own huge frame that towered over the shorter, thinner visitors, and roared that in Wexford he was considered a mite of a man.

He roamed the land, rifle over his shoulder. He was a hunter and sportsman who had arrived in California in 1828 when he was 28 years old. He had left his Irish homeland to take a job with an English firm in Lima, Peru and was sent to Monterey by Hartnell and Co. to superintend exporting of beef from the port.

Later he made a living trapping coastal otter.

In 1837, the Mexican governor appointed the hunter Indian agent for the 1,400 Indians living in the Marin area. Murphy was a good provider for the people who had been mistreated and knocked from pillar and post since the Mission had been closed five years earlier.

He secured a 57,000-acre land grant for his wards in the Nicasio Valley and turned it into a flourishing rancheria called Tinicasia. In 1844, Murphy was given a 22,000-acre grant for himself by a grateful Mexican government. Called Rancho San Pedro, Santa Margarita and Las Gallinas it extended from the Rancho Nicasio on the west to the San Pablo Bay on the east.

Don Timoteo Murphy stocked his ranch with blooded cattle, merino sheep, pedigreed swine and big-boned horses to support his bulky body. He successfully managed Indian affairs until the American occupation in the 1840s, was appointed alcalde in 1844 and built the first hacienda in San Rafael.

THE BRIDE — John Lucas brought Maria Sweetman back from Ireland in 1855. She was 26 years old when she arrived as mistress of the Murphy ranch. While many Marin pioneer women galloped across the golden hills cross saddle, Mrs. Lucas would always be seen sitting very erect side saddle. (Courtesy family)

HEIR TO RANCHOS—The lands of San Pedro, Santa Margarita and Las Gallinas went to Timoteo Murphy's young Irish-born nephew, John Lucas. Murphy, who never married, brought his brother, Mathew and a sister's boy, young Lucas to his Marin rancho from Ireland in 1849. When the 52-year-old Don died unexpectedly three years later he willed his northern ranch lands to Lucas and the southern portion to his brother. (Courtesy family)

LUCAS HOME RANCH—Home situated in what is now the heart of Terra Linda was built by John Lucas for his wife in 1863 on a 2,340 acre stretch banked by rolling grazing land, trees, flower gardens and orchards. Shortly after the turn of the century the ranch passed from the Lucas family to the Freitas family and in recent years has been called "The Freitas Home Ranch." (Courtesy family)

FIRST BORN—First child of the Lucases, Alice, was the only one of five to marry. Four other children died at birth. She married Patrick Cadogan in 1877 when she was 21. She met her future husband, a native of Ireland, while he was visiting the Santa Margarita Home Ranch. She became the mother of five children. (Courtesy family)

LOOKING OUT OVER his property under Richardson Bay, George Zaro contemplates its future development. He has already converted once "swamp land" into dry land and plans to continue the conversion. His final goal: A multi-million dollar waterfront apartment project. (Independent-Journal photo)

Meet George Zaro, Developer

By PAUL MILLER

George Zaro will be 70 in two months, lives in Greenbrae and was born on an island in the Adriatic Sea. He had a priest cousin who was shot down in front of his parish by Communist Party agents, and an uncle who was exiled from Yugoslavia for running up an American flag over his home on the Fourth of July.

George Zaro has been a restaurateur since he was 12. He speaks five languages, was a soldier, has more than 600 relatives in San Jose, and in 1945 he saved his wife and himself from an inferno that leveled his own nightclub. In that decade he bought some 49 acres of land, most of which was under Richardson Bay. He is now lessor of Sabella's restaurant on some of that once wet property and plans to develop the rest of the land—most of which is now dry—into a multi-million dollar waterfront apartment project.

GEORGE ZARO'S story begins in Southeast Yugoslavia, a region along the Adriatic coast where the Dinaric Alps taper off to form the ancient province of Dalmatia. The region is known for its open, friendly people, its ports, fishing villages, olive groves and small off-shore island chain where the sun is extra bright in the summer, and the wind in the winter from the Adriatic and Ionian seas is piercing.

On the largest of these islands, Brac, in a town called Bobovisce, George Zaro was born. The day was April 11, 1892, 14 years after Yugoslavia (then Serbia) gained its independence from Turkey by the Treaty of Berlin, and 20 years before the Austrian government forced war on Serbia and brought on World War I. But by 1914 Zaro had been a resident of the United States for about eight years, his uncle Steve Zaro having sent for him from San Jose when George was 12.

As soon as he arrived in San Jose he went to work in the family eating place. It had been established by his grand-uncle in 1869 and was called Overland Restaurant. In 1908 the restaurant was renamed Zaro's. George recalls that it was there he learned the business the hard way.

"When I was learning to mix drinks I got some hard lessons. Just a pinch of bitters more than should go in a drink and my uncle would raise my ear no matter who was watching. I learned that I had to do things right, or not at all."

ZARO MUST have learned because when he was 16 his uncle would take business or fishing trips for weeks at a time and leave the responsibility of the restaurant in young George's care. This included a staff of 18 waiters and six cooks.

George Zaro inherited his business ability and energy from his father, Anthony, who was a wine merchant in Dalmatia. A wine merchant would buy wines from the peasants in the country and sell it to buyers in the cities. It was carried in the 1800s in sheepskin bags and poured into the barrels of buyers. Anthony Zaro traveled much. He was a friendly and gracious man who cared for the peasants who sold him their wine.

George was also proud of his grandfather, after whom he was named: George Gligo. Gligo was the captain of his own trading schooner that carried goods like olives, wine and wheat to Mediterranean ports. Captain Gligo was six feet, seven inches tall and had a reputation for being able to lift a mule off the ground, boasts his grandson.

NOT IN HEIGHT, but in spirit and energy, Zaro takes after his grandfather. George Zaro sits on the edge of his chair when he talks. As he speaks of food, government or land, his eyes get wide, and his voice is loud and resembles Edward G. Robinson. After his opinion is expressed, Zaro may sit back and smile or laugh, but only for a moment.

He speaks five languages: English, Italian, Croatian, Spanish, "if people speak or write slowly," and Latin which he learned as an altar boy. He can also understand some French and Portuguese.

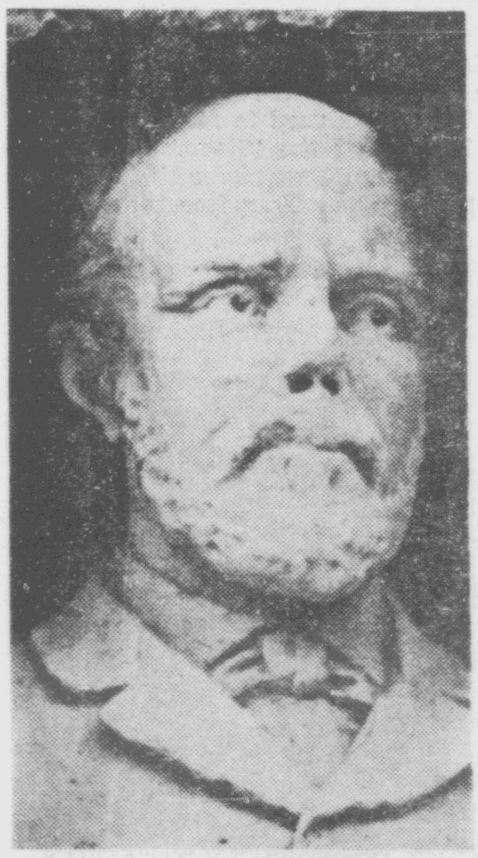
OVER THE HILL—One of the first to make it over the Sierra, pioneer James Miller is pictured standing in front of his palatial Miller Manor in Gallinas in the late 1860s or early 1870s. The Millers arrived in Marin in 1844 after crossing the plains in the first wagon train to make it into California. On that trailbreaking trip that marked the beginning of an era, the Truckee River was named, and the last third of the California Trail opened. The Miller family had come to the New World from Ireland in search of political freedom. They settled on the 1400 acre ranch in Las Gallinas, built the first shake house north of San Rafael, adopted the Spanish tongue and became one of Marin's leading families. (Courtesy, Mrs. Adolph Lietz)



FROM VIRGINIA—Dr. Alfred W. Taliaferro was 28 years old when he arrived as a member of the Virginia Mining Co. and settled in San Rafael. A very popular man, the young physician was elected to the California Assembly from Marin in 1851. He also served as a State Senator and was vice-president of the first San Rafael board of trustees. Later he became the first prison doctor at San Quentin. This bust is over his grave at Mt. Tamalpais Cemetery. (Independent-Journal photo)

FREMONT, KIT CARSON

The eighteen-forties were furious.

He led his men into the frontyard of the Rancho Olompali, owned by the Indian Camilo Ynitia, and made a fast moving charge at the horse corrals, just north of present day Novato.

MEN POURED from the house and sprang from behind the trees surprising the attacking Americans. Ford ordered his men to dismount and scramble for cover behind trees. The California forces of Joaquin de la Torre and Juan N. Padilla, ran for their horses.

The Americans let go a volley of fire at the mounted California force driving the horsemen back. Soon the Californians were seen galloping over the hills into San Rafael leaving their dead behind.

In the previous week the Mexican military commandant at Sonoma, Col. Mariano Vallejo, had been seized by a small group of men dressed in greasy hunting clothes. These men declared California an independent state, lowered the Mexican colors and hoisted the bear flag of the California republic.

Fremont had come to join in the search for Padilla and de la Torre. Meanwhile, after hoaxing the American forces, the California counter revolutionaries slipped across the bay with the help of the Richardson family at the Rancho Saucelito and an infuriated Fremont who set up camp at the Mission ruins in San Rafael.

Fremont forced Don Timoteo Murphy to provide fresh horses, and secured more mounts from Richardson. Fremont, ostensibly in California on a map-making venture, declared himself the leader of the Bear Flag movement shortly after the capture of Vallejo.

LATER THREE well-dressed Californians stepped from a boat at the creek within view of the Mission. Fremont blandly told Carson that he did not want to be bother with prisoners. It has been said Carson approached the Californians, drew his gun and fired. Lying face down in the dirt dead were three of the most prominent and best loved men in California: the aged Don Berryessa and his two 21-year-old nephews, the De Haro twins, sons of San Francisco's alcalde.

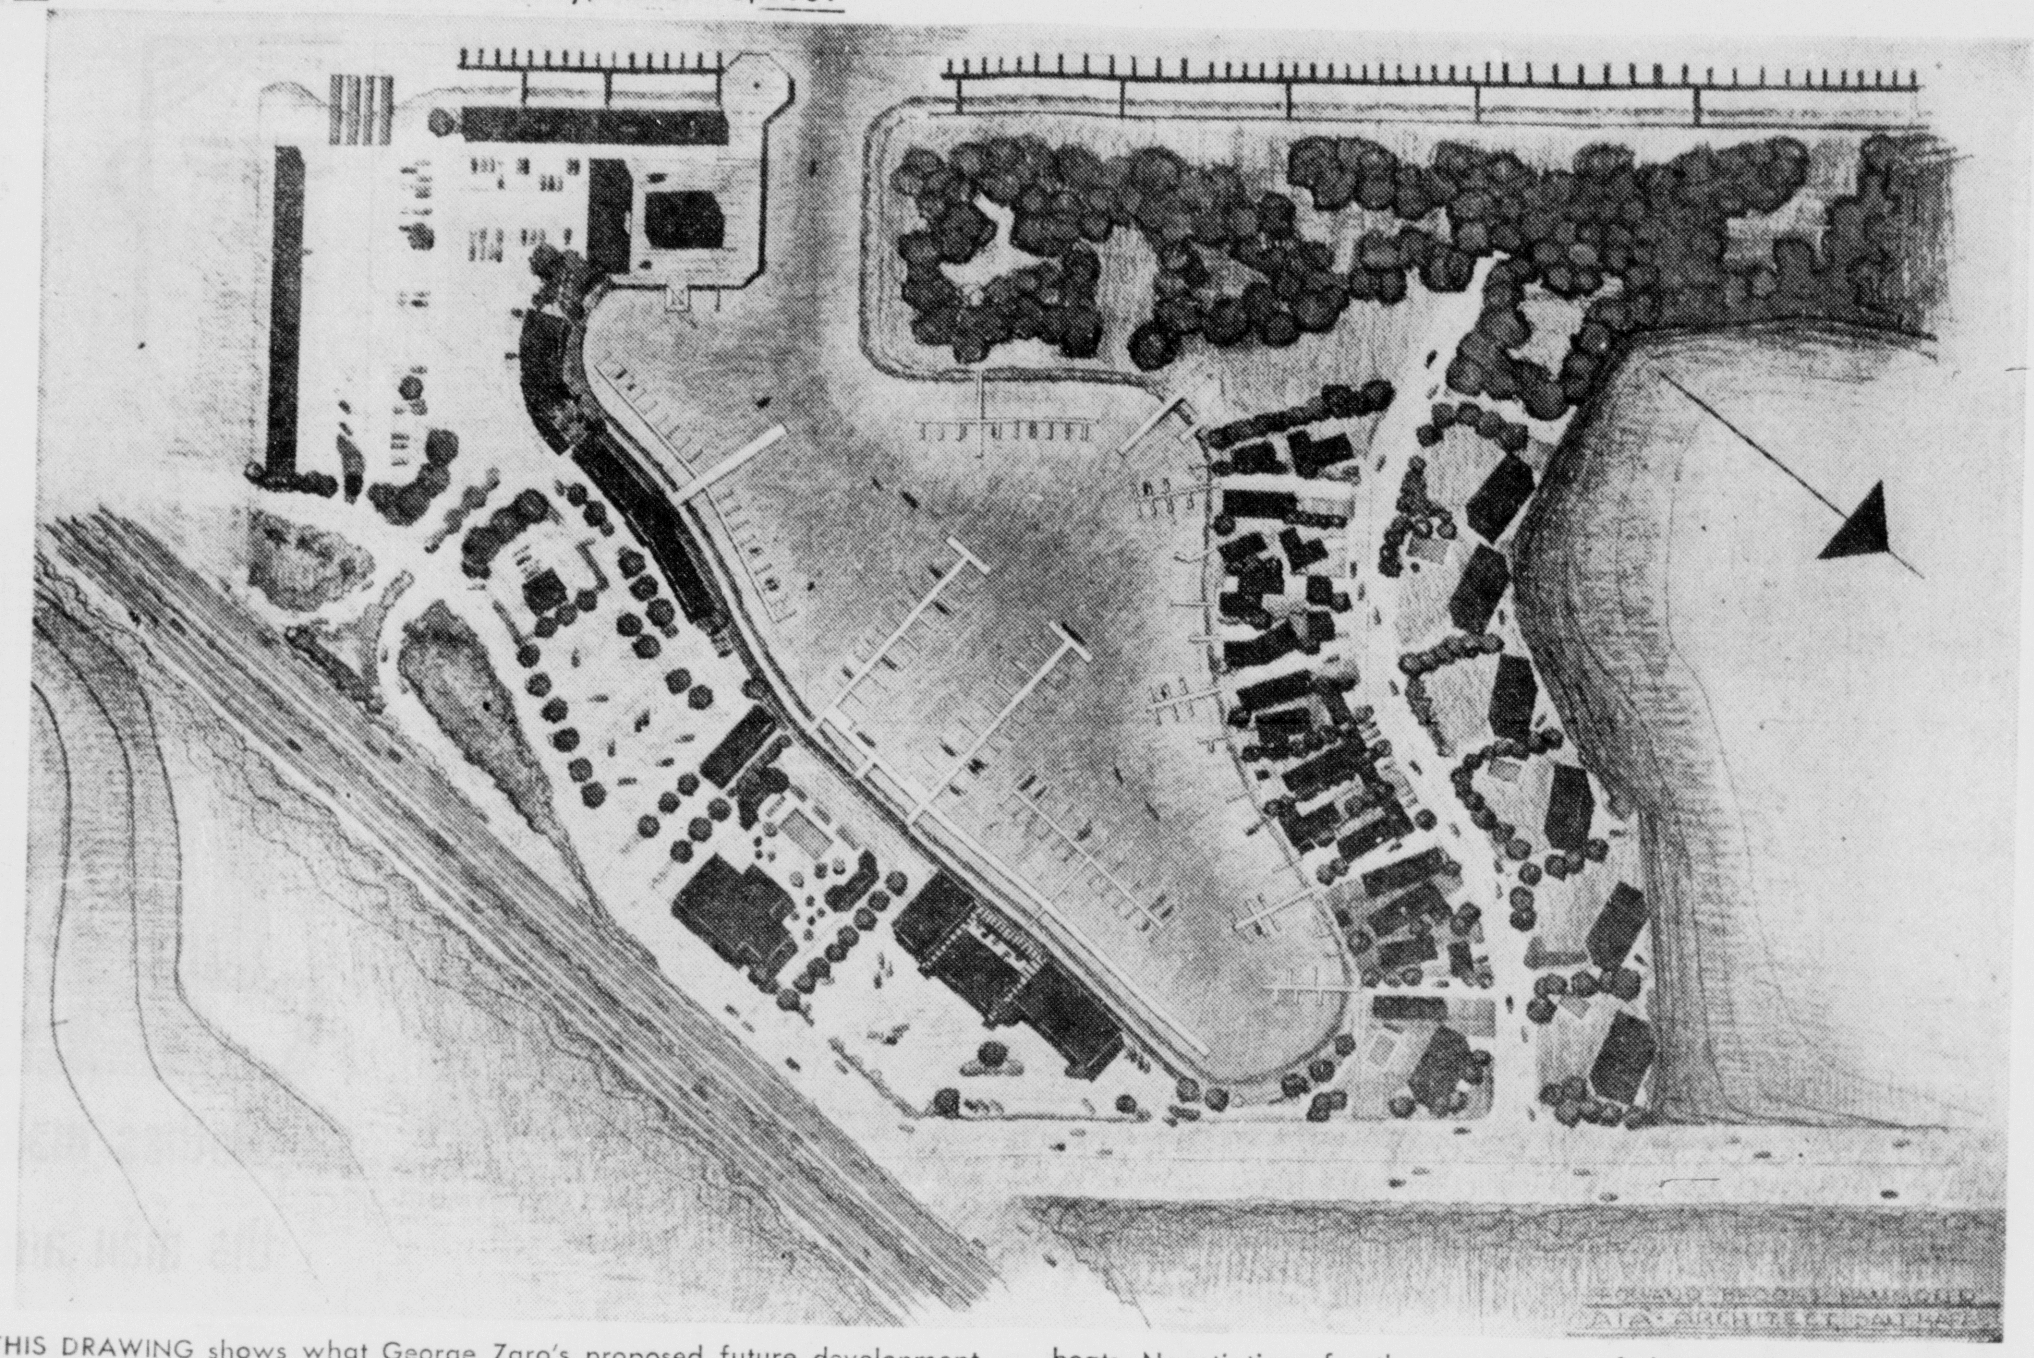
On July 9, 1846, the American flag was raised in the public square at Yerba Buena and on Aug. 12 word reached California that Mexico and the United States were at war.

FIVE MONTHS later after a bloody fight, Mexico capitulated and California became a United States territory. In 1848, the same year gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill, the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo was signed annexing California to the United States.

But Fremont left another mark on Marin and the surrounding Bay Area. Looking down on the harbor entrance coursing between Lime and Fort Points he uttered the name that was going to stick: The Golden Gate.

Three years later this gateway became one of the busiest bodies of water in the world when gold was discovered hidden in the Sierra.



THIS DRAWING shows what George Zaro's proposed future development program for Richardson Bay will look like when completed. The multi-million dollar apartment project will have a dock capacity for some 400 boats. Negotiations for the construction of the apartments is now under way. "God put us on earth to do things, to develop for future generations . . . ," Zaro believes.

not present, two dramatic events are related to his family in Europe. July 4, 1889, uncle Steve was visiting the Zaro home after he had been in America. It was the Fourth, so his uncle flew an American flag from the top of the family house. The problem was that he failed, purposely or otherwise, to put up an Austrian flag beside it. (At that time the Austrian government governed Serbia.)

"Gendarmes surrounded our house and my uncle was told to leave the country within 36 hours. He did not want to go because my grandmother was old and the family believed she would go anytime."

As it turned out the Austrian government and Steve Zaro battled in the courts in Vienna for two months. Steve lost his case and had to return to America.

"Ironically," recalled George Zaro, "my grandmother not only did not pass away soon, but she lived for more than 20 more years!"

The other drama unfolded in the 1940s. George had a cousin shot down by agents of the then newly established Communist Party. He was Father Chrrgin. He died in the dust in front of his own parish in Mirce, Yugoslavia. The holes of stray bullets are in the door of the village parish to this day. Father Chrrgin had spoken out against the Communist form of government.

ZARO SAYS his mother, Mrs. Marjeta Zaro, now living in San Jose, expresses the family attitude toward the totalitarian tactics of a communist regime. "You see, Tito took all the property: Orchards, vineyards, olive groves. My mother, when his name is mentioned, goes into a rage and says she would wring his neck like a chicken."

Mrs. Marjeta Zaro will be 91 this month. She has borne and reared 15 children. Five sons and five daughters are still living. Residing in San Jose are Mrs. Rita Visch, 67; Mark Zaro, 65; Mrs. Milena Jurras, 64; Mrs. Vojsava Slavich, 61; Nick Zaro, 57; Stephen Zaro, 52, and Mrs. Mary Goulart, 48. And living in Berkeley is Mrs. Zorka Scarich, 58.

George's father came to American and settled in San Jose a year after George. He died in 1934.

"When people used to ask him if he was going to take a holiday and go back to Dalmatia, he would tell them that he could see all the beauty the world had to offer right along the coast of California," said his son.

It was about 1910 that young George Zaro began to get restless. After feeling he was learning all he could learn about a certain phase of restauranting, he begin to wander to other establishments and then back again. His cafe circuit from about 1910 until 1942 included the Grand cafe in Reno, Nev., and in San Francisco the Black Cat cafe, Alturas nightclub, the Dante cafe and the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins hotels.

One evening that first year, 18-year-old Zaro was carving a steaming duck in Dante cafe. "The famous maitre d' of the Fairmont Hotel, Boserini, was visiting the Dante and and after watching me carve, came over and asked if I would come over to the Fairmont. He said he wanted to have some fun with the old timers (waiters)."

ZARO WENT. He said his first assignment was to carve two pheasant in front of a party of six. He said the regular waiters watched anxiously and were mystified at his dexterity for being so young.

George Zaro stayed at the Fairmont for several months and then left to return to San Jose, then to Reno again, and then back to San Jose.

"I would get bored with one place. And I wanted to learn new things in new and different places," explains Zaro.

He was in San Jose when World War I broke, and he was one of thousands of Californians who enlisted in the "Fighting Grizzlys" field artillery division (40th) to fill its quota within 24 hours after volunteers were sought.

Zaro suffered injury to both his foot tendons and arches during the first days of Army drilling.

"We slept on the floor of the barracks and drilled in our own shoes. Both of my arches were broken."

Zaro was given a medical discharge and returned to work in Reno, but felt that he was obligated to serve in the armed forces and wrangled his way back into uniform to become an interpreter. And for the remainder of his military career he was stationed at the San Francisco Presidio.

AFTER THE war Zaro attended Hills Business College in San Jose from where he was graduated. He then went to work as assistant auditor for the city of San Jose and attended night school in San Francisco.

"I commuted to San Francisco three and four nights a week so I could pass a CPA (certified public accountant) exam. We had six to eight hours of homework a day and after four years I began to see figures in my sleep.

The effort was too much for Zaro's body and he was hospitalized for three months following a recurrence of his foot trouble. After 13 months in foot and leg braces, he was well enough to go back to his restaurant circuit which this time began in Reno and ended in San Jose in 1937.

Four years earlier Zaro had married his San Jose sweetheart, Theresa, whom he had been going with since 1915. She died April 9, 1951.

"She was a hard worker and loved by all she knew. She had a heart bigger than a lion," says Zaro in tribute. Just before her death, she and Zaro resided in a beautiful home at Rio Del Mar near Santa Cruz. He had built it especially for her. Zaro still keeps the home and opens it to his friends to use for a weekend, or vacations.

AFTER HIS wife's death Zaro was a sad and lonely man and lived under this shadow for almost a decade. Then in 1959 he met Mary George of San Francisco. Now Mrs. Mary Zaro, she and her husband live in a large, modern and pleasant apartment at 35 Corte Lenosa, in Greenbrae. Mrs. Mary Zaro is a friendly woman and has had to put sheets over the living room rug because all the neighbor youngsters come in and out, knowing she will keep them stocked in goodies.

"Eventually I became his trusted employee and did any job he wanted at the Hopkins or the Fairmont."

Fortunes For Ranchers In '49 Gold Rush

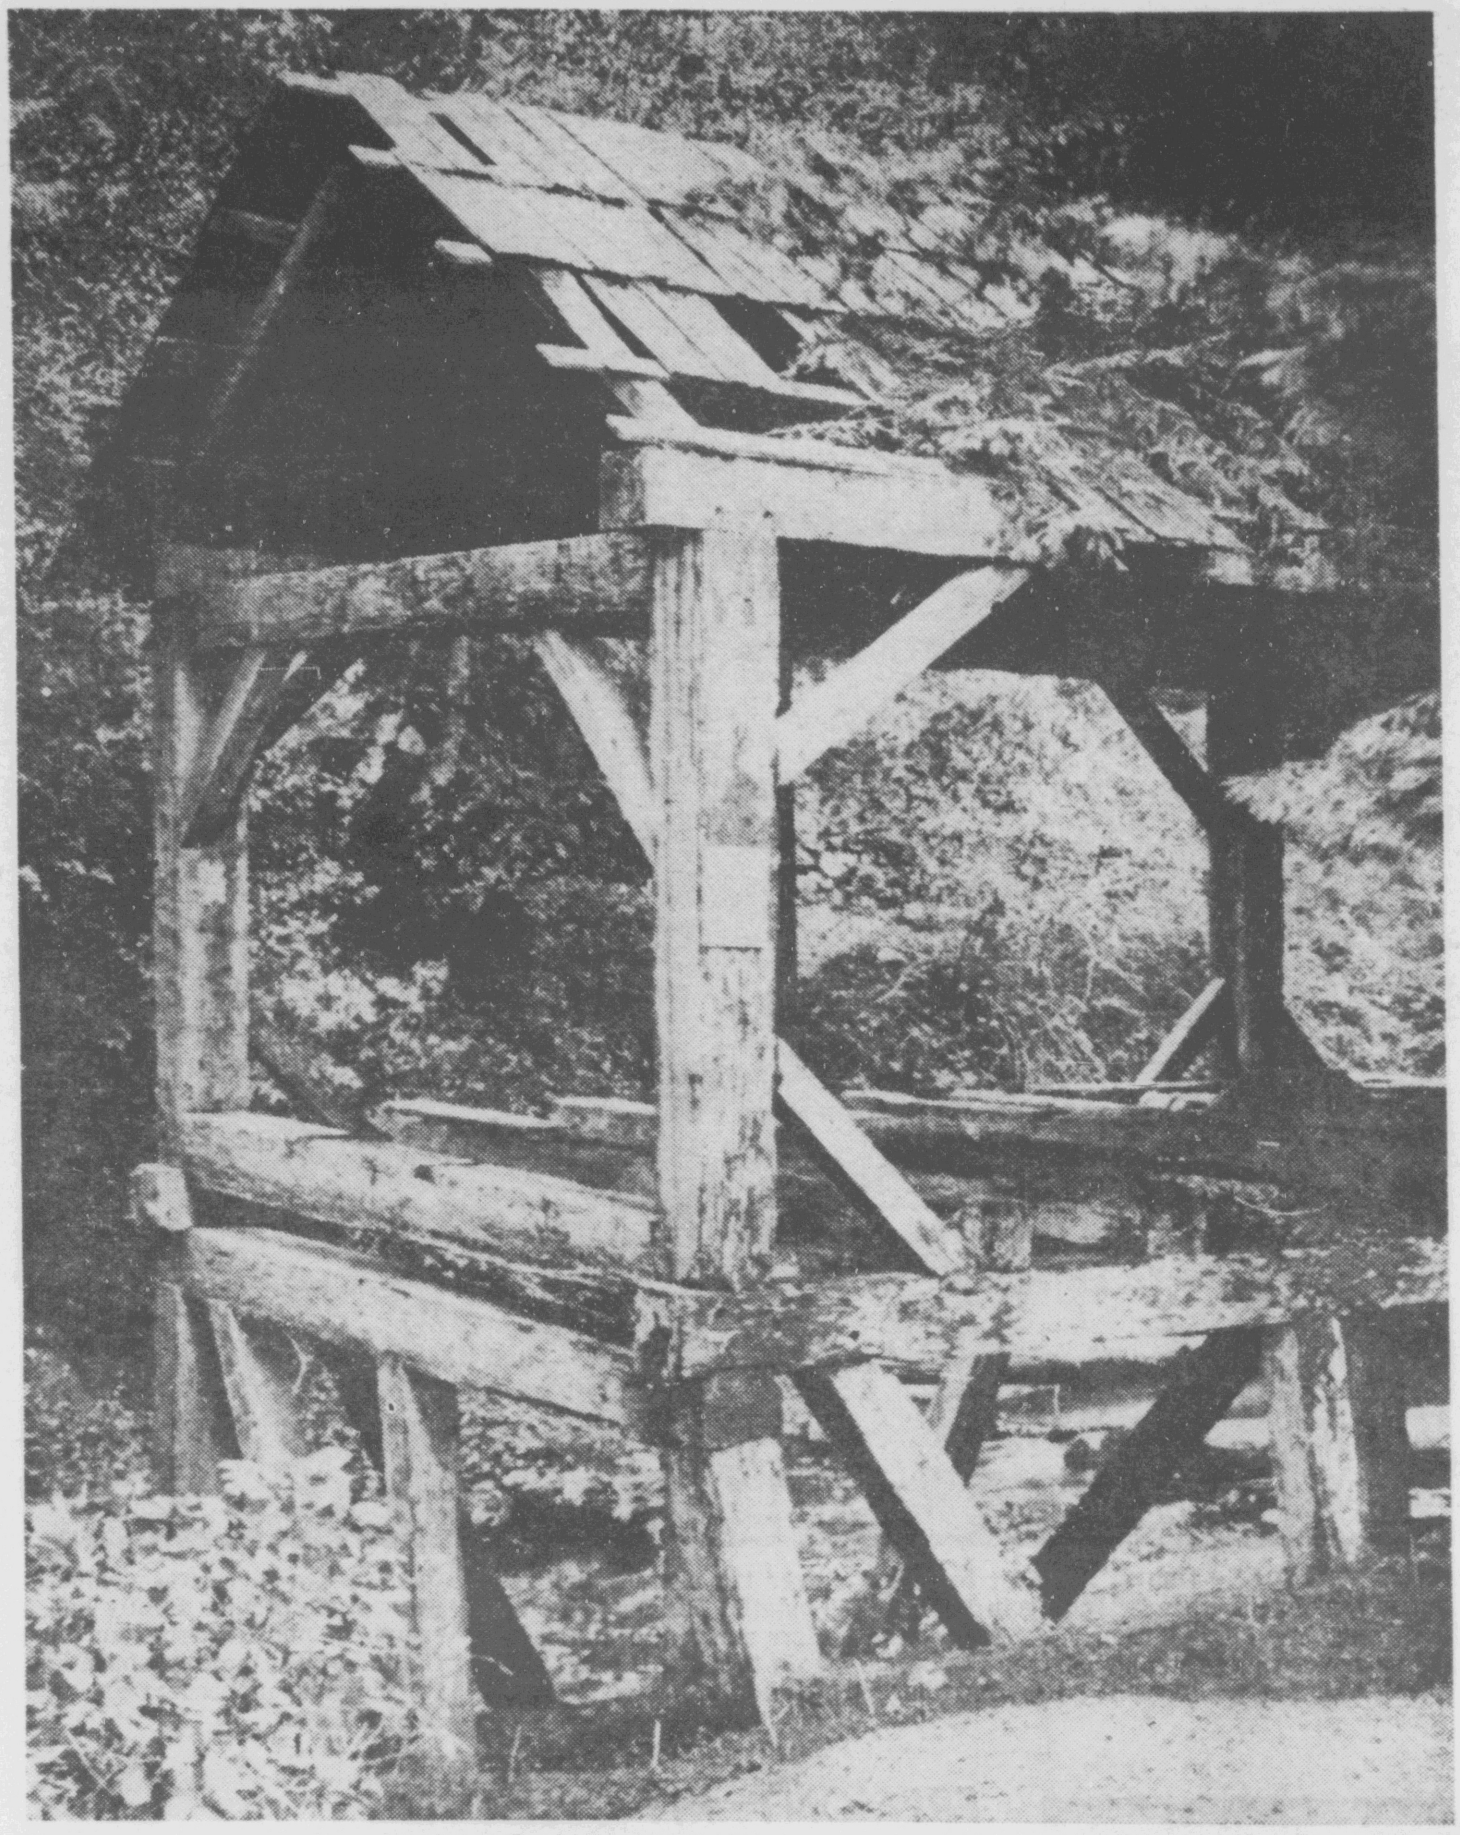
Don Timoteo Murphy and the young grandson of Paul Revere who settled in San Geronimo during the 1840's led a party of 30 rancheros, their Indian servants, 100 horses and 200 head of cattle to the Sierra gold fields in 1849. The cattle industry was born in Marin and San Rafael was on its way to becoming a "cow town."

But the cry "gold" grew fainter as men died in the fields and the pay dirt trickled out. Many wandered back across the Sierra or staggered into San Francisco to book passage for home. Others remembered the land they had seen on the way to the gold fields and decided to stay, to settle.

SOME OPTIMISTIC settlers even tried to mine gold in Marin in the Nicasio and San Geronimo valleys during the 70s but when they didn't hit pay dirt they turned to ranching, digging their heels into the abundant earth.

A new era was born. The quiet was shattered by the graveled sound of crude wagon wheels and the splintering of falling timber.



OLD MILL—It stands on the site John Reed selected for the first saw mill in Marin in 1834. The pioneer sawmill in the County that was to become the timbering center of the Bay area was run by an undershot wheel. Redwood was stripped from the slopes of Mt. Tamalpais and fir was taken from the canyons of west Marin to build the city of San Francisco in the late 40's and 50's. In the 40's tan bark oak and laurel from Marin was used to make knees for whalers damaged rounding the "Horn." Later this same wood was used as fire wood for the residents of waterless, treeless San Francisco. (From "Tamal Land.")

BERNARD MILLER'S WIFE, Emma Senter, came from Santa Clara County. The young Millers settled in the Nicasio Valley and became the parents of three daughters. At one time a convicted murderer at San Quentin wrote Miller requesting parole and a job on the ranch. A family friend on hearing of the incident asked if the family wasn't worried having a murderer on the place. Miller shot back: "Why? He isn't mad at us." (Courtesy Mrs. Adolph Lietz)

WHEN BERNARD MILLER was 6 years old, in 1862 his father, James, donated the land for the Dixie School to be built near the Las Gallinas home ranch so his son would have a school to attend. The elder Miller also erected an adobe house in San Rafael between Lootens Place and Lincoln Avenue in the 1840s. In 1849, the father built the first school in San Rafael. Bernard, the youngest son, was born 104 years ago in the San Rafael adobe. (Courtesy Mrs. Adolph Lietz)

J.O.B. SHORT ARRIVED in San Rafael, from Kentucky, in 1847 with his mother, Mrs. Merriner and a brother, Jacob Short. They built the second house on the Court House block. At first the brothers repaired the old buildings of the Mission San Rafael and ran cattle in San Anselmo and the Nicasio Valley. J.O.B. later owned a large subdivision in the southwestern end of San Rafael. (Marin County Historical Society)

J.O.B. SHORT MARRIED Margaret Alice Hawkins. He became a prosperous landowner and his mansion at the foot of B Street became one of the social hubs of of the young city. Social life in those days combined many of the traditions of the Spanish and of the Eastern and Southern states' Americans. (Marin County Historical Society)

You Can Still Ride A Train In Marin

By DICK STEINHEIMER

The high cost of hauling railroad passengers has caused creased brows throughout the industry, and regular rail passenger service to Marin County is a thing of the past.

True, the passengers must ride in freight cars and top speed is only something like 15 miles per hour, but the service is friendly.

Adams, of Scotch parentage, came to the United States from Great Britain in 1947. To him the railroad on his two acre property is the expression of love for mechanics and railroading maintained since his childhood in Birmingham, England.

The roster includes one mock steam engine constructed by Adams from junk, spare parts and castings poured from his own patterns at the Joseph Secco Iron Foundry in San Rafael. "Steam" for the engine is provided in the form of 24 volts of electricity from several hundred pounds of storage batteries in the tender of the engine. A 24-volt motor with a five position throttle and chain drive sends power to the drive wheels.

The "passenger" equipment consists of a number of flat and gondola cars, all constructed from Adams' own design and patterns. The only assembled parts purchased for the cars were the automatic couplers.

The passengers usually sit two to a car on benches or boards set athwart the sides of the cars.

Perhaps because of being a professional railroader as well as an amateur one, Adams has seen to it that his pike is complete even to having an automatic block signal system and "spring switches." The spring track switches allow his trains to move around the reversing loops at each end of track without the necessity of stopping before re-entering the main track.

To top it off, he proposes to begin construction soon on a wig-wag crossing signal where his driveway crosses the tracks.

What about the managing of the crowds of kids and eager parents?

Adams has informally established that the kids are invited to see the railroad when the front gate is open to the Adams' drive.

How about discipline?

"If the kids get too rambunctous, which is seldom, why I just tell them to go home. And you only have to tell them once," Adams said.

WHILE THE present engine is electric, plans are already well under way for operation of the line someday with steam power.

In the Adams garage rests the frame and drive wheels of a future live steam engine which Adams painstakingly plans to manufacture and assemble.

On the sawhorse alongside the steamer is the underframe of a future gasoline driven locomotive to be constructed with Adams help by one of his young admirers, Sellar Nugent, 13, of Ross.

Sellar, a youngster knowledgeable about railroads and steam engines, plans to power the locomotive with a small Briggs and Stratton engine, using chain and belt drive.

Cattle Driven Down Streets Of San Rafael

Men poured into the peaceful land. Some came as soldiers in the Mexican War; others chased the scent of gold across the continent or oceans. Others were just young men trying to grab adventure by the tail.

Forests fell away before the eyes of these men. Sweat stained their red flannel shirts and callouses lined the palms of their sunburned hands.

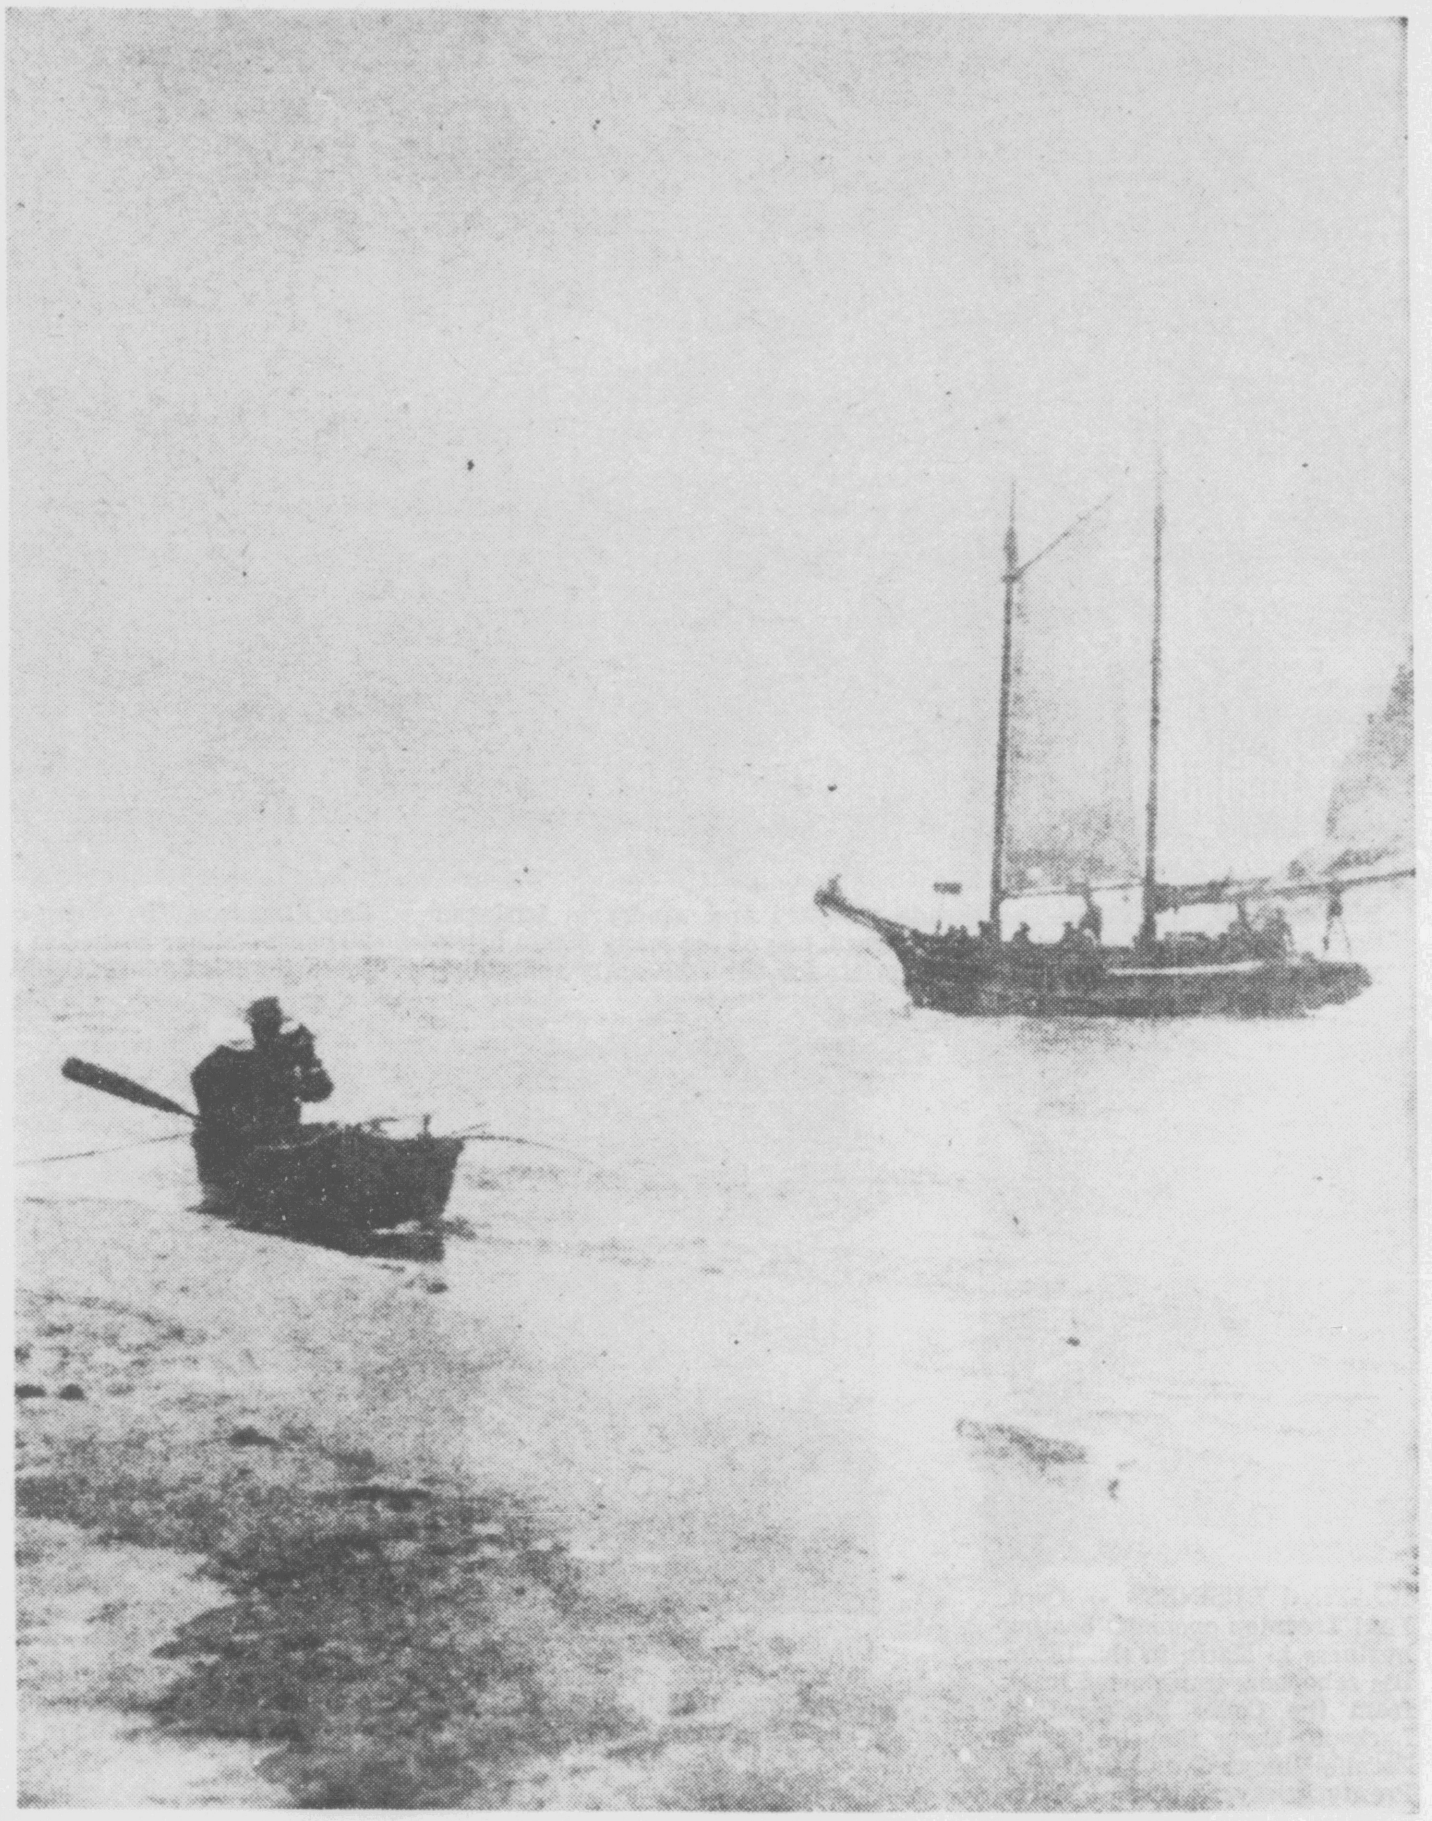
TREES WERE CUT, rolled, dragged, by straining ox teams over the pyramiding ridges running from Pt. Reyes to Olema to the Bolinas Harbor. The logs were loaded aboard schooners, shipped to San Francisco where a shanty town of tents and clapboard buildings began to grow into a city on the lumber torn from the Marin countryside.

Other woodsmen stripped redwood from the slopes of Tamalpais and the hills of Mill Valley and the flats of Corte Madera. These logs were shipped to San Francisco on the small boats that plied the navigable creeks criss-crossing the land. Redwoods were piled high on the pier at Ross' Landing (now the College of Marin site) waiting for the small barges to bring them to the booming San Francisco dock.

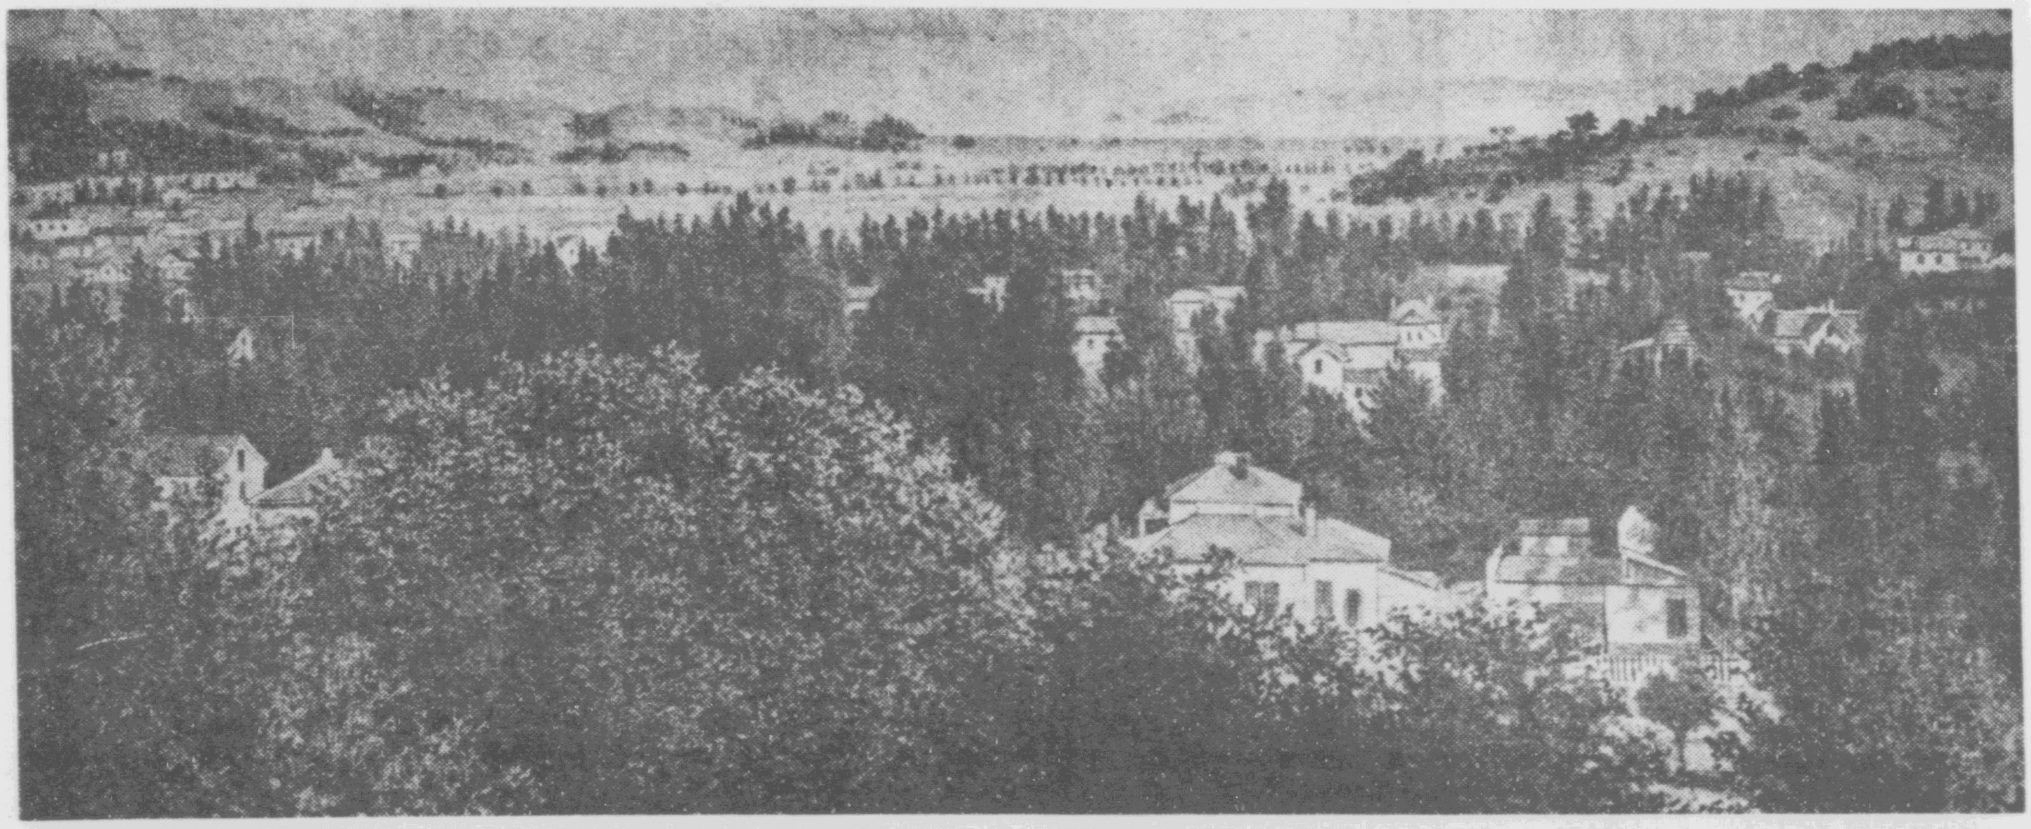
HERDS OF LONGHORN were chased over the hills by hard-riding, Spanish - speaking vaqueros. The herds were driven from the hills down into the basin and through the main street of San Rafael. (Now Fourth Street.) The thundering animals dug up screens of brown smoke with their sharp hooves, but the vaqueros drove them on to the slaughter house on the shore of the San Rafael Creek.

The beef was shipped from San Rafael four times weekly on Capt. Higgins old sloop "Boston." The Marin Ranchero was making a profit supplying the brawling city across the Bay with meat: a steer sold from $25 up. At least 100 head passed through San Rafael on the way to the slaughter house every week.

A town was beginning to grow out of the sleepy Mexican pueblo that had sprung from the Mission in 1834.



FIRST SAW MILL—First mill in the Bolinas area was at Woodville, called "Dog Town" by Capt Hammond in 1851. The area boomed and from the Bolinas Harbor, pictured here a few years later, an estimated 15,000,000 feet of timber was shipped to the San Francisco market on ships like these. Later dairying replaced logging as the chief industry of the area. (Courtesy Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas, Marin County Library)



EARLY SAN RAFAEL SUBDIVISION—The Short Brothers opened a section of western San Rafael as a subdivision when people began clammering for housing in the County Seat. Lots were laid out, houses built and a residential community took shape. The building boom hit the town in 1861. In 1850 there only had been 12 buildings in San Rafael and that number included both barns and stables. (Published originally by Marin County Journal in 1887) small family with no children of their own?

He's Got A Railroad In His Own Backyard

Adams was born in Birmingham of Scottish parents and there was raised among the industry of England's second city.

He attended the University of Birmingham and then hired out as student mechanical engineer for the London Midland and Scottish Railway and then for the London Subway System.

In World War II he became a locomotive engineer in a Railroad Operating Division in France. After the fall of France he was engaged in secret work, ending the war in the merchant navy.

THE WAR interrupted his plans to come to the United States so he worked for the subway system until 1947 when he arrived in the U.S.

"If it means anything to anyone, I took out my citizenship papers the day after I arrived," Adams chuckled.

In 1948 he began work with Northwestern Pacific Railroad at the Tiburon round house. He was later transferred to the Southern Pacific offices in San Francisco where he is presently working as mechanical engineer.

Adams and his wife were married five years ago. They have lived in Fairfax only one year.

Adams said he had built models in Britain and had talked about it after coming here. Then one day he and his wife saw a pair of old steam engine cylinders in a Marin County junk yard and he purchased them for $2, starting the spiraling empire.

"The size of the cylinders determined the size of the railway, which was to be the 7½-inch gauge," Adams said.

As to what was important, Adams admits that the backyard railroad was partially complete on the Fairfax two acres before house construction was even started.

He said they had fun on weekends coming to the site and working on the line and drinking lemonade in the shade of the oak trees on the lot.

TIES FOR the railroad came from scrap lumber and the small rails came from various parts of the state. Most were from small mining railroads.

Another attic project taking Adams skill as craftsman is the rebuilding of two live steam locomotives owned by Dr. L. L. Stanley of Fairfax. The locomotives were constructed in Marin county and have lain for a number of years, damaged by corrosion.

The most dramatic of the two locomotives is a breath of old-time England and of the era prior to Adams' birth. It is a scale steam model of a mighty "Stirling Eight-Foot Single," a type of fast express passenger engine built for the Great Northern Railway of England. It operated with a single 8-foot high drive wheel on each side of the engine. Fifty-three of the 4-2-2's were constructed and they hauled the majority of fast trains until the 1890's.

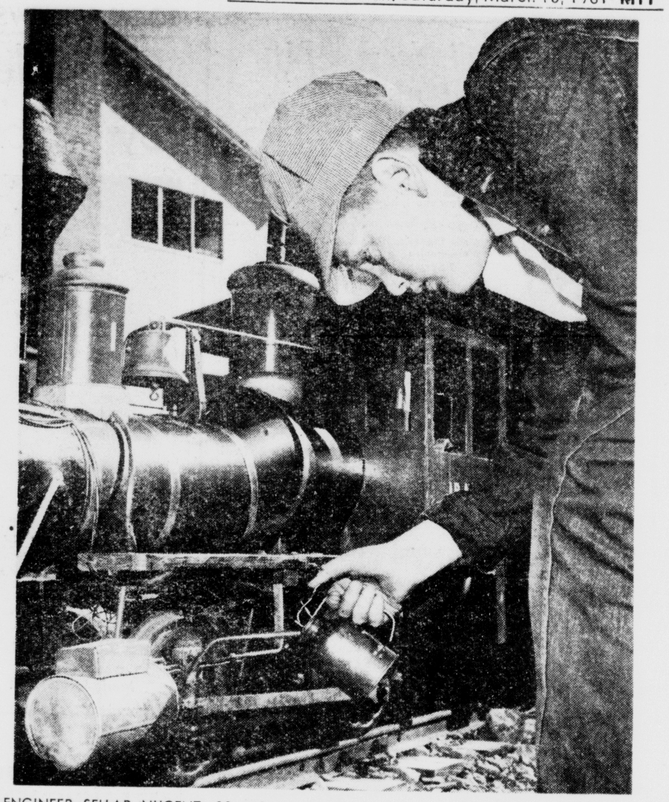
OUT OF THE roundhouse comes the "J. B. Adams" with engineer Gordon B. Adams aboard. The "roundhouse" is presently the basement of the Adams house where equipment is stored out of the weather. Adams plans to expand this covered area of the railroad.



ENGINEER SELLAR NUGENT, 13, oils the valve gear of the 7½-inch gauge "J. B. Adams" locomotive as it waits between trips on the Raccoon Gulch Lines in Fairfax.

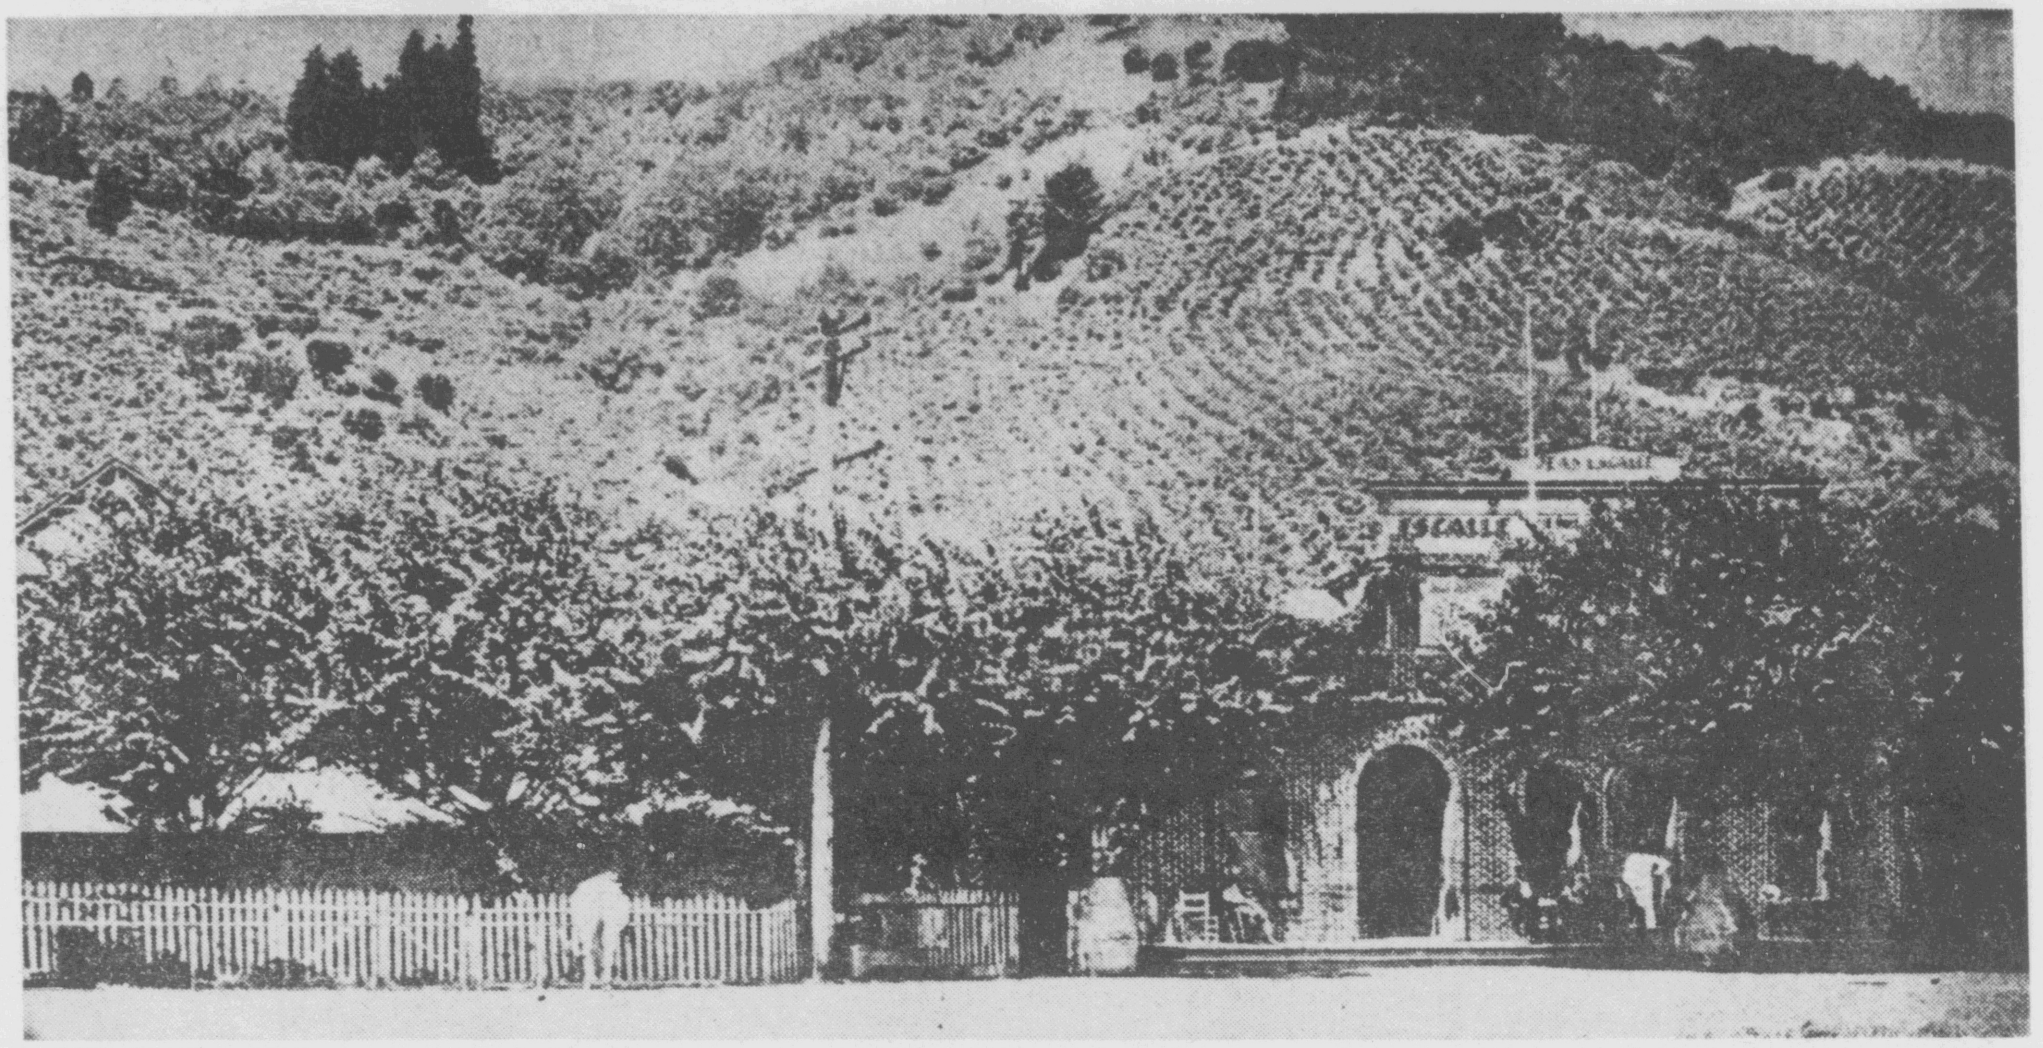
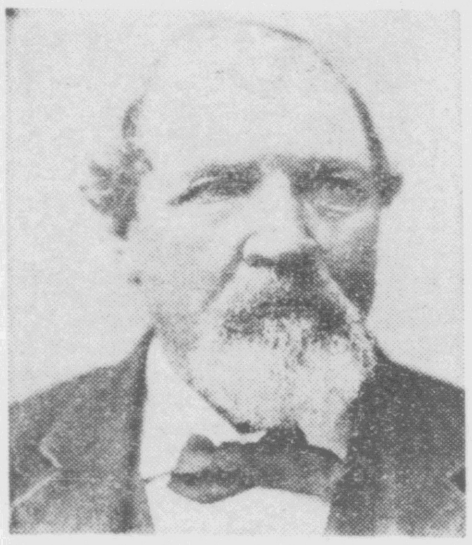
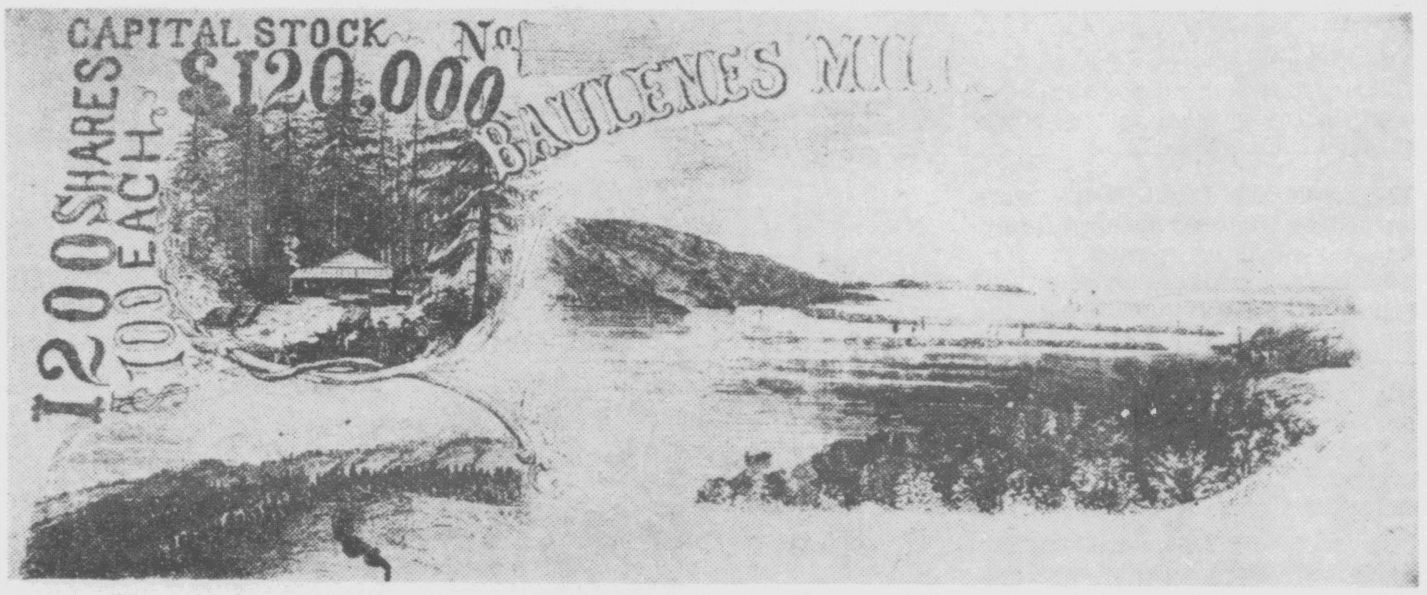
NOVICE ENGINEER Dick Steinheimer, Independent-Journal reporter-photographer, takes the throttle of the J. B. Adams on a slow trip around the one-fifth mile of track at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Adams of Fairfax. The photographer was adjudged to have failed his student trip because of knees hanging out of the tender.



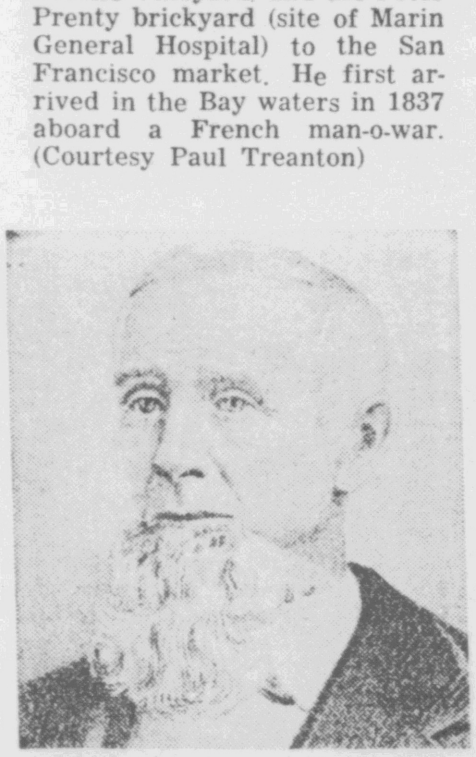
BRICKYARD, WINERY—The Escalle vineyard and winery in Larkspur was the original site of the Callot brickyard, one of the many Marin brickyards that supplied the building materials for the constantly rebuilding San Francisco. The young city was destroyed many times during its first 20 years—either burned to the ground by fire or shaken off its foundation by earthquake. (Marin County Library)



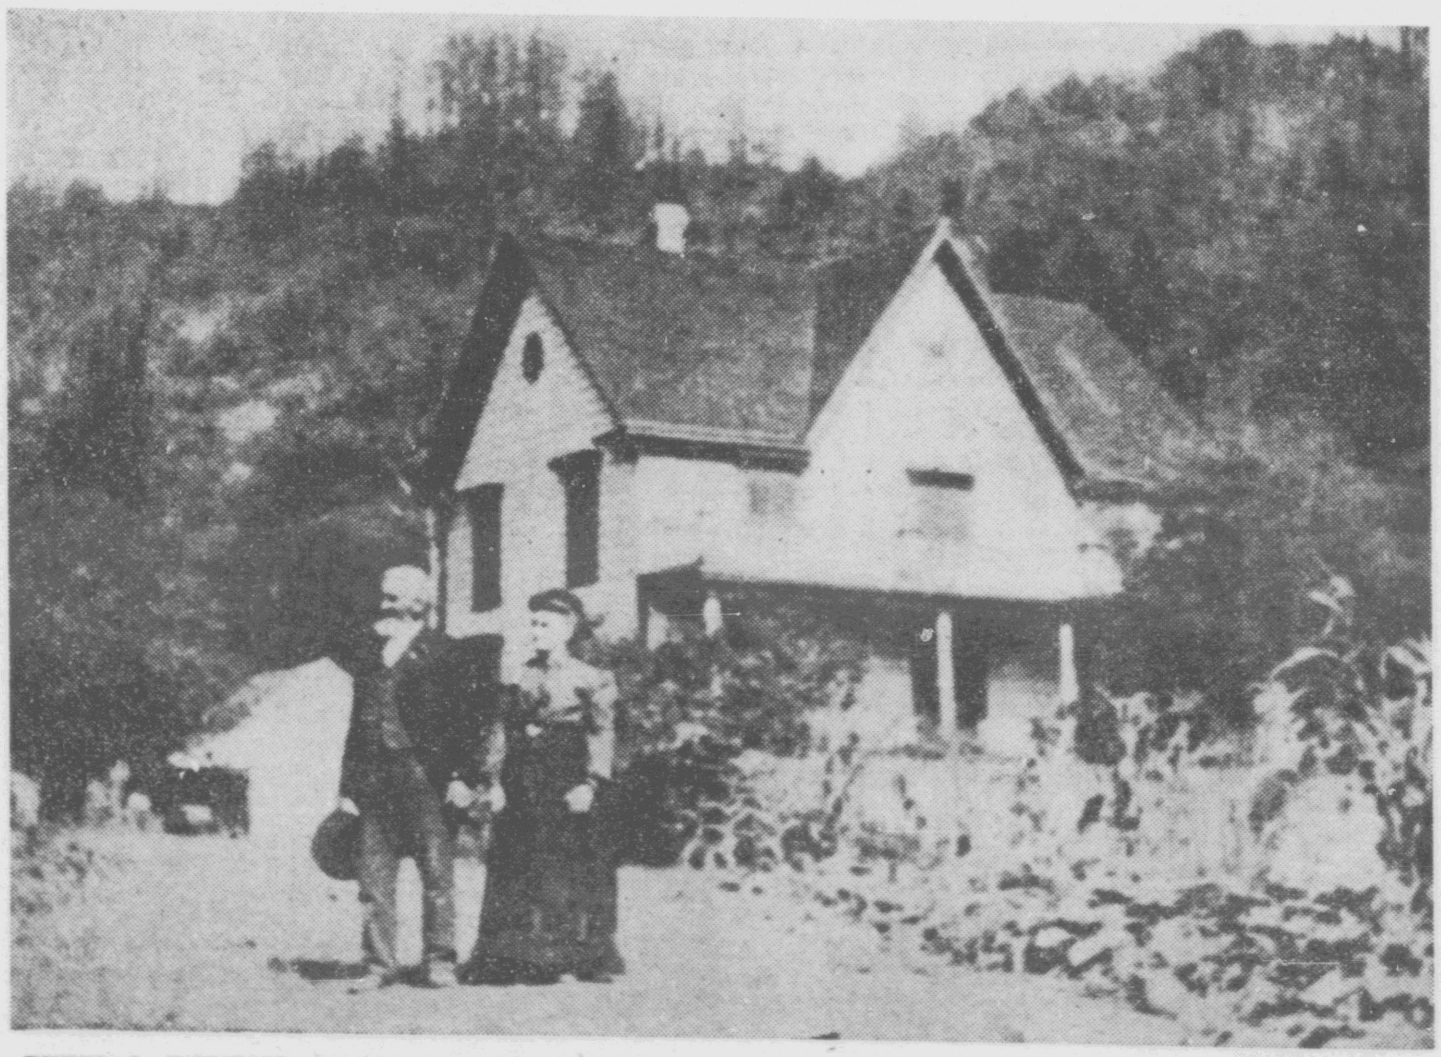
BOATING BUSINESS — Capt. Paul Treanton opened a boating business in Marin in the 1850s. His schooners transported brick from the Callot brickyard in Larkspur (later the site of the Escalle Vineyard) and the Peter Prenty brickyard (site of Marin General Hospital) to the San Francisco market. He first arrived in the Bay waters in 1837 aboard a French man-o-war. (Courtesy Paul Treanton)



GILT EDGE SECURITY from the booming logging days of Bolinas. Timber taken from the forests of Marin was used to build San Francisco then called "The Emporium of the Pacific." Loggers and millworkers flocked to Marin's shores and schooners weighted down under heavy loads of bark covered logs headed for Meiggs Wharf. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas, Marin County Library)



POWERFUL MAN—A big man with clear blue eyes, Charles A. Lauff, confident of Fremont, friend of Kit Carson, Gen. Vallejo and bandit Murietta arrived in Bolinas in 1849. Lauff fell in love with Maria Jesus Briones, spirited daughter of Don Gregorio on his arrival but his allegiance to the unpopular Americans prevented his courting the girl. After Maria's husband, Francisco Sebrean died, she married Lauff.
(Marin County Library)



PETER L. BOURNE was 27 years old when he arrived in Bolinas in 1853. A native of Massachusetts, Captain Bourne was well acquainted with the sea and sailed vessels from the Bolinas harbor to San Francisco during the boom years. Examples, Appraisals Of Work By Voices Of Beat Generation

GARY SNYDER
Marin-based Beat

A CASEBOOK ON THE BEAT edited by Thomas Parkinson, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 326 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The appearance on the American scene of the Beat school of writing, with Jack Kerouac and Allen Ginsberg in the vanguard, was initially greeted with near hysterical adulation and wild prophecies as to the future role these young bohemians were to play in American literature.

Then the pendulum swung. And it became fashionable to belittle their contributions and to heap personal scorn upon them.

This book should help to bring about a fairer perspective.

It has been compiled by Thomas Parkinson, University of California English professor who has been personally closely associated with the Beat.

First section of the book is devoted to examples of some of the more impressive pieces of Beat writing. Ginsberg's "Howl" is accorded lead-off honors, followed by work of Kerouac, Gregory Corso, William S. Burroughs, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, former Marin resident Gary Snyder, Philip Whalen, Michael McClure and John Wieners.

The second half consists of criticism and commentary with a wide variance of viewpoint. Kenneth Rexroth, Norman Podhoretz, Henry Miller, Paul O'Neil, Herbert Gold, John Ciardi, Lawrence Lipton and editor Parkinson are some of those included. There is an openly-partisan pro-Beat faction as represented by Lipton, Miller and Carolyn Gaiser. There are the equally-partisan anti-Beats including Podhoretz and O'Neil. And there are the open-minded critical analyses by the likes of Rexroth and Parkinson.

Virtually all the material included in the book has been published before, but often in journals of small circulation. The selecting, collecting and assembling job by Parkinson provides engrossing, stimulating reading.

What occurred to this reader is that criticism of Beat writing for its lack of form, its absence of purpose, its scarcity of hope, is not without justification. But that those who point out such faults should also take note of the somewhat contradictory sense of excitement and integrity which Kerouac, Ginsberg, Corso, et al, can and often do create. Even in voicing doom and despair, the Beats frequently seem to engender more movement and stimulation than commercial literature of a milksop, pollyanna tinge. And our more memorable "commercial" writing frequently appear to bear some relationship to the philosophy and technique of the Beats.

In fairness, let it be noted that some of the critics do take cognizance of this. Ciardi says: ". . . And were it a simple choice between going Madison Avenue and going Beat, I should certainly insist that the Beat has all the merit on his side."

He takes due notice of the implausibilities, contradictions of Beat non-conformity, and finds it still preferable to and less tiresome than slick, regimented, idea-less conformity.

COUNCIL FIRST MET HERE—When the San Rafael Board of Trustees, (counter-part of today's city council) met for the first time April 9, 1874, it gathered in the second story of the Mechanics Institute Hall owned by J. O. B. Short at the southeast corner of Fourth and C Streets. The building was also the site of the town's first post office. McAllister's saloon occupied the first floor. The first trustees were: Sidney V. Smith, J. B. Rice, A. W. Taliaferro, William J. Miller and Jacob Short. (Marin County Historical Society)

Local Government Organized By Legislature In Early 50's

On Sept. 16, 1850, Marin County felt the first slice of the dividing knife as four settlements were carved out of its flank. Shorb, Black and Milewater shaped Sausalito from the Richardson Rancho, Novato from the area north of the county seat and Bolinas from the Briones Rancho in the west.

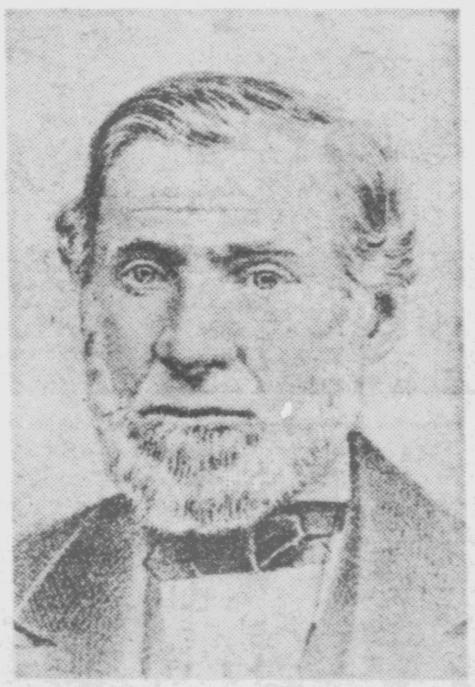
Two surveyors were called in to lay out the town of San Rafael. Lots were squared off at 300 feet.

ON OCT. 18, the Oregon, a side-wheel steamer churned through the Golden Gate. Her bells were ringing and streamers fluttered from her mast. One read: California admitted.

On Sept. 9, President Millard Fillmore had signed the gold-rich territory into the Union breaking the deadlock between free and slave states by making California the 16th free state.

THREE YEARS later the Court of Sessions led by Ai Barney established the towns of Tomales and Point Reyes and in 1855 formed new boundaries for San Rafael, Corte Madera, Sausalito, Novato, San Antonio, Tomales, Point Reyes and Bolinas.

In 1852 the legislature organized the first board of supervisors, and in December T. F. Peck was elected chairman and W. T. Whittlesey and H. S. Baechtel supervisors. The supervisors and court of sessions operated together for three years until the legislature abolished the latter and set up a list of powers for the supervisors. Local government was coming of age.



BARNEY AS JUDGE—Ai Barney was appointed Marin County judge by the governor in 1850 to replace Dr. Shorb who resigned four months after taking office. Barney was re-elected and held the office for seven years. He arrived in the County in 1849 as a member of the Baltimore and Frederick Mining and Trading Co. out of Maryland. In 1861 he and his son, Jerome, founded Marin County's first newspaper, The Marin County Journal. This pictures him as he appeared in earlier years. (Marin County Library)

COUNTY'S FIRST SURVEYOR—Alfred Derby Easkoot settled in Bolinas in 1851. He held the office of Marin's first surveyor until 1871. Born in Massachusetts in 1820, Easkoot went to sea at the age of 9. Three years later he severely burned his face and hands losing several fingers. He arrived in San Francisco in 1851 to take charge of the ship Asa Packer but was unable to after being stricken with a fever. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas)

SAN RAFAEL ARTIST Ruth Schneider is shown with two of her paintings, "Little Eve" and "The Hanging Red Boat," which will be included in an exhibit of her work at the Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo. The show will open tomorrow with a preview-reception from 2 to 4 p.m. and continue through April 15. The artist has been painting for eight years, professionally for the last three years. Her media include oils, pastels, ink, watercolors, and her subjects include Marin sea and landscapes, abstracts, portraiture and still-life. It will be the third one-man show for Mrs. Schneider, a member of the Marin Society of Artists.

What is FM? How does FM differ from AM? With the number of FM Broadcasting Stations in the Bay Area increasing at a rapid rate, the listener has as great a selection of FM stations as he has AM stations. We have passed the realm of two or three FM stations to choose from. There are now approximately twenty FM stations in our area.

AM Broadcasting is the conventional form of radio reception that we have been using for years. The main disadvantages to AM Broadcasting are that the frequency range (tonal range) transmitted is usually limited to 5000 cycles or vibrations per second, & that static interference can be received easily by AM radios.

FM is a completely different method of broadcasting or transmitting the signal. FM therefore requires a radio receiver with a different type of electronic circuit to receive these stations. The advantages of FM Broadcasting are that the complete musical range of tones are transmitted; that is, from 30 to 15,000 cycles or vibrations per second. Secondly, the FM receiver does not respond to static when a station is properly tuned-in. Thirdly, whereas with AM all music is broadcasted at one constant volume, FM music is broadcasted with all of the musical dynamics left in; in other words, you hear the loud passages loudly, and the soft passages softly just as you would if you were at the concert hall. Fourthly, most FM stations are dedicated to providing quality, good musical programming and practically no rock and roll.

To sum this all up, a good FM receiver or Tuner will provide you with full range, static free, high quality music complete with all of its dynamics. You will be provided with a wide choice of program material because many of the stations specialize in certain types of music such as jazz, the classics, etc.

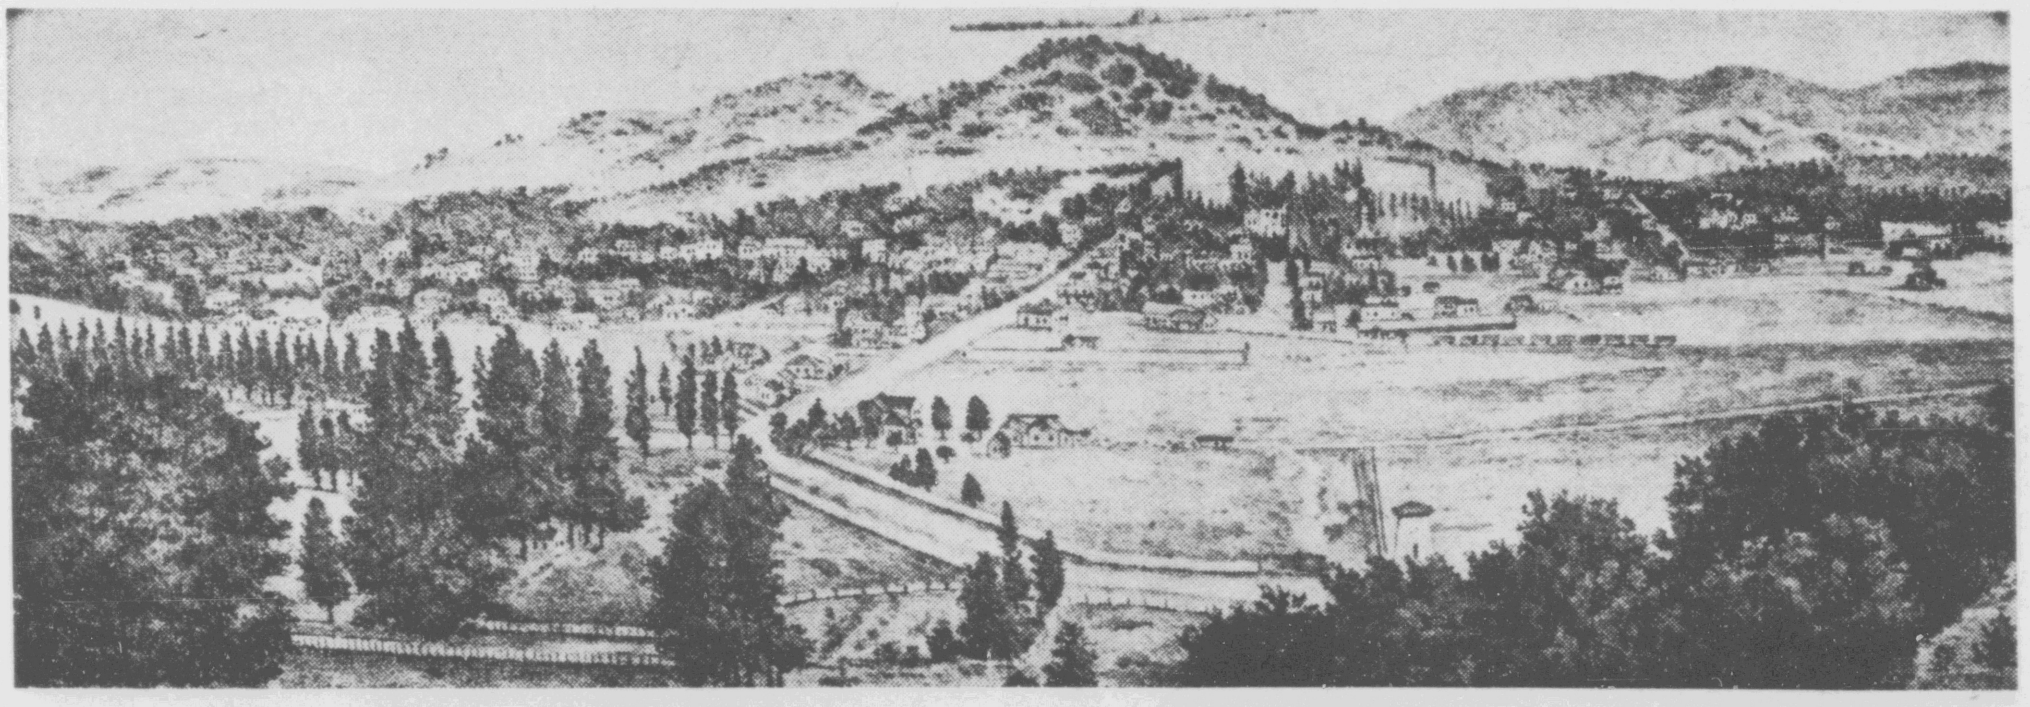
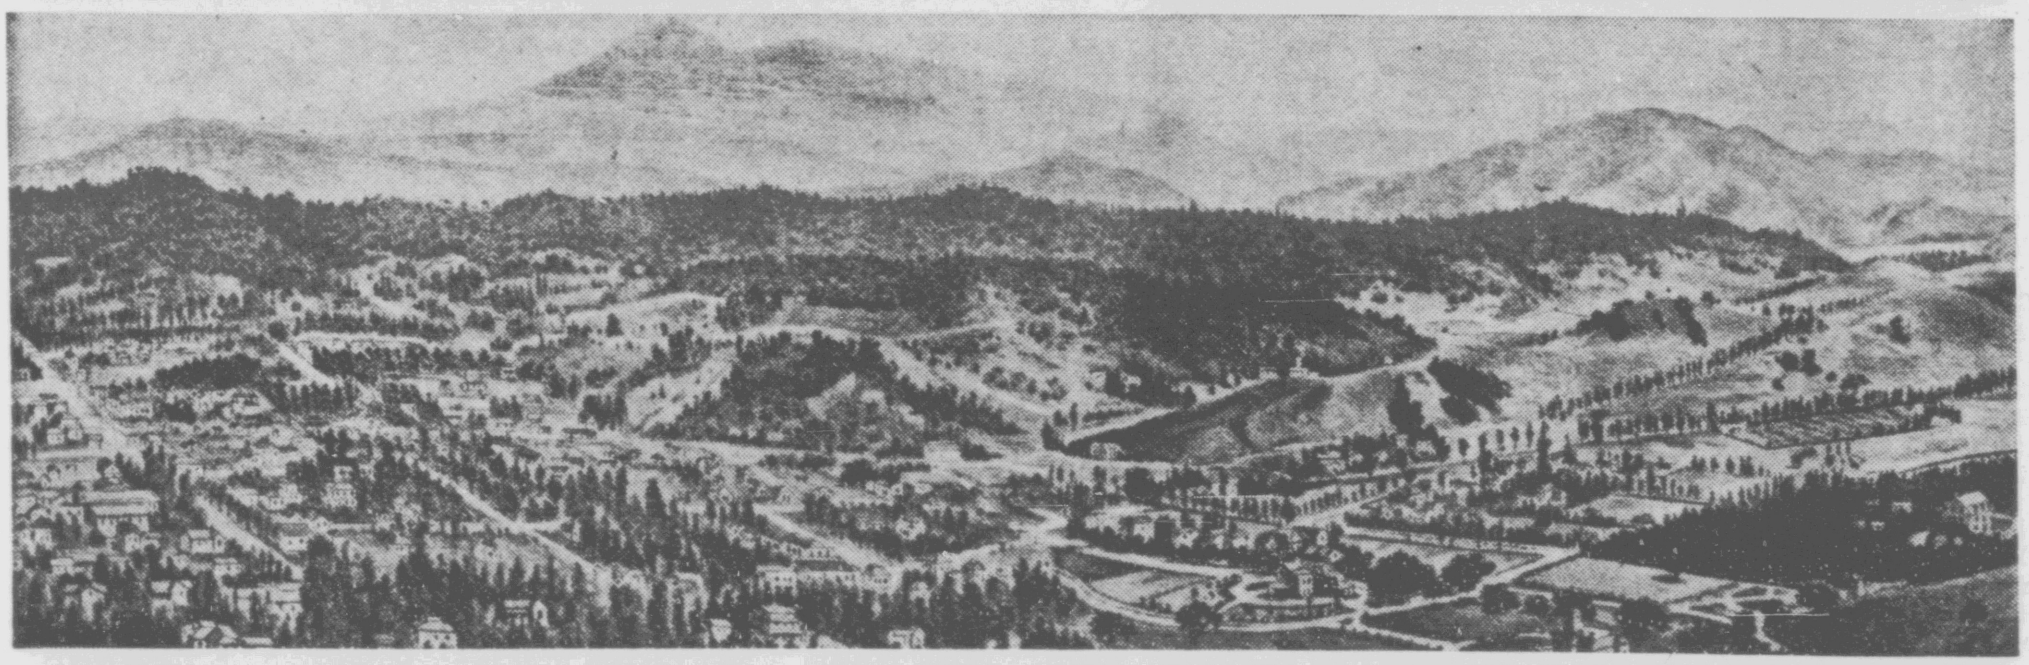
HEART OF THE COUNTY SEAT—The Marin County Courthouse was erected at Fourth and A Streets to replace Don Timoteo's crumbling hacienda two blocks west. The building has been enlarged several times over the years and is still being used today, 89 years later. The Marin lodge No. 191, Free and Accepted Masons, officiated at the laying of the cornerstone, Aug. 3, 1872. (Marin County Historical Society)





PANORAMA OF THE COUNTY SEAT — This picture shows San Rafael looking north (above) and south (below) in the same decade the new courthouse was built at the corner of Fourth and A Streets. Many San Francisco businessmen had bought permanent residences in the town and many others were opening summer homes on the hills rimming the downtown area. CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

- Begonia tubers started in flats may be transplanted when they have about three inches of top growth.
- Feed Azaleas and Camellias when they've finished blooming. Use a special acid plant food and supplement it later with liquid fish.
- Primroses push up taller stems and larger flowers when fertilized in spring.
- Dahlias may be planted from now into May. Be sure to set the stake at the time you plant. It might injure the tuber if driven in later.
- Give old lawns a booster shot of fertilizer. Start a new lawn this month or next . . . the sooner the better.

Tea Trees Thrive In Tough Going

Gardeners who like to plant their shrubs and leave them alone will get a lot of mileage from the many tea trees offered in local nurseries. Nurserymen tell us that tea trees are ready to serve you in a wide range of rough places.

Take the toughest situation any shrub could face—along a weather battered stretch of seashore. Far from succumbing to such conditions, the tea trees seem to thrive on them. Or try them on a sun-baked hillside that seldom sees water and they will thrive again. In fact, if you want to be truthful about it, tea trees are more apt to suffer from too much attention than from too little.

If you infer from this that tea trees are best not used in friendly garden settings, you're wrong. Their narrow, decorative foliage and free-flowering habit dictates that they should be used close in as well as in out-of-the-way garden spots. Just be sure that they have good drainage since they won't tolerate sodden conditions from over-watering.

SAN RAFAEL SCENE—The streets of the County Seat were dusty in the summer and as gooey as quicksand in the winter. This is the Frederick H. Pratt store at Fourth and B Streets. The sign to left of the building is advertising "Philadelphia Lager." The saloons are reported to have "done a flourishing business" in frontier days. Many times city fathers hashed out political issues sitting by the stove in the watering spot close to the adobe courthouse at Fourth and C Streets. (Marin County Historical Society)

1st Legislature Carved Land For County

Government blew up like a firecracker with a short fuse.

Military Governor Brig. Gen. Bennett Riley called a convention in Monterey in the fall of 1849 after Congress closed its doors without doing anything about the new territory of California. The California and American settler chafed under the military tribunal and Riley felt the uneasiness.

The session lasted a painful six weeks with embarrassing pauses as harried representatives and assistants made desperate searches for reference books.

1st Nicasio Mills Erected In 1852

In 1852 Noah Corey built the first house in Nicasio and with his brother, Hiram, opened the first saw mill in the Nicasio Valley. There were large forests of redwood and oak.

But in a few years forests had disappeared and pasture land had taken their place.

A year after the Coreys landed in Nicasio, William Butterfield and William Dampier put up a house south of town and started a stock business. The valley began to fill.

Nicasio is the geographical heart of Marin and the early settlers felt that it should be the county seat rather than San Rafael.

Ten years after the Corey brothers built their saw mill in Nicasio, James Dixon and James Ross opened another mill, one and a half miles east of town. The mill turned out 15,000 feet of lumber a day and ran for three years until Dixon bought out Ross' interest and moved the mill to Fort Ross.

Isaac Shaver and Jonathan Mitchner opened a third mill, one and a half miles southeast of the town in 1866, turning out 20,000 feet of lumber a day. This mill was closed in 1872 when the machinery was moved to San Rafael and installed in a planning mill.

County Named For Indian Chief

The boundaries were marked off. A county was carved out of the land at the first meeting of the legislature in Monterey three months after the November election.

IN 1850 MARIN was prosperous. Yankee, southerner, Spaniard, Irishman, Scotsman mingled in the melting pot; Marin was maturing American.

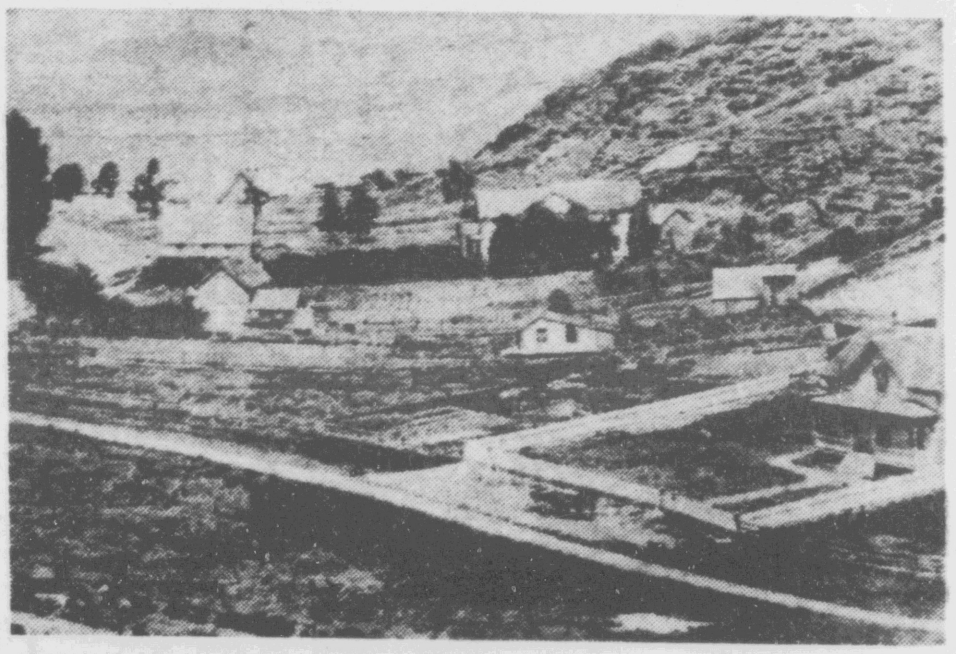
They organized a Court of Sessions to minister local government at San Rafael and on July 22 Dr. James A. Shorb, recently arrived Yankee who had landed in Marin as part of the Baltimore and Frederick Co. of Maryland was elected county judge. Oldtimers James Black and another newcomer George Milewater were elected associate justices.

Black, Scot born hunter and cattle raiser, arrived in California in 1832 aboard an English trading ship. When the boat reached Monterey the 25-year-old sailor was put ashore with a severe case of typhoid fever.

But Juan Cooper, the American born brother-in-law of Mariano Vallejo, a leading Californian, took the young Scotsman in and cured him. Black met another Scotsman, Edward McIntosh in Monterey and decided to join him in a hunting and trapping venture in the north. The young men lived at the adobe Presidio at Yerba Buena in 1833 and Black, Murphy, Reed and Vallejo became close friends.

WHEN VALLEJO was made military commandant of California in 1835 he secured a land grant for his Scot friends close to the Russian border at Fort Ross. A few years later Black swapped his Sonoma holdings for a piece of the Rancho Nicasio in Marin.

The three members of the court of sessions ordered the newly elected Sheriff, S. S. Baechtel, to build a log jail and find them a place to meet. Vendors were told they must obtain licenses to peddle their goods.



BOLINAS BECOMES RESORT TOWN—Nellie Esten Waterhouse transformed a quarter section of the Juan Briones Rancho on the Bolinas beach into a resort tract, Grand Vista, in 1883. She hired surveyors to lay out lots, ordered eucalyptus and cypress trees planted and planned on selling 10 lots a year to persons wanting Bolinas summer homes. The area soon became a popular resort town and gathering place for many prominent Marin families. (Courtesy of Mrs. James Jenkins and the Marin County Library).

SUNNYSIDE AREA—This portion of the James Ross ranch later to become part of the town of San Anselmo was softly rolling meadowland in the 1870's and 80's. Portions of the area in the beginning days were almost treeless and many of the verdant growth that today cover the area were planted by the early settlers to shade the blistering hot sun. (First published in the Marin Journal 1889)

Marin's George Zaro Looks To The Future

know people, and saved money. On July 2, 1942, through a waiter friend who jointly owned the White Spot nightclub at the San Quentin Y in Marin, Zaro was able to buy the club. The owners had to sell and they let it go cheap. Three years after he bought the club, Zaro lost it. July 4, 1945, at 4:30 a.m., Zaro was awakened by the sound of popping and crackling drifting from the club proper into the Zaro living quarters. Zaro knew it was a fire. His wife awoke and became hysterical.

"I had to knock her cold—it was the only time I ever hit her—and drag her from the bedroom," said Zaro.

The club was burned to the ground in 45 minutes. There was a little insurance on the building and Zaro lost $3,200 in cash in his bedroom. Within 48 hours Zaro was fighting back. He put aside his regret, hired bulldozers and began to excavate a portion of some swamp property he had purchased "in" Richardson Bay a year earlier just off what is now Highway 101's Alto strip.

"THEY SAID I was crazy, but within a year we had one of California's best nightclub restaurants." It was called Zaro's. That year Ann Baxter and the late John Hodiak celebrated their honeymoon dinner there. Zaro ran his establishment for two more years and then leased it to Enricho Pastori until December, 1950, when Zaro leased it to Angelo Sabella, uncle of Lucien Sabella of the Fisherman's Wharf Sabella's.

In 1947 Zaro could see how even more valuable this "swamp land" might be, and he bought 31.9 more acres from the Coleman estate adjacent to the land upon which his restaurant stood. All of the latter property was under water except a 118-by-four-foot section near the highway. Today, after pouring "thousands of dollars" to develop and bring it above the water, Zaro has level dry property surrounding a 16 acre lagoon which he also owns. It faces the Bay and Mount Tamalpais.

He is now negotiating with parties to build waterfront apartments with dock landings for some 400 boats. It will be a several-million-dollar project, he said. It will surround the restaurant which will again be called Zaro's when Sabella's lease has expired this May.

Zaro's great desire is to see the development of all of Richardson Bay waterfront. "My father used to say the Bay was 'Paradise.' I agree, and know that Los Angeles would give her right arm for it—and what are we in the North doing with this bay—nothing?.

"A MAN has got to make something. Why hibernate? God put us on this earth to do things, to develop for future generations, and make this earth a better place for us and others to live."

RANCHO PUNTA DE LOS REYES —The 8,878-acre grant was given to James R. Berry, an Irishman, on March 17, 1836, by Gov. Gutierrez. Berry later sold his rancho to Joseph F. Snook an Englishman who in 1840 transported, 25 captive Americans from Yerba Buena and Monterey to San Blas in his boat the "Joven Guipuzcoana." The Americans had been expelled from California by the governor who suspected an uprising and revolution was in the making.

Two years later Snook's bark was taken prisoner by two American war ships in the port of Monterey. It is doubtful if the seafaring Snook ever lived on his Marin rancho. In 1843, the rancho passed into the hands of Antonio Maria Osio, well-known Mexican official, and owner of Angel Island. Osio lived in Don Timoteo Murphy's hacienda in San Rafael when in Marin. He never occupied his western Marin ranch. Later he returned to his home in lower California and wrote a history of California.

Osio's ranch and the Rancho Punta de los Reyes Sobrante (leftovers) were granted to Andrew Randall who had arrived in California as a gunner on the U.S.S. Portsmouth. The two ranchos were patented, totaling 57,000.98 acres in 1860. The ranchos next passed into the hands of Justice Oscar L. Shafter, Judge James McMillan Shafter and Charles Webb Howard who opened the area as a dairying section and leased out the land.

RANCHO PUNTA DE QUENTIN —This ranch bordered on the east by the waters of San Pablo Bay on the south by what is now Larkspur, on the north by San Anselmo and to the west by a ridge of mountains north of Tamalpais, was granted in 1840 to Juan Bautiste Cooper, brother in law of Gen. Mariano Vallejo. It was soon acquired by Benjamin R. Buckelew. Buckelew, one time editor and publisher of the San Francisco newspaper the "Californian," died in 1859 at 37.

The ranch was bought in 1859 by Irish-born James Ross who had come to San Francisco by way of Australia. He opened an import business in the boom town across the bay and also owned a fleet of river boats that traded along the Sacramento River. He was a man of medium size, and a great lover of music and fast horses. The pioneers of Ross Valley originally bought their land from this quiet spoken man whose name has become an indelible mark on Marin.

RANCHO CANADA DE HERRERA —The 6,658 acre ranch that today is part of San Anselmo and Fairfax was granted to Domingo Sais in 1839 by the Mexican governor. Sais had served a two-year term as elector and regidor of San Francisco. The first parceling of this ranch covering the hills and valleys occurred in 1849 when 40 acres by the banks of a clear flowing stream were given to Dr. A. W. Taliaferro who had arrived in Marin as a member of a mining company and who was to become the first physician for San Quentin.

Later Taliaferro in turn gave his land to his close friend Lord Charles Fairfax, descendent of the English barons of Fairfax and former resident of Fairfax County in Virginia. Lord Fairfax had married the niece of U.S. Sen. John C. Calhoun, and his home became one of the social and political meccas of early California. His land was soon known by his name. The Fairfax home was located near the old railroad station of Fairfax and Manor.

RANCHO de NOVATO — This ranch reaching to Black Point and the San Pablo Bay on the northwest and was given to Fernando Felis in 1839. Later the rancho was owned jointly by Frederick Billings, James R. Bolton and Henry Halleck. Archibald Peachy bought the rancho after 1850.

RANCHO SAN GERONIMO — Granted to Rafael Cacho in 1844 and later patented to Joseph Revere, grandson of Paul Revere in 1860. Revere arrived in California in 1846 as a Navy lieutenant and soon settled on his rancho and went into the stock business. He was a close friend of Don Timoteo Murphy. Revere later returned to the East coast where he lived in Morristown, Pa.

THE DAYS OF THE DONS—Marin's early years under Mexican rule were a time of carefree and elegant living that has never been paralleled. This was the time of the big ranchos. (See map) Hospitality was a law in every household. A bowl of silver was customarily left by the bed for any stranger asking for a night's rest in case he did not have enough money to eat. Ranchers traveled hundreds of miles to attend a party or fiesta at a friend's rancho. These parties sometimes lasted a week or two. Huge barbecues were held daily. Later the dons and their ladies waltzed into the pre-dawn hours. Picnics were held in the afternoons. Horsemanship was the main occupation of the don and he was considered to be the best in the world. (Map courtesy Society of California Pioneers)

CHECKING the CHANNELS

There's A Week Of Quality Shows Coming Up For Television Viewers

ON TAP IS a week in which television viewing is going to be at an exceptionally high level. In fact the programming promises to be so good on several nights that it is going to be difficult to choose your channel.

For instance, the dilemma we'll face on Monday night. At 9 o'clock the most talented of today's actresses, Ingrid Bergman, will appear on KPIX in a 90-minute dramatic special entitled "Twenty-Four Hours in a Woman's Life." And a half hour later KRON will be carrying a one-hour musicfest with the incomparable Bing Crosby as host and the likes of Maurice Chevalier and Carol Lawrence as his guests. And before either of those shows has ended, starting at 10:30, KQED and KRON will air an address by Secretary of State Dean Rusk from the University of California Charter Day exercises.

Miss Bergman's leading man will be Rip Torn. And her executive producer is her husband, Lars Schmidt, marking the first time the two have worked professionally together. The story deals with romance between an English widow and a young American in Monte Carlo. And the supporting cast, largely British, is excellent.

As for der Bingle, he is scheduled to team up with Chevalier in such numbers as "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," "Pigalle" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore." The Groaner will solo in the likes of "Without a Song" and "The Second Time Around," and he'll be joined by Miss Lawrence in "Flattery."

Tuesday's another night in which you'll face some hard choices in dialing the TV set. Starting at 8:30 and continuing until exhaustion sets in, a panel of aviation experts presided over by David Susskind will discuss air traffic safety problems on KQED's "Open End" show. While they are still at it, at 9 o'clock, KTVU will take the wraps off a new show of which it is very proud, "Great Music From Chicago." The premiere will feature the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting, in a concert that will include works by Tschaikovsky, Sibelius, Rossini, Ibert, Bernstein and Ginastera.

And still that same evening, at 9:30, KPIX will be offering a 90-minute original play by Horton Foote, entitled "The Night of the Storm," with a stellar cast that includes Julie Harris, Jo Van Fleet, E. G. Marshall and Mildred Dunnock. It's a story about depression and its effects upon a family in a small Texas town.

Winding up the big Tuesday lineup of specials will be a documentary in which David Brinkley, just about the hottest thing on television these days, will conduct you on a tour of Hong Kong. It will be seen on KRON starting at 10 p.m. Brinkley promises "an interesting insight into the city where East meets West."

Did some one say that there's never anything good on television?

AS FOR THE rest of the week—

Tonight: Saturday is pretty firmly established as the dullest night of the week on TV. An exception is the fine "The Nation's Future" series, seen at 9:30 on KRON. This evening it will explore an especially hot and timely issue: "Should Public Funds Be Used for Public and Religious Schools Alike?" The debaters will be Jesuit Father Neil G. McCluskey and Dr. Leo Pfeffer of the American Jewish Congress. Or, if you didn't see it Wednesday night, you can tune in on KTVU at 9 o'clock for "The Play of the Week." It's the Paul Osborne comedy, "Morning's At Seven," with Dorothy Gish, Ann Harding and Chester Morris.

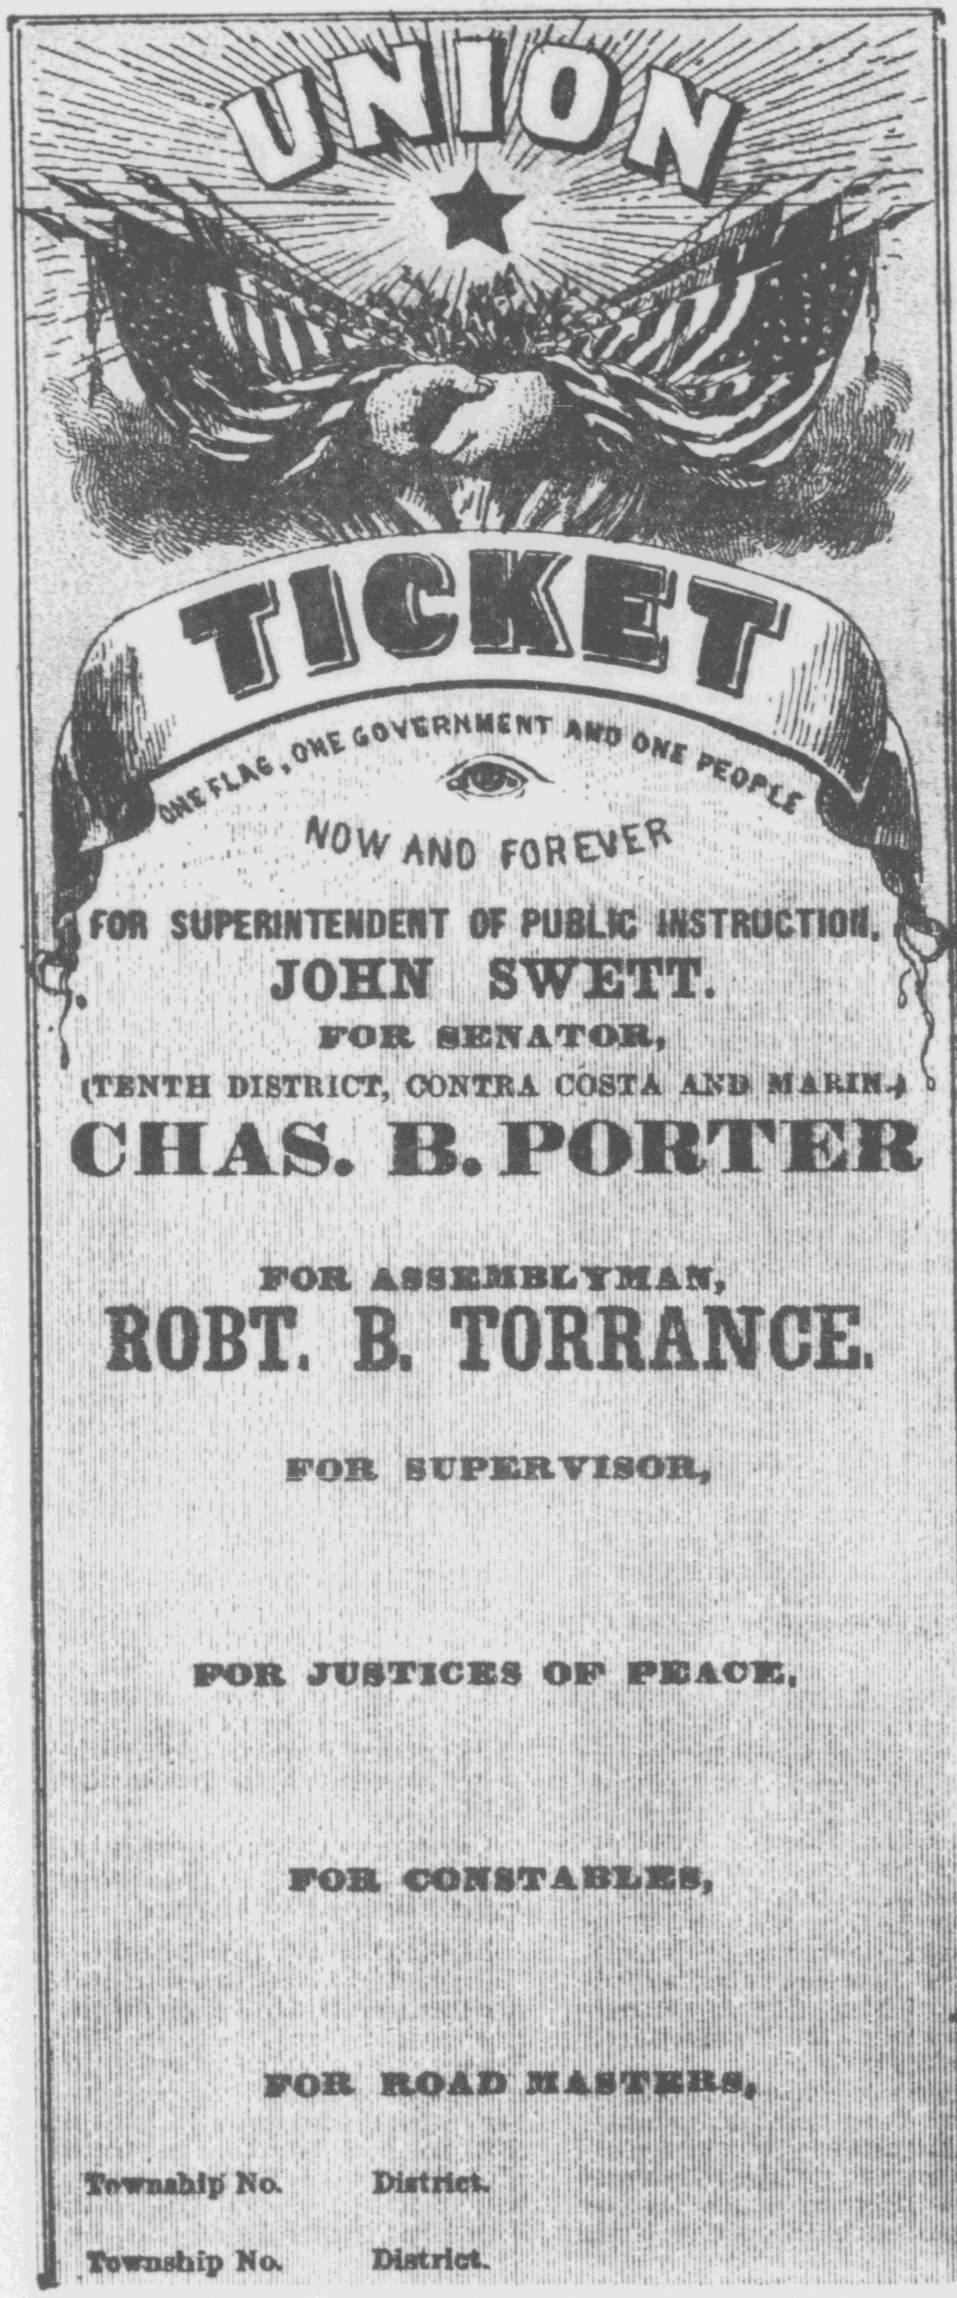
Sunday: The "Sports Spectacular" on KPIX at 2:30 p.m. will take you to an Illinois shooting preserve and to a Newfoundland fishermen's paradise. Young performers will be spotlighted as Leonard Bernstein and his New York Philharmonic present another of their Sunday afternoon concerts at 4 p.m. on KPIX. "The Twentieth Century," also on KPIX and seen at 6:30, will tell the story of Minuteman, the intercontinental ballistic missile. Ed Sullivan will salute the composing team of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe on his show at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 with Richard Burton, Julie Andrews and Robert Goulet, all closely identified with Lerner and Loewe musicals, among those present. And the "Chevy Show" at 9 on KRON will see Art Linkletter trying to prove that "Kids Are Funny" with the help of Vic Damone, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyatt and others.

On Wednesday, Shirley Booth will make one of her too infrequent TV appearances in N. Richard Nash's bittersweet drama, "Welcome Home," on the "U.S. Steel Hour" at 10 p.m. on KPIX. KTVU's "Play of the Week" that evening at 8 will be a Rosemary Casey comedy, "The Velvet Glove," with Helen Hayes starring.

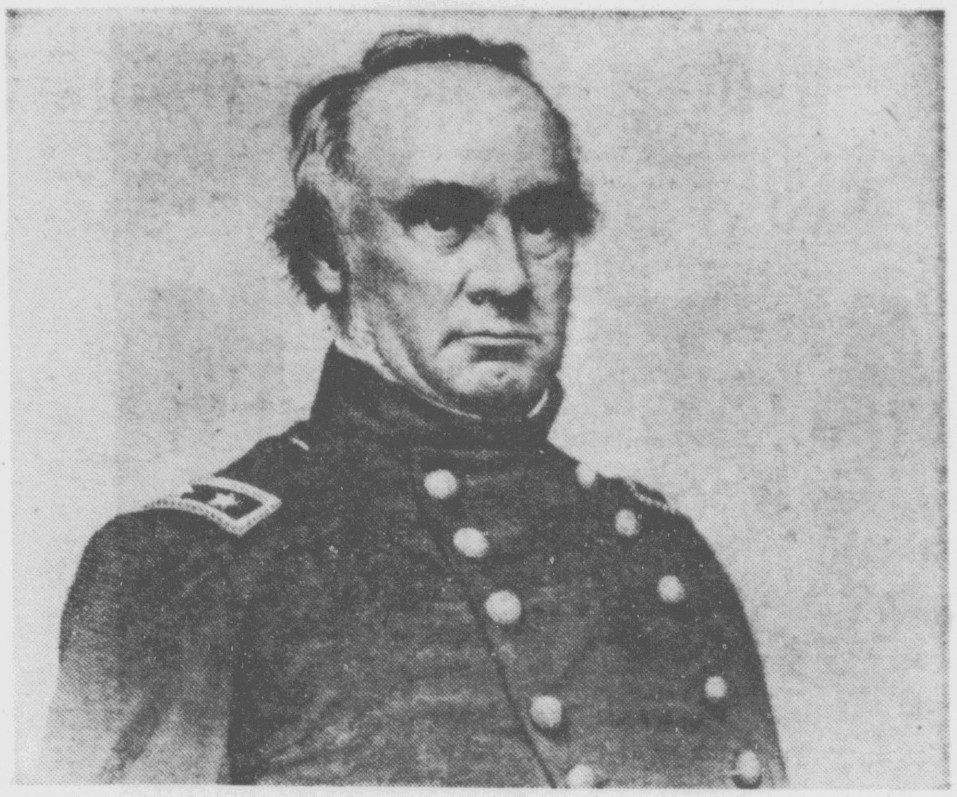
Thursday at 7:30 on KRON the NBC true story of Little League baseball and what it did for the kids of Monterrey, Mexico, will be given a repeat showing. The network says that "How Tall Is A Giant?" has been re-edited. Ernie Ford will again narrate. At 10 that evening, on KPIX, Henry Cabot Lodge and Britain's Lord Robert Boothby will debate: "Should Red China Be Admitted to the U.N. Now?" And at 10:30 on KGO, a 1960 pleaser, "Silents Please," will return with Douglas Fairbanks swashbuckling through "Black Pirates" and with other films of pre-talkie vintage scheduled to follow weekly.

On Friday, KQED will show for the fourth and final time its British production of Oliver Goldsmith's comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer."

"ROMPER ROOM," the delightful KGO children's program presided over by Marinite Nancy Besst, will mark its third birthday next Friday, and will celebrate the occasion with a party on the air the following Monday, March 27.



ONE TICKET — One flag, one government. The Civil War aroused strong political feelings within the early Marin settler. The county's newspaper, the Marin County Journal, vehemently supported the Union cause, published the Union party's political platform weekly six years after the close of the Civil War. Pictured above is a "Union Ticket" for the Tenth Senatorial District then taking in Contra Costa and Marin. John Swett served as Supt. of Public Instruction from 1863 until 1867. (Compliments of Boyd Stewart)



WAR FIGURE — Henry Halleck later to become the Union commander in the West during the Civil War signed California's first constitution as secretary of state in 1849. He arrived in 1846 to fight in the Mexican War and was promoted to the rank of captain the following year. He acquired about 57,000 acres in the Nicasio Valley after the Mexican grants had been reviewed by the United States governments. He started practicing law in San Francisco in '54 and seven years later on the recommendation of Lt. Gov. Scott was appointed major general in the Union army. (Society of California Pioneers)

EARLY FIGURES — Standing on the porch of DuBois and Barney's butcher shop near Fourth and C Streets are a group of men who were luminaries of the young County Seat. Among those pictured are: Ned Eden, Elisha DuBois, Jerome Barney, founder of the Marin County Journal and son of County Judge Ai Barney. Dan Taylor, who arrived in Marin with the elder Barney and was County Clerk for many years and Val Doub. (Marin County Historical Society)

FOUNDER OF RESORT — Mrs. Nellie Esten Waterhouse turned a portion of the Bolinas beach area into a resort, residential area in 1883. The land was given to her as a gift by her husband, Frank Waterhouse, a Sacramento banker. (Courtesy of Mrs. L. G. Pepper of Bolinas)

"This Cruel War is Over."

The country is electrified with the late news of the fall of Richmond and the surrender of Lee with his whole army. For four long years the swelling heart of the nation has pulsated faint or deep as alternate tantalizing hopes or fears would seize upon it—as victory or defeat attended our heroic, but at length, victorious army. The great question raised, the root and cause of the mighty conflict, as to the right of the stronger to doom the weaker race of humanity to perpetual slavery, is now and forever settled. Right is triumphant in this great American struggle, as in every other instance in the history of the world, it has been, where the sword has been invoked in the cause of oppression. This triumph of the swelling tide of freedom, is not alone for the shores of America. Already the haughty aristocracy and kings of Europe begin to feel the waves of progression and freedom invading their seats and questioning their birth-right to rule. In vain they may cry out to the billows, "Thus far shalt thou come but no farther." The mighty blows here inflicted against the presumptuous approaching tread of tyrants, like impinging blows on matter, will be felt as far as the sound shall reach the ears of desponding and oppressed humanity. All hail, morning of peace! hasten the mid-day cloudless sky when thy genial sun-rays shall have dried up the blood-bedewed battle-fields and assuaged the grieving hearts of orphanage, and the loneliness of desolated and ruined households.

THE YEAR'S EDUCATIONS.—Advices from the east, says the Salt Lake Vedette foreshadow an unusually large emigration to the territories the coming spring. Many large companies already organized, are composed wholly of discharged soldiers and their families, who, after the turmoil and excitement of war, are coming to seek a home in the more peaceful West. The war has made our people more enterprising, if possible, than ever before. Men who left the plow, the anvil, the workshop and the counter, and rushed to the defense of their country in her hour of peril, have caught the restless spirit of the age, and can no longer be satisfied with their former theater of action. Besides, the rough life of the camp and the unavoidable exposure incident to an active campaign in the field, has peculiarly fitted them for pioneers of civilization in these western wilds.

The discipline of the army has neither injured, nor its influence demoralized them.—By meeting danger face to face—and fighting it out—they have gained manliness and courage, and, thanks to the philanthropy and christianity of our nation, no man has, nor force, become worse, morally and intellectually, by his service in the army.

A PIECE OF IMPUDENCE.—A letter has just been received at the Navy Department from Sir Wm. Armstrong, the English inventor of the Armstrong guns, in which he urges our government to imitate the example of France and Russia, by manufacturing his guns. To this piece of scientific impertinence Captain Wise of the Ordinance Bureau, has written a caustic reply, in which he tells Sir William that the Armstrong guns captured at Fort Fisher, afford us the means of testing their supposed efficiency. Upon these guns was found an inscription setting forth that they were a present by Sir William Armstrong to Jeff. Davis.

STRANGE OCCURRENCE.—A most singular and strange occurrence took place at the restaurant of Thomas Guineau on Friday last. A soldier sitting at the table waiting for his dinner, was seized with violent cramping pains in his stomach. So severe were his torture that he fell from his chair to the floor. Soon after his fall a singular reptile crawled out of his mouth. This reptile or snake is about seven inches in length; of a dingy white color, and has a black stripe running through the length of the center of its body. There is no head to the snake perceptible, each end appearing like the ends of those vermicular objects which occasionally trouble children, especially in the eastern States.—The body of the reptile, which is preserved in spirits, is in diameter about the size of one of Faber's pencils, but is somewhat flattened especially near the extremities. After the snake had left the man's stomach his internal tortures appeared to increase with great severity, so much so that he prayed for immediate death. It is understood that he is still sick in the military hospital. Previous to this occurrence the man had experienced general ill health.—Bee.

RAILROADS IN CALIFORNIA.—The railroad enterprises of the State are being pushed forward with energy. The Central Pacific road has some eighteen hundred men employed; the Placerville road has a large number at work, and is calling for more; the Western Pacific road is employing a large force, and pushing its work forward as fast as possible; and work on the Napa road, though that enterprise is of less magnitude than any of the foregoing, is being prosecuted with praiseworthy energy. All of these works are of vital interest to this State, and it is a matter of public rejoicing that they are thus being pushed forward with spirit, energy and enterprise.—Sacramento Bee.

GRANT'S PURSUIT OF LEE.

Washington, April 8.—To Major General Dix: A telegram received from General Grant, dated noon to-day, at Farmville, sixteen miles west of Burke's Station, says the enemy have been pushed from the road toward Danville, are now being pursued towards Lynchburg, and that he is very confident of receiving the surrender of Lee and what remains of his army.

[Signed] STANTON.

[OFFICIAL.]

Washington, April 8.—To Major General Dix: This Department has an official report of the surrender this day, of General Lee and his army to Lieutenant General Grant, on the terms proposed by General Grant.—Details will be given as speedily as possible.

[Signed] E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

New York, April 8.—A meeting of prominent citizens held at the Custom-house today, adopted an address to President Lincoln, requesting that a day may be designated when the people may assemble to offer thanks and praise for the brilliant successes which under Divine Providence, have been secured by the persistent energy, sagacity and fidelity of the Government, and by the skill, intrepidity and self sacrificing devotion of the Army and Navy.

THE EVACUATION OF RICHMOND.

Washington, April 7.—Richmond letters say that previous to the surrender of the city the Mayor ordered all the liquor destroyed, and as a consequence the rebel rear guard became entirely ungovernable, and a terrible scene of pillage and ruin ensued. Stores were plundered, and the whole city was in a tumult with their riotous proceedings.—Great damage was also done by the explosion of one of the rebel magazines. Among the victims of the explosion were all the victims of the almshouse close by. The damage done by the fire is enormous. Three sections of the city bounded by Main street and the river, and Seventh, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets are destroyed. It is estimated that eight hundred buildings were burned. The flames were finally arrested by blowing up the Negro Trader's Bank building by order of General Shipley. The colored troops were treated by the negro inhabitants in the most extravagant manner.

The Richmond Whig was issued on Tuesday by the former editor, he having given pledges of a hearty support to the Union cause.

The work of removing the obstructions from the James river is progressing rapidly. It is believed that some of our smaller vessels will be able to go to Richmond this week.

The prisoners who have arrived at City Point number 11,000.

Washington, April 6.—The following is a continuation of General Meade's report:

The Sixth Corps came up with the enemy about four P. M., and, in conjunction with the the Second on the right, and cavalry on the left, attacked and routed the enemy and captured many prisoners, among them Generals Ewell, Curtis and Lee. I transmit dispatches from Humphrey and Wright, which in justice to these distinguished officers and the gallant corps they command, I beg may be sent to the Department for publicity. It is impossible at this moment to give any estimate of the casualties on the other side or of the number of prisoners taken. It is evident that to-day's work is going to be one of the most important of the most brilliant operations. The pursuit will be continued as soon as the troops have had some rest. General Griffin of the Fifth Corps, will be moved by the left, and General Wright and General Humphrey continue the direct pursuit as long as it promises success.

(Signed) MEADE.

Headquarters Sixth Corps, April 6th, 10 P. M.—In pursuance of instructions this morning from General Meade, I moved from Jenkinsville, by the shortest practicable road to the left of Deatonville, with the object of there taking a position on the left of the Second Corps. Striking the road running from Deatonville to Burke's station, at a point a little to the northward of the former place, I found the Second Corps was engaged at the front and right, and the cavalry heavily on my left. Moving down the road toward Burke's perhaps a mile, running sharp to the right, I moved across toward a small pond which the enemy was moving and along which he had thrown up a line of entrenchments. As soon as the leading division of General Seymour could be formed it was moved up the road held by the enemy, which was carried; then turning to the left, I was advanced down the road for a distance of about two miles, arriving at a deep and difficult creek, where we found the enemy had reformed his lines on the opposite side, which we attacked and drove him to a point a distance of about half a mile further. On the first attack a portion of cavalry operated on the left flank, and on the subsequent one the mass of cavalry operated on the left and right flank of the enemy. The result has been a complete success. Our combined forces captured five General officers, and a large number of other prisoners. We shall go into camp about two miles beyond this point, and await instructions. The first and third divisions, Wheaton's and Seymour's and the artillery, engaged to day behaved splendidly. The corps has nobly sustained their reputation earned on the second as well as in the previous hard fought battle fields.

[Signed] WRIGHT.

The Tribune's Richmond correspondent says that when Davis received Lee's dispatches in church, he rose much agitated, and left the church, all eyes being centered upon him. When the services were concluded the minister was handed a note, and he, too, hastened off as speedily as possible. There are seven distinct lines of fortifications surrounding Richmond, protected by a new style of a most formidable chevaux de frize. They consist of sharp hewn sticks, projecting like spokes from a hub, so close that they cannot be crawled through. Among the first to seek an interview with the President was Judge Campbell. He was with him half an hour, and again longer the next day. On the part of the citizens there is a general disposition to acquiesce in a desire to return to the Union.

The Whig gives additional particulars of the evacuation, which has been going on for months, but the people were blinded and refused to believe that the removal meant an evacuation, as all declared that the measures were only precautionary. On Sunday morning the gold and silver coin belonging to the Louisiana banks, and recently appropriated by the Confederate Congress, was sent down to the Danville train, and also the specie of the Richmond banks. The programme for the departure of officials was arranged and a number of officers were to leave during the evening. Still there was not room for all who thought it desirable to get away.—Jeff. Davis left at 7 P. M. Breckinridge went on horseback with the last of the army on Monday.

Correspondence Between Gen. Grant and Lee.

Clifton House, Va., April 8.—Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War: The following correspondence has taken place between General Lee and myself. There has been no relaxation in the pursuit during its pendency.

U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

April 7.—General R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—General.—The result of last week must convince you of the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the Army of Northern Virginia, in the struggle. I feel that it is so, and regard it as my duty to shrink from myself the responsibility of any further effusion of blood, and therefore, before considering your proposition, ask the terms you will offer on condition of its surrender.

R. E. LEE, General.

April 8.—Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—General.—Your note of last evening, in reply, I would say, that peace being my first desire there is but one condition I insist upon, viz: The men surrendered shall be disqualified from taking up arms against the United States until properly exchanged. I will meet you or designate officers to meet any officers you may name for the same purpose, at any point agreeable to you, for the purpose of arranging definitely the terms upon which a surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia will be received.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

April 8.—General:—I received at a late hour your note of to-day in answer to mine of yesterday. I did not intend to propose the surrender of the army of Northern Virginia, but to ask the terms of your proposition. To be frank with you, I do not think the emergency has arisen to call for the surrender of the army, but as the restoration of peace should be the sole object of all, I desire to know if your proposals would tend to that end. I cannot, therefore, meet you with a view to the surrender of Northern Virginia, but so far as your proposition may affect the Confederate States' forces under my command, and tend to the restoration of peace, I should be glad to meet you at 10 A. M. to-morrow, on the old stage road to Richmond, between the picket lines of the two armies.

Very respectfully, etc.,
R. E. LEE, General.

April 9.—General R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—Your note of Yesterday is received. As I have no authority to treat on the subject of peace, the meeting proposed for 10 A. M. to-day, could lead to no good. I will state, however, General, that I am equally anxious for peace with yourself, and the whole north entertain the same feeling. The terms upon which peace can be had are well understood by the South. Laying down their arms they will hasten that much desirable end, save thousands of human lives, and hundreds of millions of property not yet destroyed. Sincerely hoping that all our difficulties may be settled without the loss of another man, I subscribe myself.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General.

Appomattox Court House, April 9.—Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—In accordance with the substance of my letter to you of the 8th, I propose to receive the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on the following terms, to wit:

Rolls of all the officers and men to be made in duplicate, one copy to be given to an officer designated by me, the other to be retained by such officer or officers as you may designate. The officers to give their individual parole not to take up arms against the Government of the United States until properly exchanged, and each company or regiment commander to sign a like parole for the men of their commands. The arms, artillery and public property to be parked and stacked, and turned over to the officer appointed by me to receive them. This will not embrace the side-arms of the officers nor their private horses nor baggage. This done each officer and man will be allowed to their homes, not to be disturbed by the United States authority so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside.

Very respectfully,
U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

Headquarters Army of Northern Virginia, April 9.—General:—I have received your letter of this date, containing the terms of surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, as proposed by you. As they are substantially the same as expressed in your letter of the 8th instant, they are accepted. I will proceed to designate the proper officers to carry the stipulations into effect.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE, General.

New York, April 8.—The Herald's Mobile Bay correspondent of the 31st, says it appears that General Granger's and General Smith's Corps marched from Danby's mill on the 25th, for Blakely, meeting with slight opposition only on the first day. On the 25th, the Fifteenth Corps arrived and moved toward the fort at Spanish Point, a strong earthwork, encountering and driving in the rebel cavalry. In the evening Granger encamped on the left of that fort and the Sixteenth Corps continued on towards Blakely, encamping at Sibley's mills, five miles from Mobile, on the 26th. On the morning of the 27th our forces advanced on the fort at Spanish Point, driving in the rebels, capturing the rifle-pits, and establishing our batteries within 400 yards of the fort. On the 24th, our forces were entrenched within 70 yards of the fort. Several lives have been lost by the torpedoes strewn about. Our loss averages 150 per day. 300 of the enemy had been cut off by a portion of our force, but are not yet captured, owing to their having taken refuge in the swamps. Early on the morning of the 30th, the rebels made an attack, and were handsomely repulsed, with heavy loss. The rebel fleet of gunboats are on the right, within musket range of our troops, and the earthworks are being completed to mount sixty guns. Our losses to the 31st are about eight hundred. Five of our monitors and the gunboat Octoroon have crossed Blakely bar, and the others were speedily arriving. On the 31st the siege guns and mortars were being placed in position, and a heavy cannonading was opened on the Spanish Point fort, which continued all day. The result is not known. Steele's column Pensacola on the 19th. He captured a train of cars at Greenwood. At Pollard, Alabama, two rebel cavalry regiments were routed. Brigadier General Clawson, twenty-two officers, four hundred men and four hundred and fifty horses were captured. The Twenty-seventh Regiment, Col. Spurling with a detachment of the Seventh Maine and First Florida Cavalry, cut the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad capturing two wagon trains and one hundred prisoners. General Steele an force have arrived at Blakely, six miles from Spanish Point, and would soon unite with General Canby.

A naval letter to the Herald states that the monitor Milwaukee was blown up by a torpedo on the 28th, on the Osage, while operating against the Spanish Point Fort. Four sailors were killed on the Osage and six seriously injured. Only one was injured on the Milwaukee. One of the turrets of the Milwaukee is still out of the water, is in working order and is used. They will probably be raised. The rebels are sending down torpedoes and fire-rafts. The force in the Spanish Point Fort is estimated at between six and seven thousand, it having been reinforced from Mobile by water on the night of the 29th. It is rumored that Forrest and his whole force had reached Blakely. The rebel ram Nashville and the gunboats Tuscaloosa, Morgan and Natchez are in Blakely river, evidently intending to give battle to our monitors in the west of the bay. Our gunboats have had several skirmishes with water batteries, driving the rebels from their guns. The rebel troops in the Spanish Point Fort are commanded by Maury.

Washington, April 10.—The Departments are all closed to-day, and everybody is keeping holiday. Secretary Stanton expresses the opinion that there will be no more heavy fighting. It is expected here that Johnston will surrender.

There is reason to believe that Jeff. Davis was at Danville on Saturday night, trying to join Johnston with the archives of the late rebel government and a large amount of specie.

Reliable information has been received from a gentleman at 6 P. M. Richmond yesterday, that General Shipley by order of the President, has given safe conduct to Senator Hunter to go and come from that city. He is supposed to be on his estate, in Essex county, fifty miles from Richmond. No prayers were offered in the churches yesterday for the President, and none for the confederacy. The citizens generally regard the war as over, and further resistance unwise.

Suburbs Commute Began In '60s

Quentin Ferries Coaches Ran On Daily Basis

In the 1860s, Marin's climate began attracting wealthy San Franciscans to the North Bay shore. The commute to the suburbs had begun.

The steam navigation pioneer had arrived in the San Francisco Bay in 1849 when he was 34. It was in this year East coast steamers started plying around the horn to take over the packet service of the San Francisco Bay waters.

During 1865 a toll road was built across the marshes from San Rafael to the ferry wharf eliminating the uncomfortable jog across the San Rafael ridge; the same year ferry fares were reduced from $2 to $1. A monthly commute book sold for $15.00. The Stage Co. also reduced its fare from $1 to 50 cents.

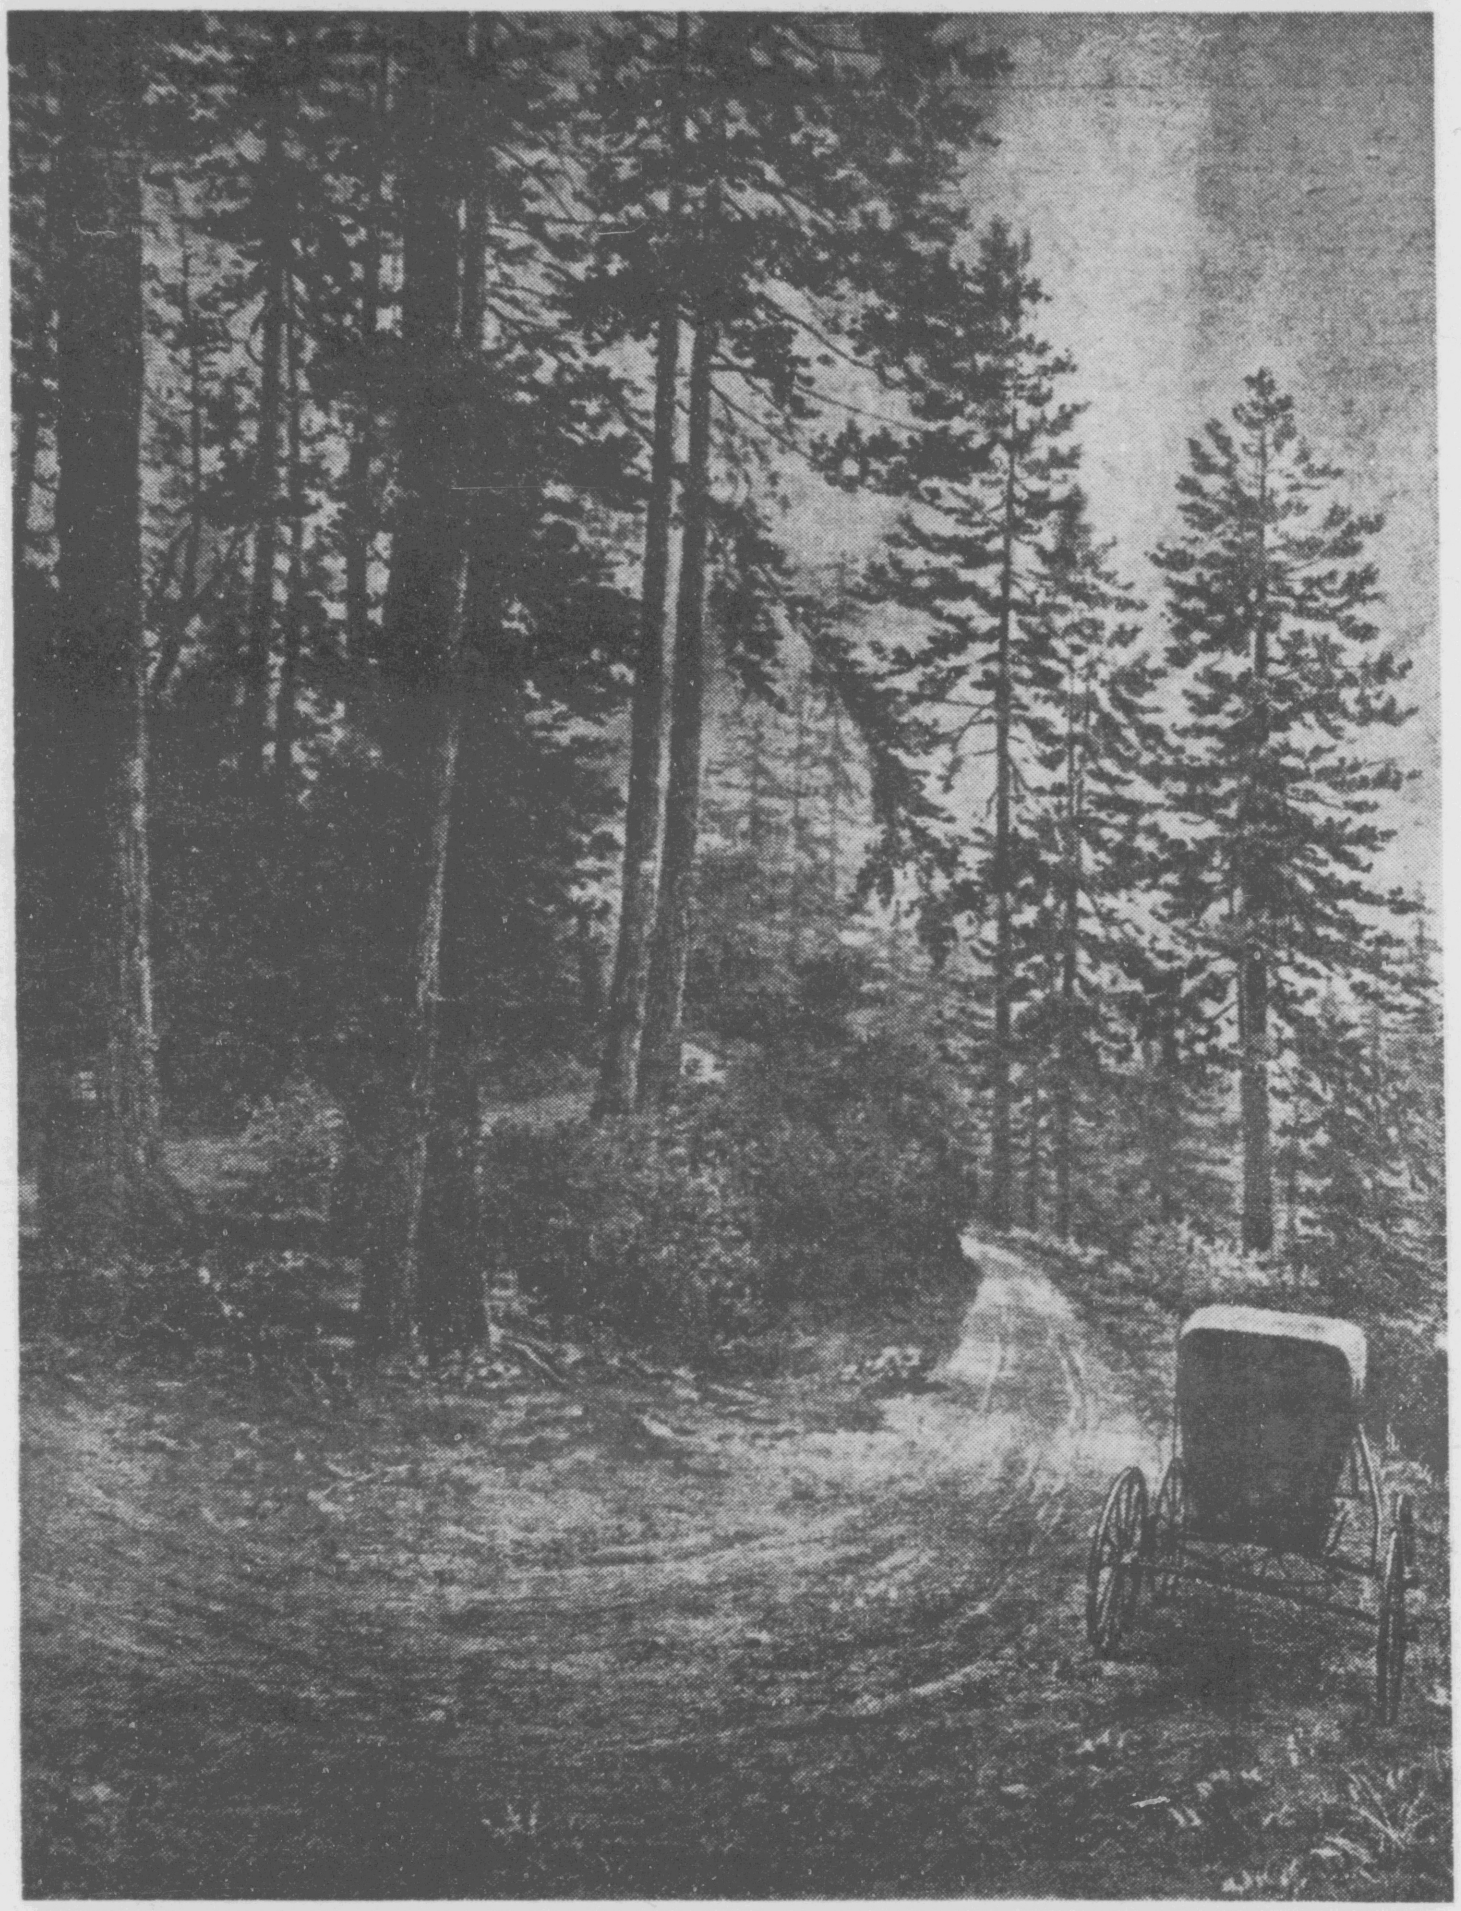
If a harried passenger missed the Minturn ferry he had a chance to catch Peter Smith's sloop that sailed from Ross' Landing every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

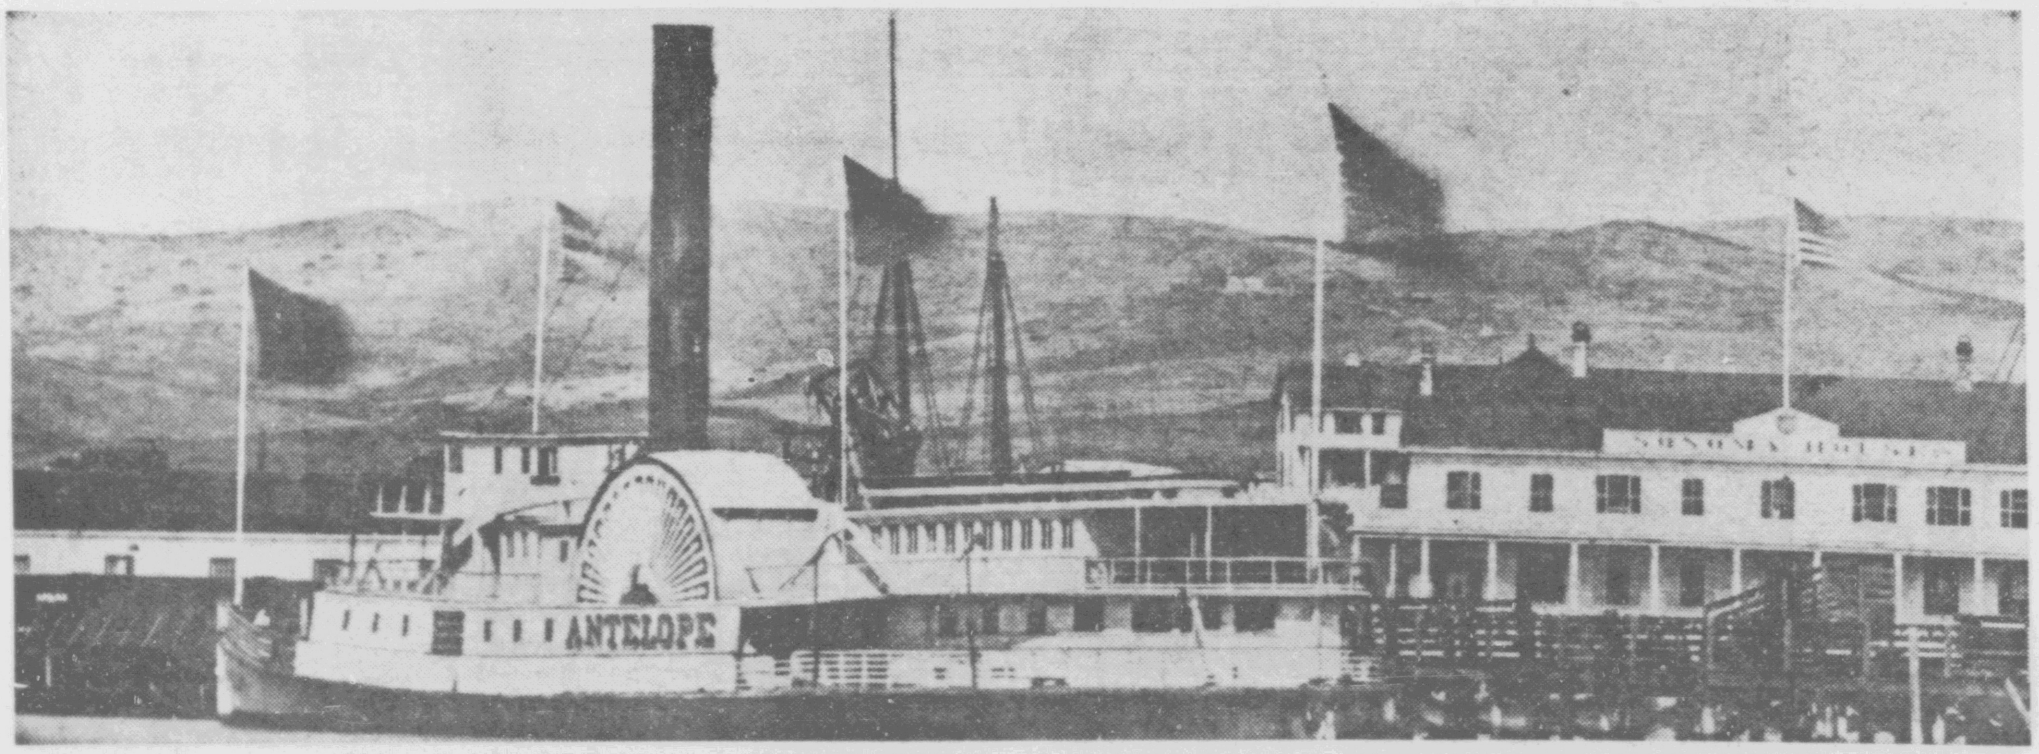
TRAVELERS HEADED toward the western coast could buy a seat on the Nelson and Henderson stage that left San Rafael every Wednesday and Saturday at 8 a.m. The western route was a long trek over White's Hill and the passengers had to make sleeping arrangements for the two day trip. Luckily for the early-day traveler Marin ranchers were known for their hospitality.

Two men by the name of Morse and Bassett ran a stage between San Rafael and Tomales by way of Novato, Petaluma and the Two Rock Valley.

Crude wagon wheels carved out dusty, rutted roads leading like arteries to the heart of the County Seat. Marin began to wed into one community.



MARIN RIBBONED BY RUTTED ROADS—Early Marin roads made coach travel dusty, slow and uncomfortable. Commuters caught a stage in San Rafael early every morning and after almost an hour's jostling ride arrived at the San Quentin ferryslip where they caught a San Francisco bound boat. This is Bolinas Road in San Rafael and coach is typical of private transportation during this period. (First published in Marin County Journal, 1889.)



PONY EXPRESS NEWS ON THE WAY—Early news dispatches brought across the Country by Pony Express riders were transported to the Bay Area from Sacramento by the steamer, Antelope. The Marin County Journal published these dispatches until the Pony Express was abolished. In 1863 the Journal began publishing news sent into Marin over the wire by the State Telegraphic Co. EARLY PRISON—The prisoners wore striped suits and were whipped and often half starved in the early days of San Quentin prison. Above is an artist's sketch of the great prison fire of 1872 that destroyed part of the prison. The sketch was printed in newspapers across the nation. (Marin County Historical Society)

State's First Prison Held Men, Women Inmates

On the morning of July 14, 1852, a slimy bottomed bark was towed across the clear waters of the Golden Gate to the jutting point three miles south of San Rafael called San Quentin.

The countryside was quiet, the hills etched humps under the sparkling summer sun, but when the small brig touched Marin's shore some of the county's serenity must have been shattered.

THE BARK WAS the home of 50 men and women prisoners of the State of California, aptly named "Hell Ship."

Benjamin R. Buckelew sold a portion of his Rancho Punta de Quentin to the State for $10,000 for the prison site. The prisoners were turned over to Gen. M. Estell who had contracted to guard, house, feed and shelter them for a 10 year period. He was to be paid for services rendered with the backbone grease of the prisoners.

It was San Quentin labor and San Quentin bricks that went into much of the building of early San Rafael.

The new prison rapidly began to swell beyond the 50-convict capacity for which the bark had been refitted. In that first year sheriffs from up and down the state had deposited an additional 100 convicts at San Quentin. (Sheriffs were then paid $1 a mile to deliver a man to the prison and subsequently beat a steady path to the boat's gangplank with every piece of human flesh they could lay their hands on.)

There was not enough water, sleeping quarters aboard the bark reeked of foul air causing illness and the spread of disease. What made it worse there was no hospital to treat the sick.

The guards used billy sticks, clubs and straps to discipline the prisoners. There was not enough food to go around, but the prisoners were allowed to have complete saloon facilities for a number of years.

When the legislature in Sacramento was told of the bar flourishing at the state prison, it replied: Why should these unfortunates deprived of their liberty also be deprived of the staff of life.

WHEN THE FIRST cell block was completed in 1853 conditions improved for a short time. Then trusty system was inaugurated to make up for the shortage of guards. Breaks increased as trustys shut their eyes as convicts "went over the hill."

The escaped convicts ruled as sylvan princes in the peaceful countryside. In the summer they camped by the babbling streams, fished for trout or salmon, snared deer and stole blankets, clothing and bacon and eggs from the terrified ranchers.

The prison changed hands several times and the state finally took over in 1860. Lt. Gov. I. N. Quinn was made ex-officio warden. Quinn was succeeded by T. N. Machin.

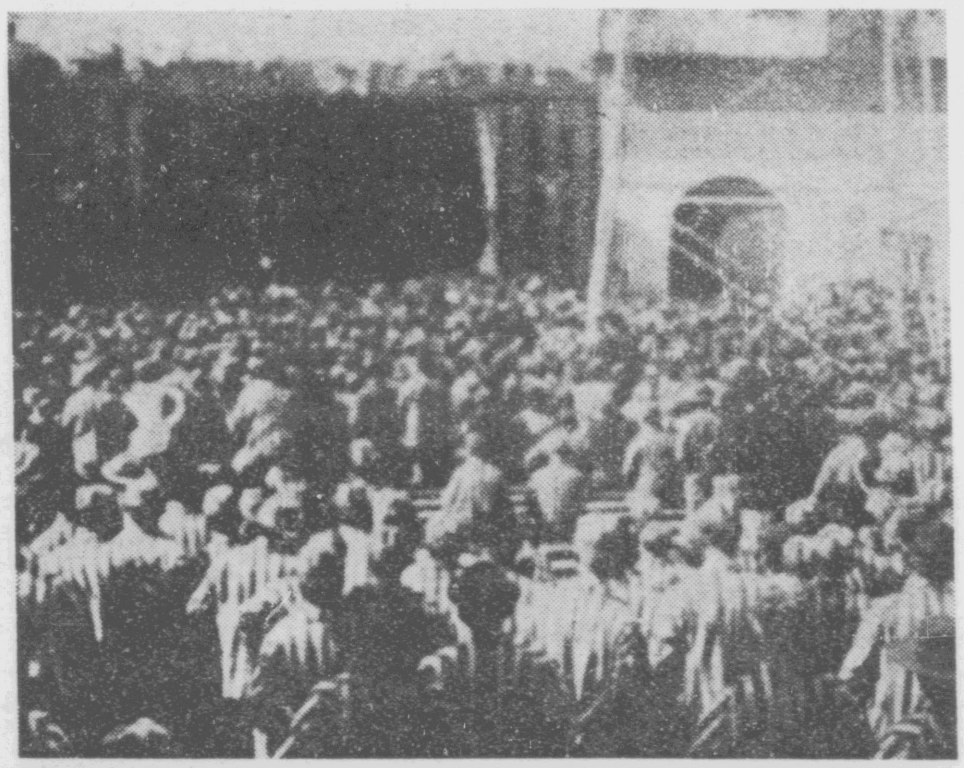
DURING THE administration of these two men the prisoners heads were shaved. They were dressed in rags, lashed with whips and given the water cure.

The prisoners revolted in April, 1864, seized Machin as hostage and forced their way out the main gate. They crossed the marshland to Ross' Landing where they came face to face with a platoon of farmers and loggers armed with rifles, clubs and pitchforks. The prisoners were defeated. A number were killed, and others ran for cover in the hills. Machin was saved and took charge of the punishment of the captured prisoners. He gave them severe treatment.

A messenger galloped into San Rafael and spread the word that the prisoners were about to invade the city. Residents clutching their possessions ran for protection of the courthouse or a store on Fourth Street.

PUBLIC OPINION turned completely against the prisoners. Forty years later with James H. Wilkins, a member of the State Board of Prisons, reform measures were introduced in the management of the prison. A parole law was enacted in 1893 and 12 years later an appropriation for building a new prison was passed.

When Clinton Duffy became warden of San Quentin in 1940 he permanently abolished the use of whips, straps and rubber hoses in the punishment of prisoners and later instituted a rehabilitation program.



PRISONERS WORE STRIPES — In the early days at San Quentin the inmates were dressed in stripes or red shirts so they would be better targets for guards to aim at in case of a break. The stripes alternated between vertical and horizontal. In 1894 San Quentin took over executions from the County sheriffs. The first man to be hanged at the prison was an Irishman, P. J. Sullivan who had slain his wife in San Francisco. (Marin County Historical Society)

TOMALES SETTLEMENT—John Keys, a native of Ireland, settled on the Tomales Bay in 1850 after failing to hit paydirt in the mines. He built a home, wharf and stores near the bay that then extended to the area, now known as Old Town. Keys' Embarcadero, pictured above, was a hub of activity in the early days. His small schooner Spray carried the Tomales farmers' wheat and potatoes to the San Francisco market. (Marin County Historical Society)

HOME AT OLEMA—They came to pay their rents in gold dust to the large, sturdy man seated on this porch. Judge James M. Shafter had this manor house, The Oaks, still standing near Olema built in 1869. The judge sat on this porch, flanked by boxes of gold as he collected his rents. The tenants paid so much a month per cow instead of by the acre. (Courtesy Mary Shafter)

INDIANS STALK GAME—The hills were overrun with wild herds of deer, elk and bear. The Indians were expert hunters. They also ate the mussels and sturgeon they took from the waters off the Marin coast. The grey-robed Franciscan taught them to plant crops and eat vegetables and fruit. The padres also brought the horse to California. The Indians became hard riding vaqueros, who galloped across the Marin hills herding the long horn. Other Marin Indians became expert mariners of the waters of the Bay.

Newspapers Told Marin History

As an Indian land, as focal point for human development, as the land discovered by Sir Frances Drake for the English in June, 1579, Marin's history spans far back into the past.

What is legend, what is fact, what is hard undisputable history? Much of Marin's very early history is mingled with pure story. Then came the keeping of records, one of the earliest of which was Drake's famous plate of "brasse," planted on Marin's shores when The Golden Hinde sought temporary refuge, and Drake's men made brief explorations. This much, say most historians, is fact.

It is legend that some of the ship's men stayed behind and intermarried with the native Indians.

Although Drake proclaimed the land Nova Albion, after his homeland, it was the Spanish who came to be earliest rulers. They left their records, too; much of the fact was contained in the early deeding of land grants, the turning over of vast ranchos to settlers.

Then came Mexican rule, and finally American. California became a state of the union. Villages and towns developed, and man had need for information and trading of ideas. Marin's first newspaper was born, and from then on there has been steady publication of events on every plane of human development.

It has been one hundred years since Marin's first newspaper was published. It is that event we now celebrate.

IN THE BEGINNING:

At First Marin's Valleys, Hills Slept, Then Spaniards Arrived

The canyons and hills were stocked with towering redwood, fir and laurel. Valleys dozed under a rich blanket of wild oats and tall grasses. The earth was moist and arable. Streams trickled down the sides of the palamino colored hills.

Brown-skinned Indians roamed the hills and plied the creeks and broad bay in tule canoes. The native lived off this land eating the wild oats and stalking big herds of deer and elk. They fished sturgeon and mussels from the bay waters and the clear running creeks.

THEY MADE THEIR homes in rush huts that frequently became vermin infested. But this was a simple problem to solve. The huts were burned to the ground and the tribe moved on to a new homesite.

Unmarried girls of the coastal Miwok tribe wore bracelets around the upper arm to designate a single status. The tribes were polygamous with the chief usually taking 11 wives, a sub-chief, nine and the average warrior, two.

In 1776, a detachment of Spanish dragoons crossed the San Francisco Bay and treked north to the area of the Olompali Indians, near the present site of Novato. The Indians were friendly and helped the Spanish leather jackets build a small adobe house.

FORTY-ONE YEARS slipped by. Then a worried Franciscan padre made a decision that awakened this sleeping area and stirred local Indians into a mood of rebellion.

Father Sarria, head of the flourishing mission of St. Francisco de Assis in San Francisco became alarmed that so many of his neophytes were ill and dying. He blamed the biting winds and coastal fogs for the illness that had overtaken his Indian charges and ordered a hospital mission to be built in San Rafael.

On Dec. 18, 1817, more than 500 sick neophytes were ferried across the Bay and moved to the new mission site on a six acre parcel of land surrounded by oak studded hills.

ONE OF SURVIVORS—After the California Missions were secularized in 1834 the local Coastal Miwoks were turned loose in a world they were not ready to cope with. Many died in smallpox epidemics and others from starvation. The few survivors were employed as domestics by the ranch-eros. (From "Tamal Land")

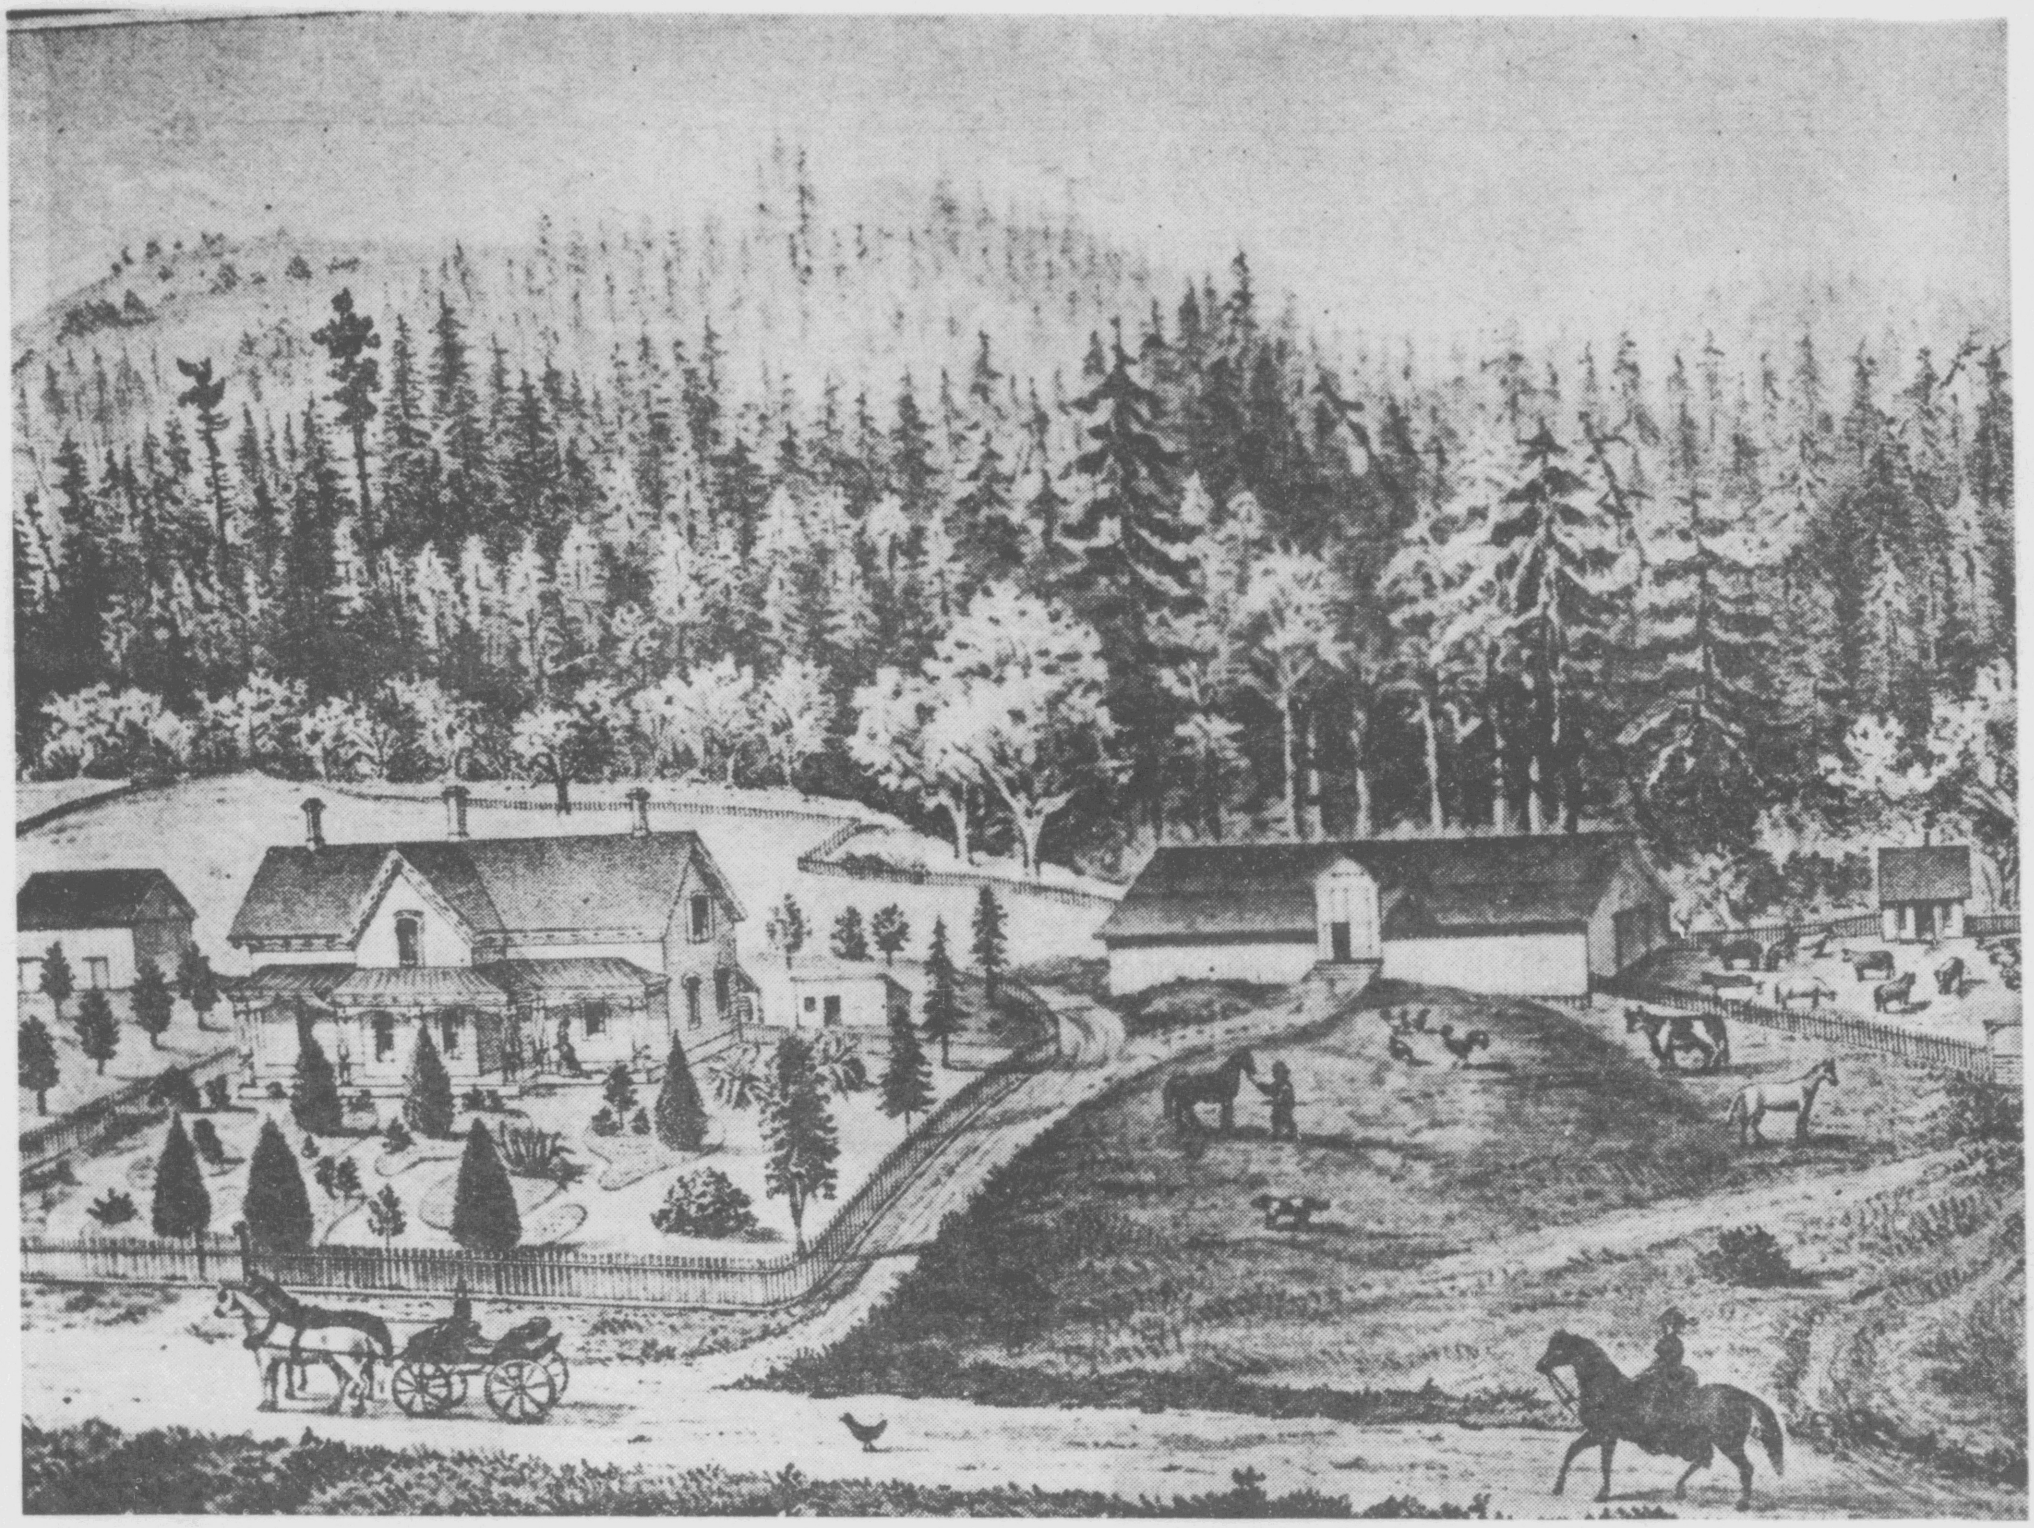
FIRST OF FOUR HISTORY EDITIONS

DOROTHY SLATTERY, a member of the Independent-Journal editorial staff, has worked for the better part of a year to produce from old files and countless interviews the history of Marin prior to and during the past century — the century of newspapering in Marin.

The first issue of the Marin County Journal was printed on a Washington hand press Mar. 23, 1861 in San Rafael. The Journal has been recording the story, the history, the growth of the county since that time. On the threshhold of a new century, we pause to look back at the past 100 years.

This is the first of four special editions that will tell of the days of the past.

Many other persons and organizations have been helpful in the production of this series. We would like to express our appreciation to the Marin County Library, Marin County Historical Society, Society of California Pioneers, California Historical Society, San Rafael Public Library and the countless historians and descendents of Marin early settlers who have shared their knowledge with us.



NEAR OLEMA—Woodside was built by Nelson Horatio Olds on a 3,890 acre ranch near Olema bought from Rafael Garcia in 1856. Olds who brought his family from New England around the Horn the same year paid Garcia $2 an acre and used the land for dairy ranching. In 1858 he paid a $121.55 tax bill to the county for his acreage. He built the barn pictured in the above lithograph in 1869 and the dairy house in 1863. It is still standing, and is the Boyd Stewart home. (Courtesy of Boyd Stewart)

Dairy Ranching Brought Butter To Marin —It Was The County's Own Kind Of Gold

In 1855, the Steele brothers arrived on the sandy flats of foggy Point Reyes. The earth was covered with wild strawberries, cut by steep ridges and sand dunes.

They rented acreage, stocked it it with 1,100 local longhorns and a few bulls they had brought from the East Coast.

The following year they started milking the cows, making cheese and churning butter. They shipped the cheese and butter to the San Francisco market by schooner out of the Bolinas harbor.

The land started to go fast. Roads were cut by the tread of wagon wheels leading from the ranchland to the harbor. The young city across the Bay was hungry for dairy products and the industry that would be Marin's resource for over a hundred years had been pioneered.

AFTER THE CIVIL WAR thousands of acres of wheat were planted at Tomales. Barges sailed into Old Town to pick up the grain shipments and bring them to the San Francisco market. Large crops of potatoes were planted by the Northern Irish immigrants who settled Tomales in the 1850's.

A young hand working on the Warren Dutton ranch in 1853 began experimenting with the tuber, improving the local crop. Many thousands of potatoes were shipped out of the small port of Ocean Roar.

Tomales was a booming city and the largest after San Rafael. In 1864 the town had a population of 300.

THE LAGOON THAT was used as a harbor in the 19th century was destroyed by the 1906 earthquake that leveled part of San Francisco and Bolinas.

Italian Swiss dairymen flocked to Point Reyes, Inverness and Olema in 1860. Large chunks of land had been bought by three prominent San Franciscans, James M. Shafter, his brother, Oscar Shafter and Oscar's son-in-law, Charles Webb Howard. The trio divided their land into 1,400-acre ranch sites, stocked each ranch with a dairy herd of 180 cows and rented the land out. Dairying was becoming a big business.

James Shafter put up a saw mill, cut redwood and built the ranch houses on his tenant farms. The land was cleared by Chinese labor and the top quality lumber from the western section was tied together and rafted across the Golden Gate to San Francisco.

James Shafter was a huge two-hundred pounder who sported a large black slouch hat and drove the best horses in California. He was a prominent San Francisco lawyer, a close friend of Leland Stanford.

SHAFTER'S SON, Payne, his wife and two daughters later lived at "The Oaks" near Olema, a ranch James had ordered built for his wife who died before she could occupy it.

Oscar Shafter was a supreme justice of California. His daughter, Emma, married Howard, another famous horse breeder of his day. The Shafters and Howard also raised beef cattle and had the cattle driven to the Petaluma Creek where they were loaded aboard the McNear's steamer, Gold, and sent on their way to San Francisco's Butcher Town.

The land was overrun with wild game. The Shafters leased thousands of acres of the Bear Ranch to members of San Francisco's Pacific Union Club. The members formed the exclusive Olema Country Club where visiting presidents, kings and dignataries were entertained until the club was wiped out in the financial crash of 1929.

WHILE RACING champions were being nurtured on the Marin grasses and noblemen were stalking quail and duck, the dairy industry was steadily mushrooming.

The Shafter and Howard tenant ranches were designated by letter, eg. "Y," "H" or "Z." Each tenant branded his butter with his letter using a small wooden disc. Schooners swung into Limantour and Drake's Bay to pick up the barrels of butter. Point Reyes butter was considered to be the highest premium butter in the country.

The tenants paid their landlords so much per cow instead of by the acre.

WAS SHERIFF—Nelson Olds came West the first time to fight in the Mexican War when he was 22 years old. He had been born at Painesville, Ohio. From the front window of his ranch home, Woodside, Olds watched Don Rafael Garcia ride by every day dressed in a velvet riding habit trimmed in silver. In 1862 Olds was appointed sheriff. Padres Taught Indians Farming

Horses, Cattle Came To Marin

A year after the founding of Mission San Rafael Arcangel the rich brown earth, north of the Golden Gate had been struck for the first time. Orchards were planted on both sides of the L shaped adobe building and the horse and Spanish long horn had arrived on the scene.

Fine Arabian stock imported from Spain grazed on the hillsides and fat longhorns roamed over the Mission lands.

The grey-robed padres taught the Indian neophyte to dress, plant crops, tend livestock, ride a cow pony and navigate streams. The sick were nursed.

The Indian learned craftsmanship under the watchful eye of the Franciscan. The priests felt the land belonged to the Indian and that they were merely acting as guardians until the Indian had advanced to where he could manage his own affairs.

BUT WHEN California passed from Spanish hands into the Mexican realm in 1822 things began to change. The mission land was rich and it was wanted.

In 1834 the Act of Secularization closed the missions in California, the Franciscan was ousted and his Indian ward was turned loose in a world with which he was not ready to cope.

The result was eventual destruction of the Marin Indian, the disposing of large land grants and the birth of a new way of life that has never been equaled. It was the birth of an era called, "Paradise."

INDIANS CALLED MISSION "NANAGUANI"—But the Franciscan Fathers named it Mission San Rafael Arcangel when they established the 21st Upper California Mission in a flower-laden Marin valley in the winter of 1817. They erected an adobe rancho, chapel, baptistry and cemetery and dedicated it to St. Raphael "to care for bodies as well as souls." The original Mission was razed in 1861. ON EVE OF RODEO—At an old California rancho, Mexican and Indian vaqueros worked together to round up horses and wild cattle. Usually two men worked together from horseback. One lassoed the horns while the second tossed his riata over the animal's hind legs. The riders reined back their horses jerking the cow to the ground. If they were slaughtering the beast, the vaquero working the hind legs dismounted and plunged a knife into the animal's neck. (Society of California Pioneers)

Mexicans Granted Ranchos; Era Was Called 'Paradise'

From the mountains falling off to narrow valleys to the grass covered plains, Marin was wild, wide open and untamed. Then six men arrived in the 1830s, took land, stocked ranchos and civilization was born.

Marin began to progress.

THE OLD INDIAN chief, Marin, the last of the warriors died quietly in the Mission at San Rafael and was laid to rest in the church graveyard. The Mexican government closed the Missions, the Franciscan padres left the land they found and "paradise" dawned in the eastern skies.

The man who opened the eden of the Spanish-speaking pastoral was born in Dublin, Ireland.

John Reed was only a boy when he jumped ship in San Francisco Bay in 1826. He was given quarters at San Francisco presidio.

WHILE ON an excursion across the harbor straits he saw land he coveted for his own, and when he was 21 petitioned the Mexican governor at Monterey to grant him the Rancho Saucelito. Reed was a man who wanted to get things done. Before the grant was approved he moved across the Bay and pitched camp.

But the government said no to Reed's request. The land was too valuable as a military holding. A disappointed Reed packed his things and shoved off for the north. Again he set up camp and asked the government for a grant, this time in Sonoma County, but before the governor could reply hostile Indians had driven Reed back to the Presidio.

THE HEAD OF THE Mission Dolores in San Francisco felt sorry for Reed and made him major-domo at the San Rafael Mission, but six years later Reed was back on the Rancho Saucelito, again petitioning the government for the grant.

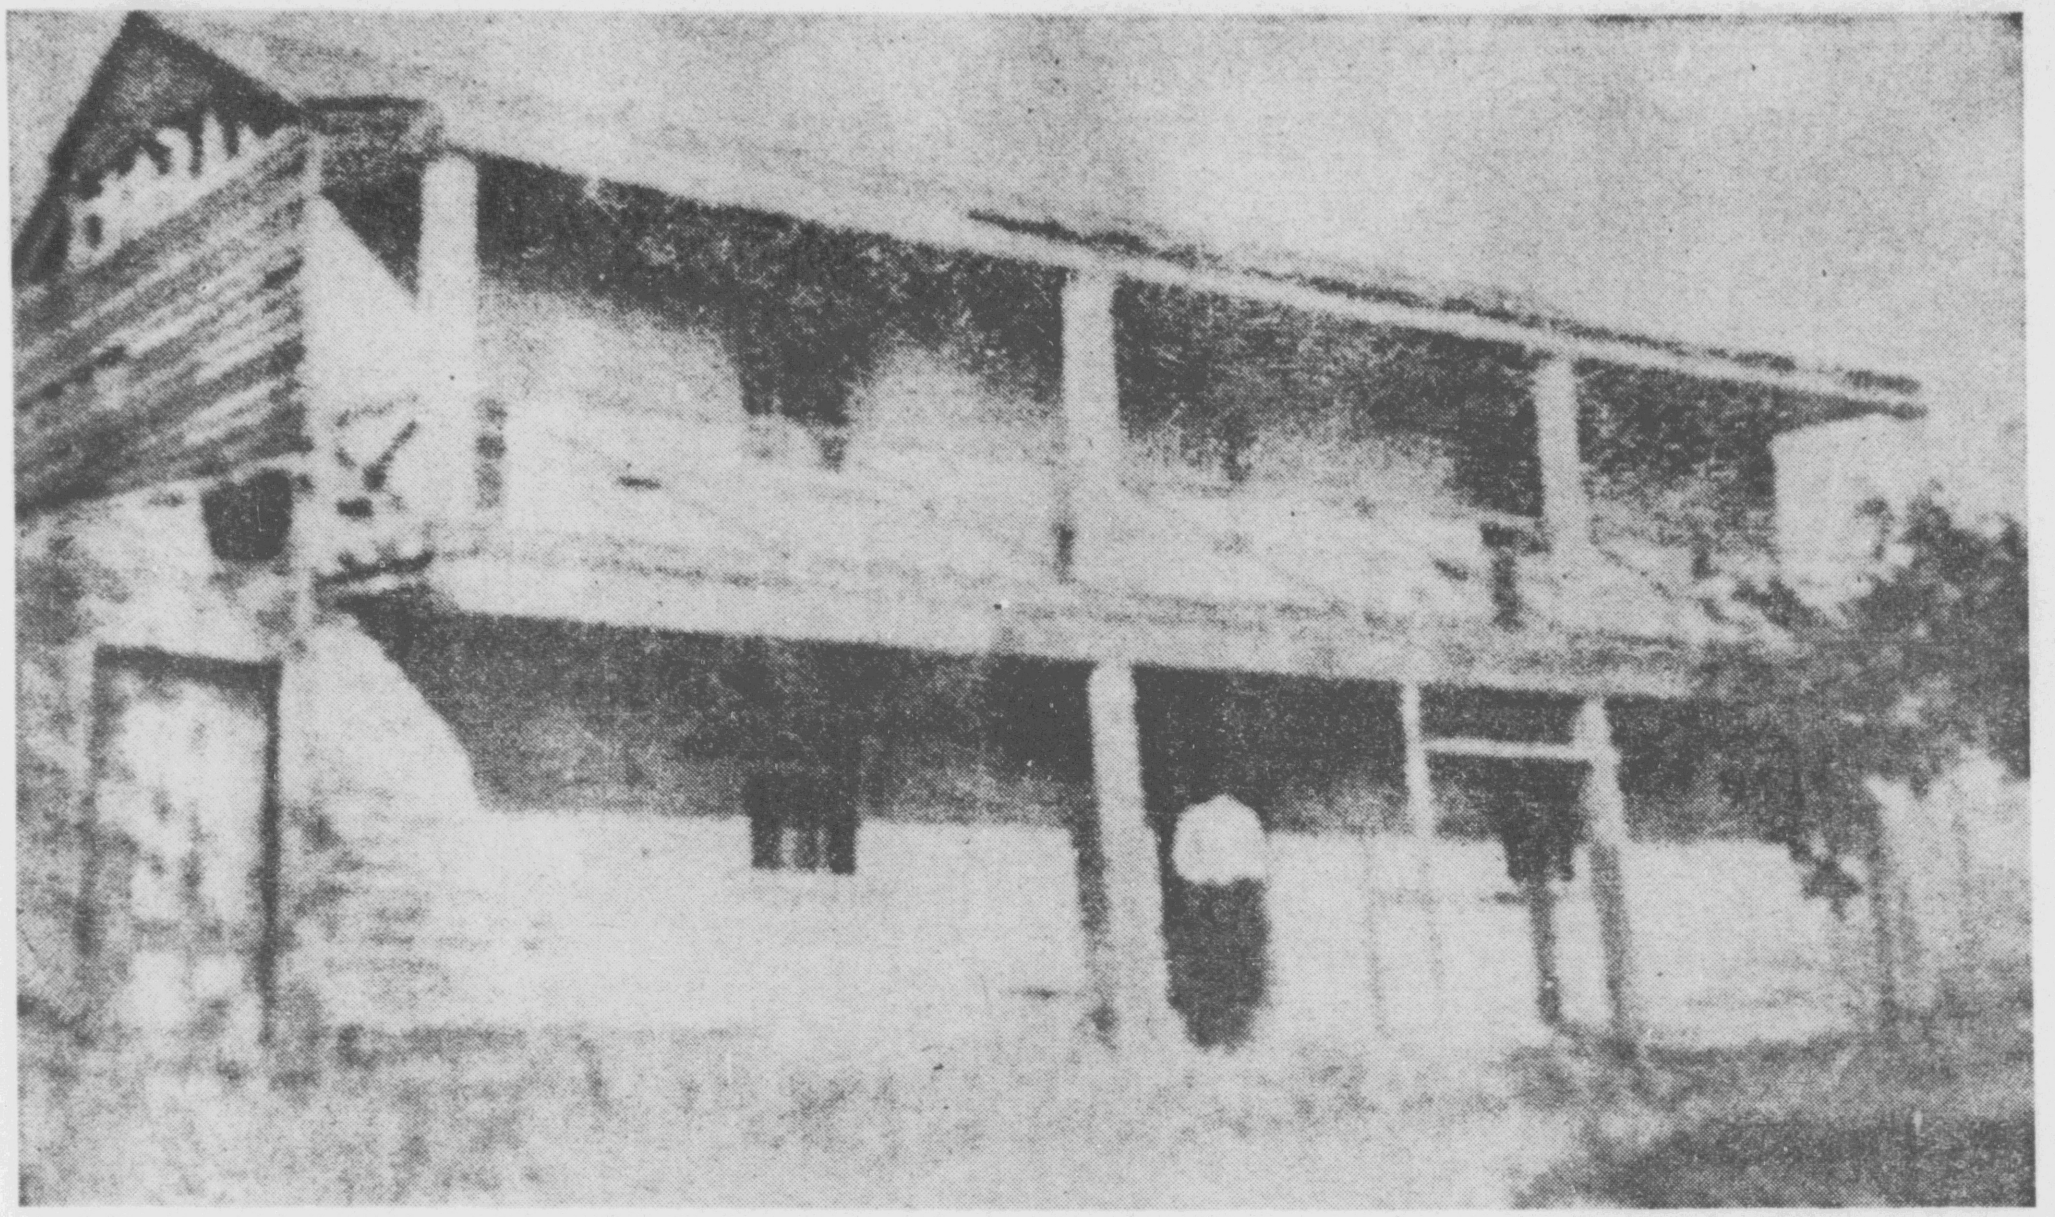
This time Reed built a wooden shanty and opened a ferrying business. He plied his small boat back and forth between Marin and Yerba Buena Island before the governor agreed to give him an 8,878-acre grant directly across the bay from the Rancho Saucelito.

The Corte Madera del Presidio included the Tiburon peninsula to the south, Mill Valley to the west and the sloughs of San Quentin to the north.

REED HIRED Indians at Sutter's Fort to come south and work at his rancho. He bought basalt stones from the Russians at Fort Ross and built the first saw mill on the land in the tangled, timber stacked forest at the western end of his grant.

He fenced the land, planted orchards and imported cattle. He dressed like a Spaniard, he spoke Castillian, went by the name Juan and became a don when he married into California aristocracy in 1836. His bride was Hilarita Sanchez, the youngest daughter of the commander at the Presidio. Reed was not yet 30.

The age called "paradise" was staring the land full in the face.



EARLY BOLINAS HOME—Briones Hacienda at Bolinas pictured as it looked near the close of the last century. Don Gregorio Briones, remembered as a just and considerate man, raised cattle for the hide and tallow trade on his Bolinas rancho. He ordered the first dance floor erected in western Marin in 1850 for the marriage fiesta of his daughter, Maria, who had ridden over the hills double with her fiance, Francisco Sebrean, to be married in the Mission at San Rafael. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas)

EARLY AMERICAN WIFE—Nelson Olds' wife, Lavinia Martin, was 25 when her husband brought her to Olema to live. She was a native New Yorker. When the Olds family arrived on their ranch site Christmas Eve, 1856, they found squatters were already living on their land. A $100 payment persuaded the brigands to look for new pastures. (Courtesy Boyd Stewart)

OLDS SON—Nels Olds was a small boy when his family moved to Olema. He fished for trout and salmon in a nearby creek and hiked through the raw, new land that was opening up under the hard working hands of men like his father who had come West to carve a new way of life. The family moved to Southern California in the 1870s but Nels Olds returned as a guest of the present owners of Woodside, the Boyd Stewarts. (Courtesy Boyd Stewart)

PIONEER DAIRYMAN — A. J. Pierce arrived on Point Reyes in 1859. Later he purchased the 2,200 acre ranch on the tip of Tomales Bay. He was respected as one of the finest dairymen in Marin. Pierce Point was named for him. In 1860, the county was already producing 932,427 pounds of butter and 533,000 pounds of cheese annually. (Marin County Library)

INDIANS STALK GAME—The hills were overrun with wild herds of deer, elk and bear. The Indians were expert hunters. They also ate the mussels and sturgeon they took from the waters off the Marin coast. The grey-robed Franciscan taught them to plant crops and eat vegetables and fruit. The padres also brought the horse to California. The Indians became hard riding vaqueros, who galloped across the Marin hills herding the long horn. Other Marin Indians became expert mariners of the waters of the Bay.

Newspapers Told Marin History

As an Indian land, as focal point for mission development, as the land discovered by Sir Frances Drake for the English in June, 1579, Marin's history spans far back into the past.

What is legend, what is fact, what is hard undisputable history? Much of Marin's very early history is mingled with pure story. Then came the keeping of records, one of the earliest of which was Drake's famous plate of "brasse," planted on Marin's shores when The Golden Hinde sought temporary refuge, and Drake's men made brief explorations. This much, say most historians, is fact.

It is legend that some of the ship's men stayed behind and intermarried with the native Indians.

Although Drake proclaimed the land Nova Albion, after his homeland, it was the Spanish who came to be earliest rulers. They left their records, too; much of the fact was contained in the early deeding of land grants, the turning over of vast ranchos to settlers.

Then came Mexican rule, and finally American. California became a state of the union. Villages and towns developed, and man had need for information and trading of ideas. Marin's first newspaper was born, and from then on there has been steady publication of events on every plane of human development.

It has been one hundred years since Marin's first newspaper was published. It is that event we now celebrate.

IN THE BEGINNING:

At First Marin's Valleys, Hills Slept, Then Spaniards Arrived

The canyons and hills were stocked with towering redwood, fir and laurel. Valleys dozed under a rich blanket of wild oats and tall grasses. The earth was moist and arable. Streams trickled down the sides of the palamino colored hills.

Brown-skinned Indians roamed the hills and plied the creeks and broad bay in tule canoes. The native lived off this land eating the wild oats and stalking big herds of deer and elk. They fished sturgeon and mussels from the bay waters and the clear running creeks.

THEY MADE THEIR homes in rush huts that frequently became vermin infested. But this was a simple problem to solve. The huts were burned to the ground and the tribe moved on to a new homesite.

Unmarried girls of the coastal Miwok tribe wore bracelets around the upper arm to designate a single status. The tribes were polygamous with the chief usually taking 11 wives, a sub-chief, nine and the average warrior, two.

In 1776, a detachment of Spanish dragoons crossed the San Francisco Bay and treked north to the area of the Olompali Indians, near the present site of Novato. The Indians were friendly and helped the Spanish leather jackets build a small adobe house.

FORTY-ONE YEARS slipped by. Then a worried Franciscan padre made a decision that awakened this sleeping area and stirred local Indians into a mood of rebellion.

Father Sarria, head of the flourishing mission of St. Francisco de Assis in San Francisco became alarmed that so many of his neophytes were ill and dying. He blamed the biting winds and coastal fogs for the illness that had overtaken his Indian charges and ordered a hospital mission to be built in San Rafael.

On Dec. 18, 1817, more than 500 sick neophytes were ferried across the Bay and moved to the new mission site on a six acre parcel of land surrounded by oak studded hills.

ONE OF SURVIVORS—After the California Missions were secularized in 1834 the local Coastal Miwoks were turned loose in a world they were not ready to cope with. Many died in smallpox epidemics and others from starvation. The few survivors were employed as domestics by the rancheros. (From "Tamal Land")

FIRST OF FOUR HISTORY EDITIONS

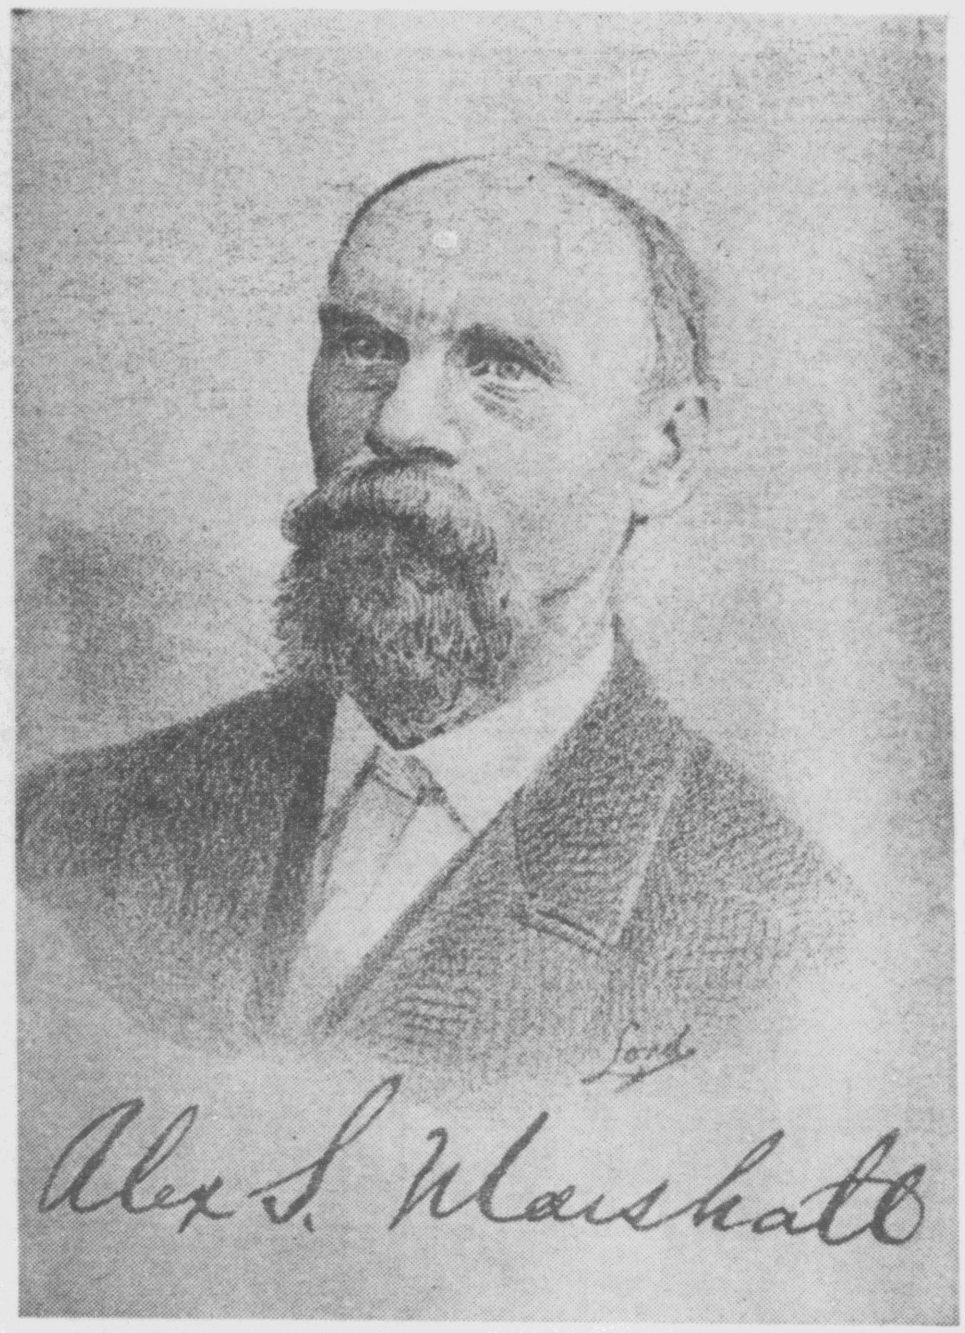
DOROTHY SLATTERY, a member of the Independent-Journal editorial staff, has worked for the better part of a year to produce from old files and countless interviews the history of Marin prior to and during the past century — the century of newspapering in Marin.

The first issue of the Marin County Journal was printed on a Washington hand press Mar. 23, 1861 in San Rafael. The Journal has been recording the story, the history, the growth of the county since that time. On the threshhold of a new century, we pause to look back at the past 100 years.

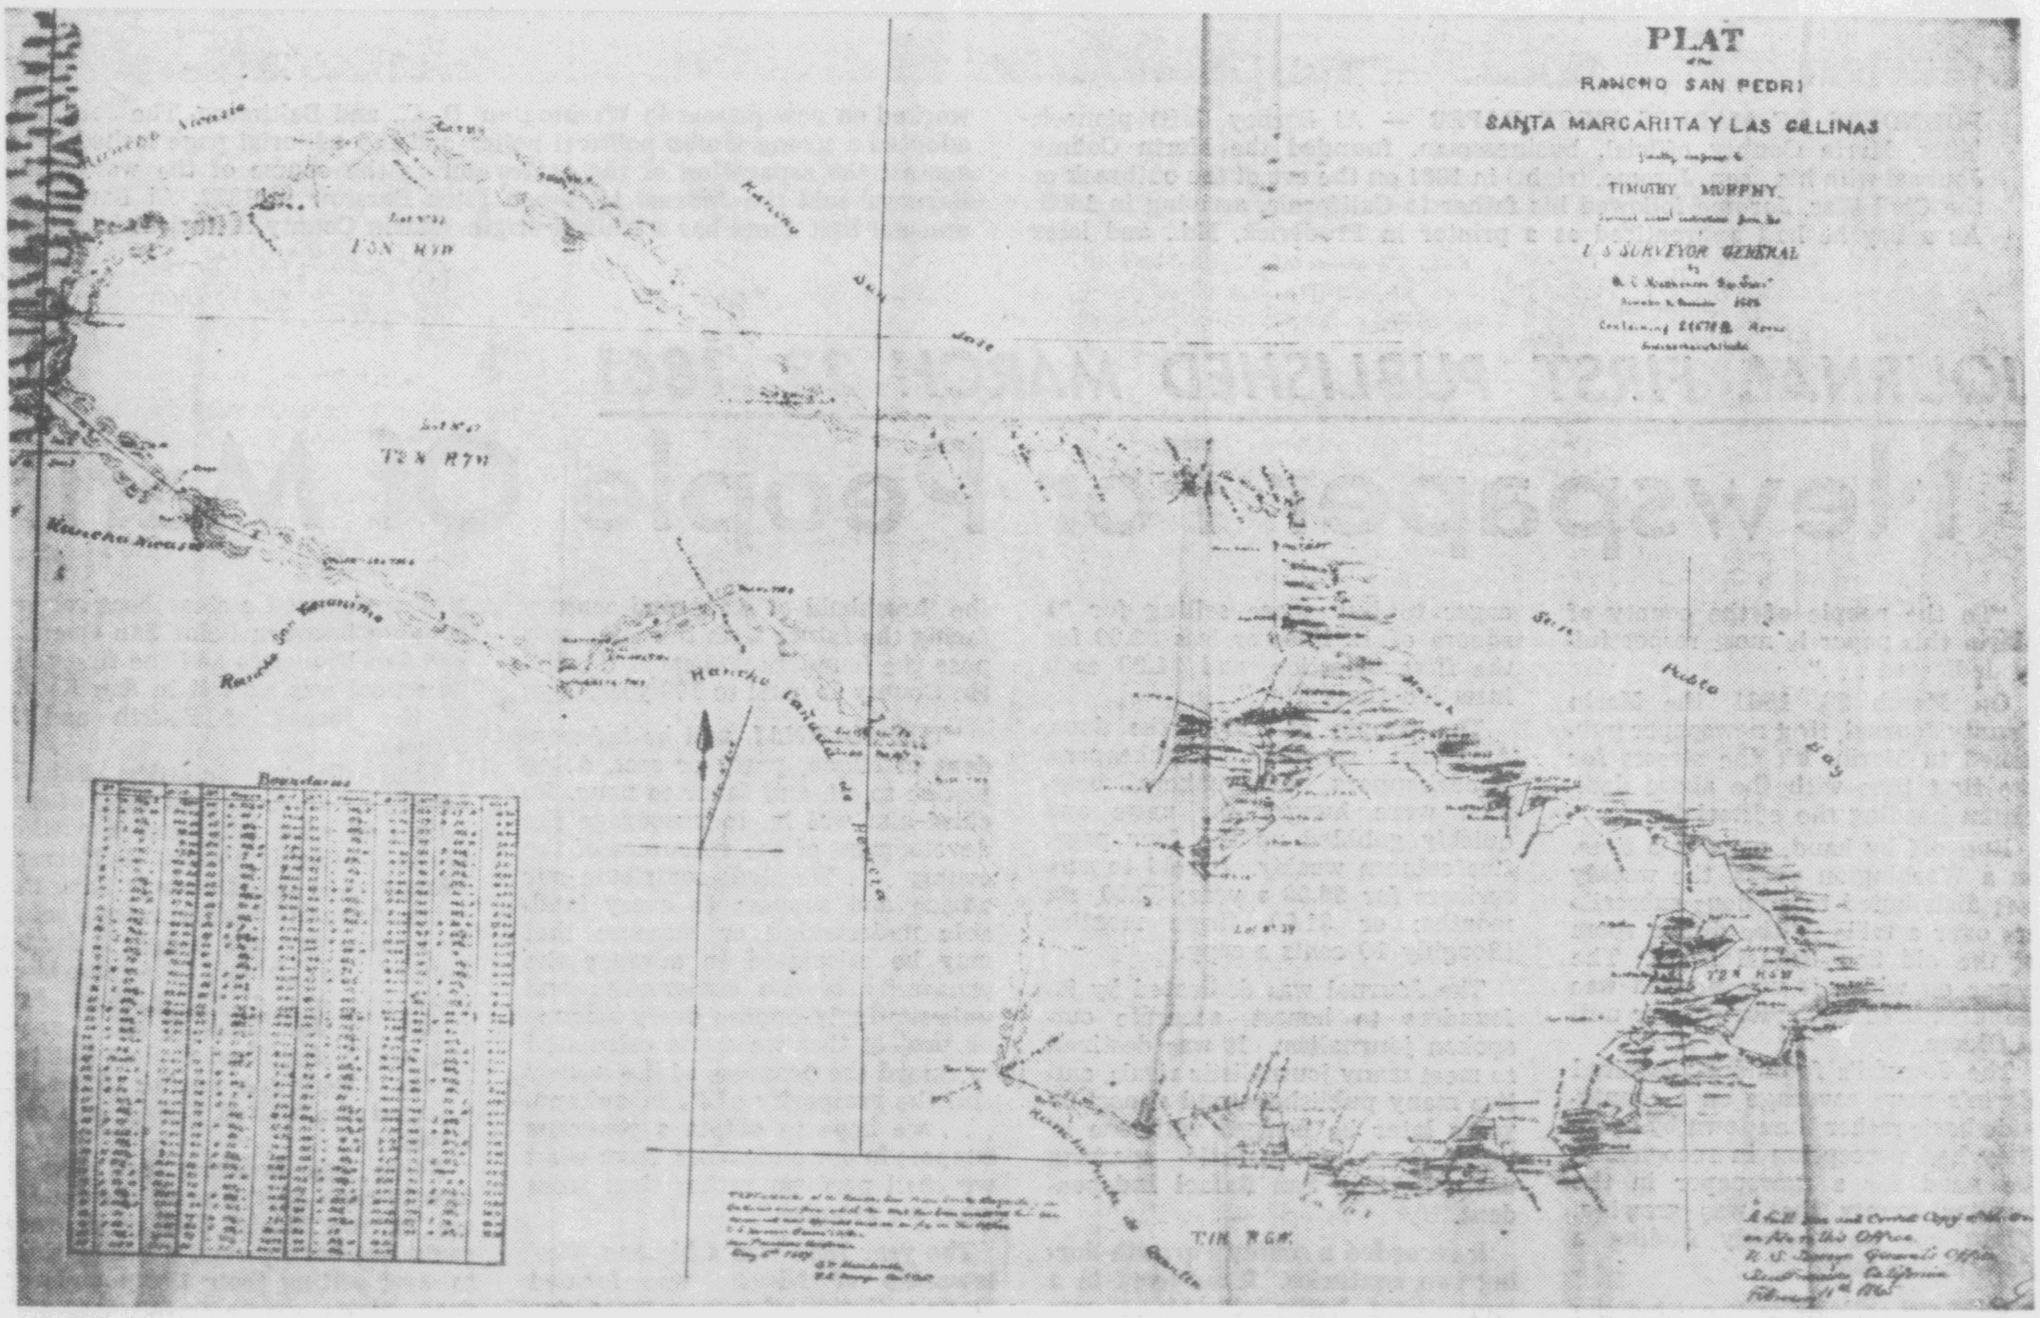
This is the first of four special editions that will tell of the days of the past.

Many other persons and organizations have been helpful in the production of this series. We would like to express our appreciation to the Marin County Library, Marin County Historical Society, Society of California Pioneers, California Historical Society, San Rafael Public Library and the countless historians and descendents of Marin early settlers who have shared their knowledge with us.

NAME GIVEN TO MARIN TOWN—Lady Charles Snowden Fairfax moved to her "Birds Nest Glen" homesite with her husband, Lord Fairfax, in the 1860s. Her husband was prominent in California political circles. After coming to California in 1849, he was clerk of the State supreme court from 1854 to 1859, and chairman of the State delegation to the Democratic convention in 1868. He was also assemblyman from Yuba and Sierra counties from 1857 to 1866. Lady Fairfax was the niece of Senator John Calhoun. The Fairfax home later became Pastori's restaurant and the site of the Marin Town and Country Club. (Courtesy of Mrs. Tony Sechitano)



EARLY SETTLER—Western Marin was settled in the 1850s by a group of Northern Irishmen who planted crops and turned it into a potato and wheat producing area. Alex Marshall with his brother settled on a large ranch south of Tomales. Later a town grew on a portion of the site and took its name from the two Irish brothers. (Marin County Library)



ACREAGE MAPPED OUT—The vast ranch lands given to Don Timoteo Murphy by the Mexican government were measured by chains and blocked off in the Spanish measurement of varas (varying from 32 inches to 43 inches in different localities). This map shows a portion of the acreage that was patented to Murphy's heirs by the United States government and includes San Pedro Point, Marinwood, Terra Linda and portions of San Rafael.

FOUNDERS OF MARIN'S FIRST PAPER — Ai Barney (left) pioneer, '49er, Marin County official, businessman, founded the Marin County Journal with his son, Jerome, (right) in 1861 on the eve of the outbreak of the Civil War. Jerome followed his father to California, arriving in 1853. As a boy he had apprenticed as a printer in Frederick, Md., and later worked on newspapers in Washington, D. C., and Baltimore. The Journal adopted a strong Union political policy and the editorial page lashed out against the separation of the States during the course of the war. The Barneys' sold the Journal to Simon Fitch Barstow in 1872. Ai Barney's unusual first name has a biblical origin. (Marin County Historical Society)

Newspaper For People Of Marin

On March 23, 1861, the Marin County Journal, first newspaper published in Marin, hit the streets for the first time with the above dedication heading the editorial.

Run off by hand, page at a time, on a Washington press, the weekly was distributed to anxious subscribers over a table in the dining room of the old San Rafael Hotel. The paper on which it was printed was manufactured at Taylor's paper mill at Olema.

The Journal's founders visualized Marin's news coverage on a county-wide basis rather than town by town. They had perception in recognizing the need for a newspaper in the frontier county that was growing, filling out and quickly finding a place in the sun.

MEN OF COMMERCE needed the newspaper to advertise and were eager to buy space selling for "1 square of 12 lines or less $2.00 for the first insertion, and $1.00 each insertion thereafter."

The people of Marin, the dons, American ranchers, storekeepers, woodchoppers, brickmakers, boatmen were hungry for news and quickly gobbled up the four page, five column weekly. It sold to subscribers for $5.00 a year; $3.00, six months; or $1.50, three months. (Roughly 10 cents a copy.)

The Journal was dedicated by its founders to honest, accurate outspoken journalism. It was destined to meet many journalistic rivals, outlive many publishers, and almost 80 years later be merged with one of its biggest journalistic sparring partners, The San Rafael Independent.

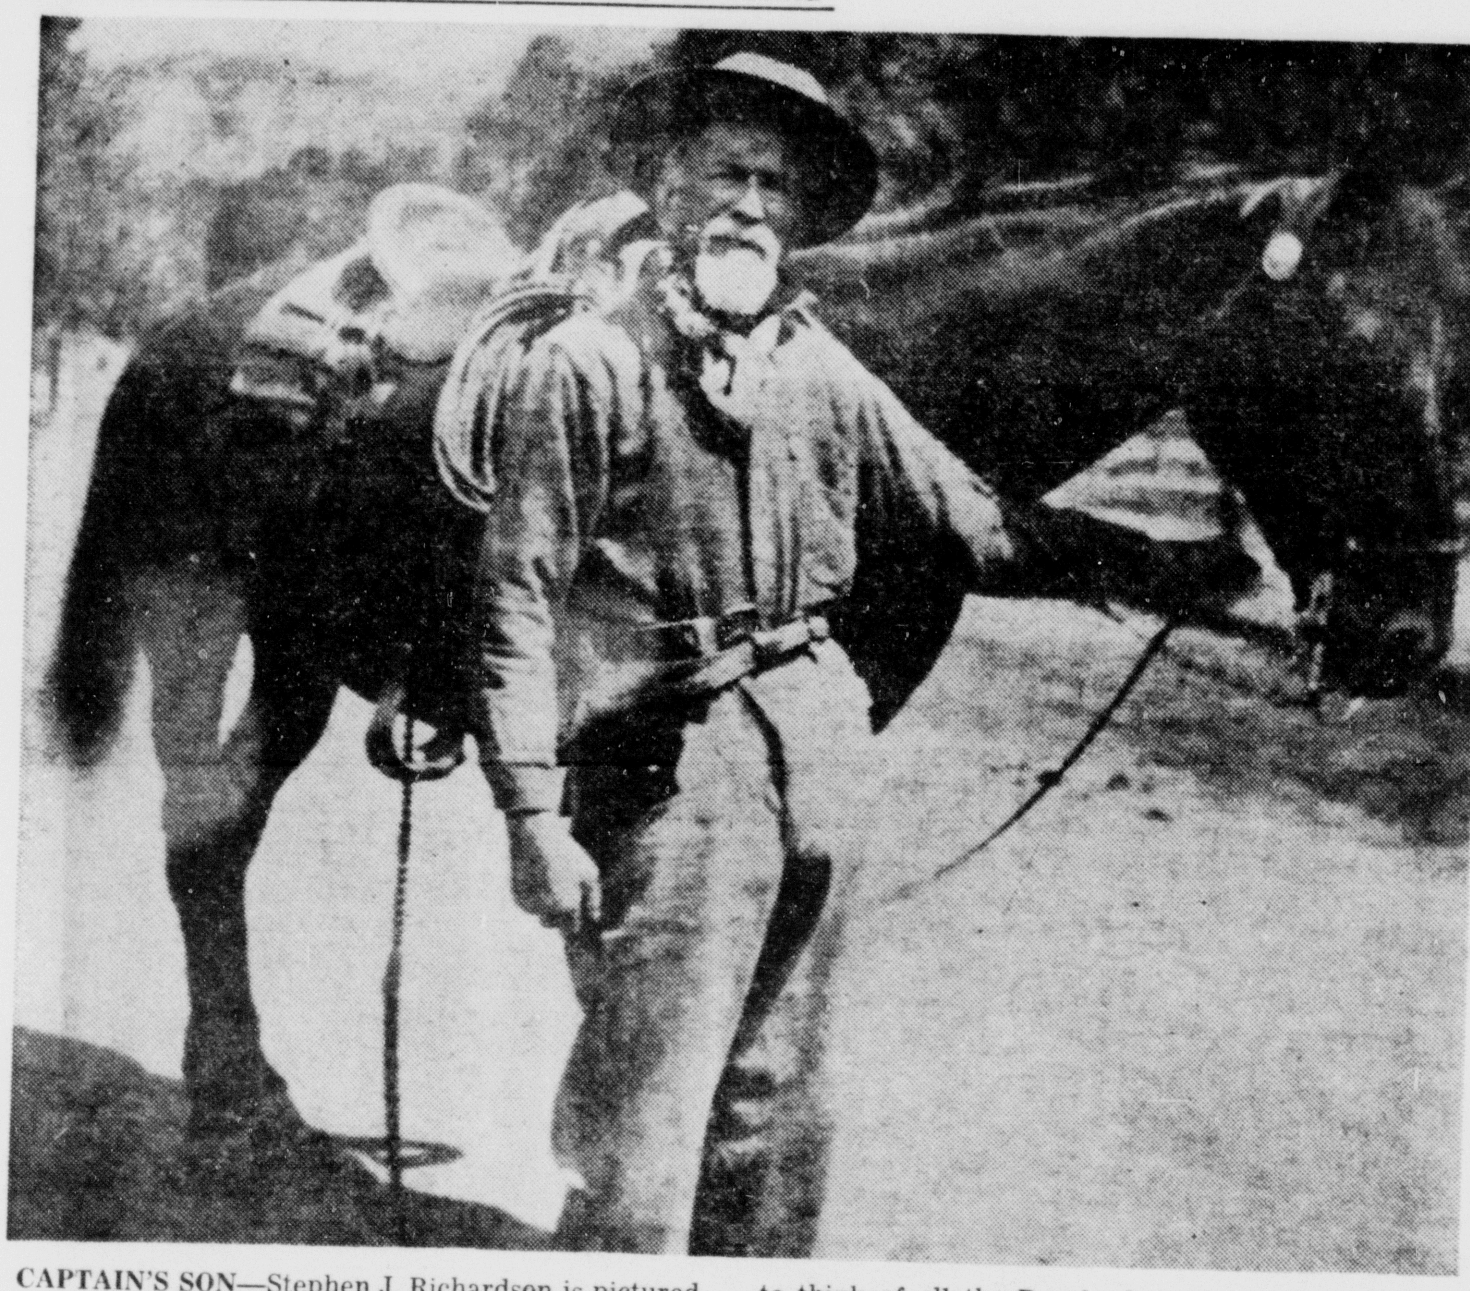
It recorded a county's growth during two centuries. It survived in a journalistic battlefield that saw many go under, and today stands on the threshhold of its second century facing the future with the same purpose the founders dedicated the Marin County Journal to 100 years ago:

"THE JOURNAL will be independent of clique, party or sect, doing justice to all, and favor to none. Its chief aim will be to encourage the development of the resources of the county . . . We shall contribute our advice and support to every laudable undertaking or measure that may be calculated to advance the prosperity of the community; and unhesitatingly oppose every scheme or project that we deam calculated to retard the progress of the county and the prosperity of its inhabitants . . . we hope to obtain a generous support in our endeavors, from what we shall perform rather than from what we promise."

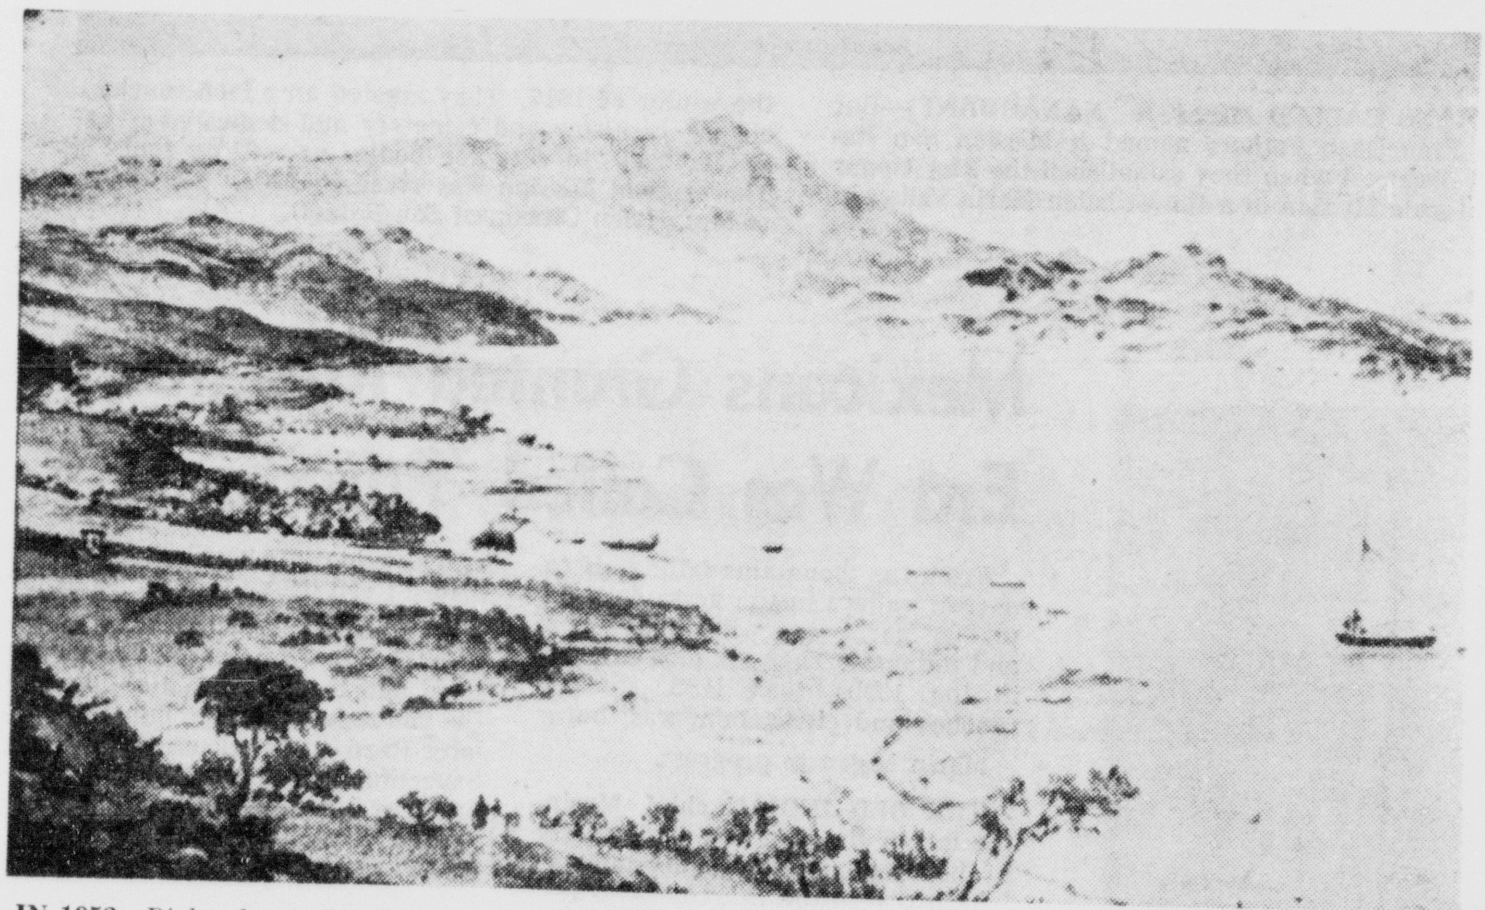
The year 1861 was a big one. The township of Nicasio was formed along with the other new townships spreading across Marin; a man called Minturn started a steamboat service running between Point San Quentin and San Francisco and the first public school was started in San Rafael at the corner of Fourth and E Streets.

Lord Charles Snowden Fairfax bought 45 acres of land west of San Rafael of what had been a portion of the old Rancho Canada de Herrera belonging to Don Domingo Sais; the ruins of the Old Mission were leveled by a carpenter who bought it for its lumber; the County's first game laws were put into effect; a great fire swept up the slope of Mt. Tamalpais and a shot fired at Fort Sumter in the Charleston harbor April 12 plunged the United States into civil war.

News was breaking out like a measle rash everywhere; the founders of the Marin County Journal could not have picked a better time to start setting their 150 pounds of type. News was their business and they knew it.



CAPTAIN'S SON—Stephen J. Richardson is pictured attending a meeting of the Native Sons of the Golden West in San Rafael after the turn of the century. Describing his boyhood on the Rancho Saucelito he reminisced, "Sometimes, it is true, it makes me sad, to think of all the Rancho being gone. As a boy I used to ride, chasing the cattle, climbing the steep mountain sides followed by our vaqueros . . . and how wild it was then and so beautiful." (Marin County Historical Society)



IN 1852—Richardson's Rancho Saucelito was the social mecca of the Bay Area. During the American military occupation of the 1840s many a young officer including William Tecumseh Sherman courted Richardson's young daughter, Mariana. But the high spirited senorita, called the "most beautiful girl in California" by her admirers spurned their proposals, whipped the United States Rifle Team in a shooting match and married a Peruvian, Manuel Torres. (Marin County Historical Society)

FIRST FOG SIGNAL—This cannon, replacing Richardson's pilot boat manned by a crew of eight Indians and moored in the Bay, was placed by the United States government on a bluff near Point Bonitas in 1855. During the foggy weather it was fired every hour and a half both day and night. During the days of Mexican rule Capt. Richardson's pilot boat sped to the side of all ships demanding entry to the San Francisco Bay. Richardson was appointed captain of the Bay in the 1830s. (From "Tamal Land")

Business Born As Richardson Came To Land

When an English whaler moored in the waters off the San Francisco Presidio in 1823, the young first mate was sent ashore to buy provisions from the Mexican officials.

When he arrived at the adobe outpost he spotted a beautiful, young girl. She was the daughter of one of the most prominent early California families. The Englishman stayed at the outpost for dinner, an evening of fiesta and dancing.

Before starting back for his ship early the next morning, young William Richardson glanced again at the blushing Maria Antonia Martinez and decided he wanted to stay at the Presidio.

But how? He was an English officer and his conscience would not allow him to jump ship.

HE SAT SADLY in the small boat as a Mexican crew rowed him to the waiting whaler. He was long past due.

The captain, irate at having been kept in the raw, empty port by a wandering first mate berated the young Richardson as soon as he reached the ship. Words led to blows and Richardson downed the skipper. The captain ordered Richardson off.

Richardson must have laughed to himself. This was exactly what he had wanted.

TWO YEARS LATER Richardson married Maria at the Mission Dolores in San Francisco. Later he built the first house in the pueblo that was to become the city of San Francisco, was the first man to chart the waters of the Bay, and in 1835 was named chief of the port of Yerba Buena by the Mexican governor at Monterey.

By 1836 Richardson had fallen in love again. This time with a sprawling piece of land. A wildly beautiful stretch jutting from the clear waters of the bay north of the harbor entrance.

RICHARDSON ASKED the governor for a grant to the 19,500-acre Rancho Saucelito but was told that it had already been given to Jose Antonio Galindo, the prior year. Galindo was destined to later become a corporal in the San Francisco militia and to fall out of favor with the Mexican government. The Saucelito grant was placed in Richardson's name in 1838.

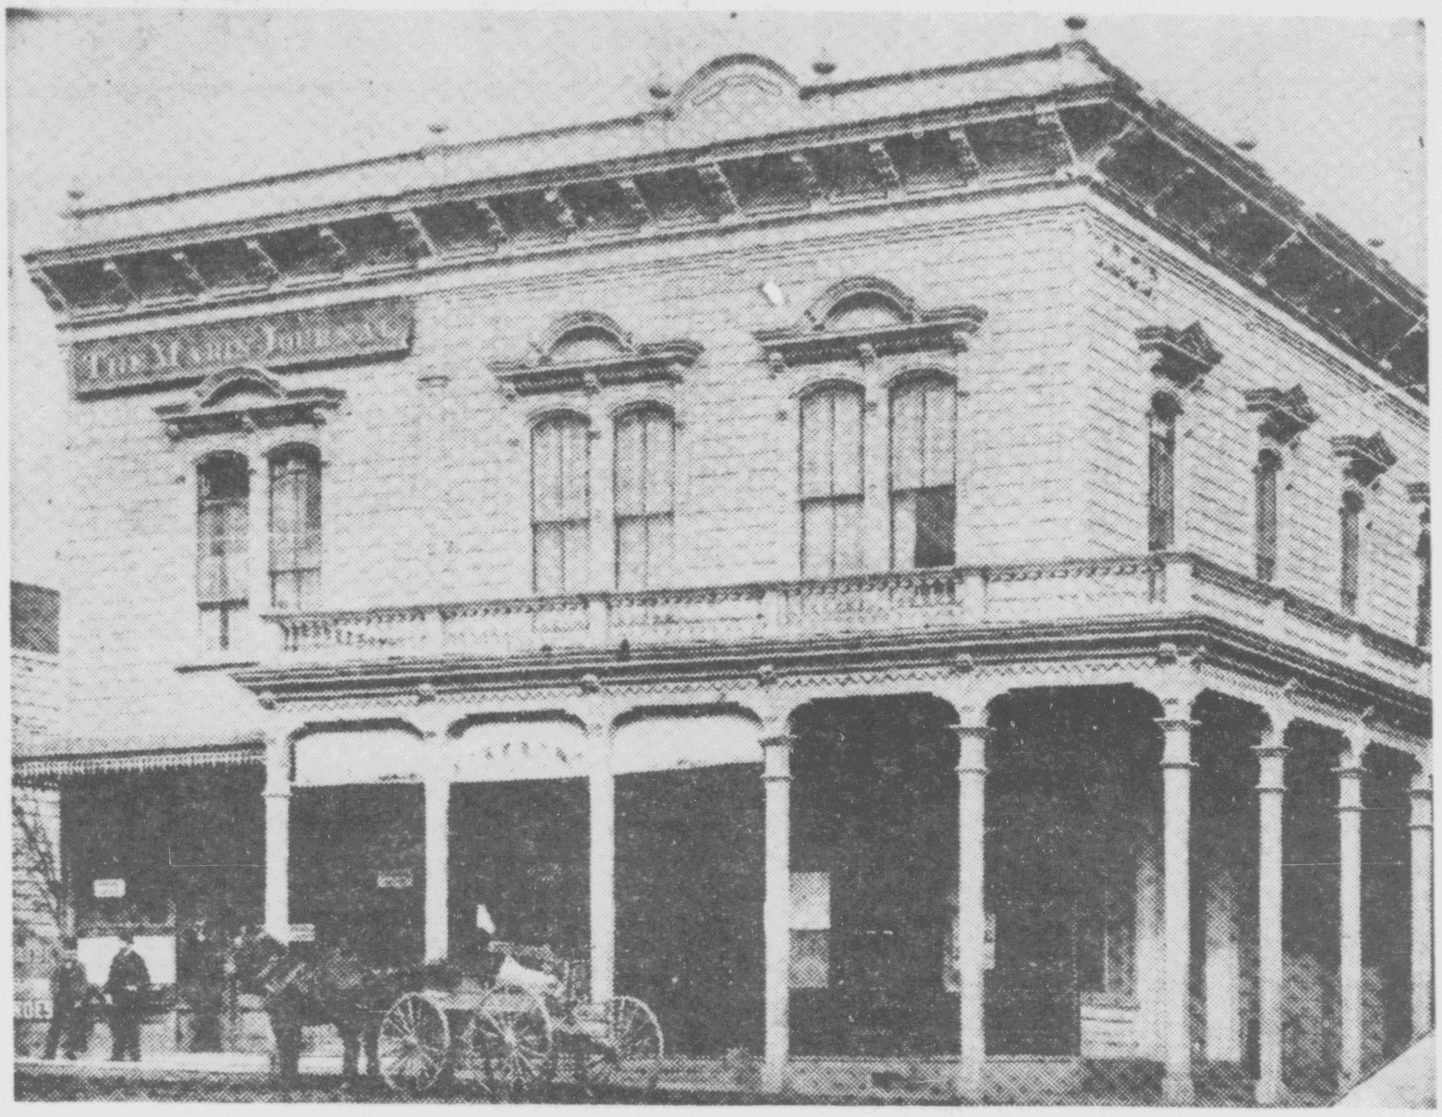
RICHARDSON PREDICTED a metropolis would grow on the sand dunes surrounding the San Francisco Presidio and was assured that his ranch one day would be a twin city across the straits. He tapped fresh running springs running down the steep hills, barreled it and sold the first water in San Francisco. Whale boats moored in the waters lapping at the shore of his ranch, also bought water from Richardson and fresh beef from him and other Marin ranchers.

BUSINESS WAS BORN in this wild land that only a few years before had been Indian hunting grounds.

The bay was called "Whaler's Bay" by the visiting seamen, but before the second cinch of progress was tightened, the same waters were known around the world by the name of the man who opened Marin's first embarcadero: Richardson's Bay.



EARLY HOME OF JOURNAL—The Journal offices were located at many San Rafael sites during its early history. During the 1870s and early 80s it was printed in the Odd Fellows Building on the corner of Fourth and D Streets. The building was burned in the San Rafael fire of 1957. (Courtesy of the Society of California Pioneers)

JOURNAL'S EARLY HOME—Editions of the Journal were published in this building on Fourth Street between B and C in San Rafael. The building, originally a hotel, is now occupied by an apartment house on the upper floors and a row of shops at street level. Moore's is located in the old hotel dining room where copies of the Journal were sold across a table in the 1860s. (Independent-Journal photo)

First Publisher's Life Filled With Service To Country, Fellowmen

A father and son founded Marin's first newspaper.

Ai Barney, the father, was 45 when he arrived at Reed's Rancho in November, 1849. He was a well-spoken, well-educated Easterner who had arrived in San Francisco two months earlier as the vice president of the Baltimore and Frederick Trading and Mining Co. out of Maryland.

Thirty men had each invested $1,000 in the company, purchased clothing and machinery shipped it around the horn to San Francisco and a few months later in April boarded the schooner, Creole, headed for the Isthmus of Panama. There the men chartered the brig Corbiene and arrived in San Francisco Sept. 10.

San Francisco was a grim patchwork of shabby tents, clapboard buildings and gawdy gambling halls. Red-shirted Americans headed for the mines, velvet-dressed dons sitting silver mounted saddles, silk-robed wanderers from ports of call in the Far East mingled in the makeshift streets. The gambling halls overspilled their miner customers into the muddy streets.

THE GOLD FEVER burned in all men's eyes, contagious, consuming.

Barney and his companions pitched camp at Dupont and Washington Streets, sent for their supplies and almost immediately started searching for timberland to set up a sawmill. These were businessmen, and they realized that a boom town needed lumber.

They found their timber. It was on the Reed Rancho at Corte Madera del Presidio. They renovated the mill Reed had originally set up in his forest, installed a gang of 15 upright saws and went into business. Five months later they were out of business selling their equipment to B. R. Buckelew.

Barney headed for the Stockton area where he mined for six months before returning to San Francisco in September. He headed north, across the Golden Gate, into Marin and settled in San Rafael in the beginning of 1850.

FOUR MONTHS after Dr. Shorb was elected County Judge he resigned and the governor appointed the clear-thinking Barney to succeed him. Barney served in that capacity for seven years winning a reputation of an "impartial judge" before resigning to open a butcher shop in 1858 on the east side of C Street between Third and Fourth Streets. His partner in this venture was another easterner, Elisha DuBois.

By the time Barney reached the Pacific Coast his life had already been crammed with public service.

He was justice of the peace in Frederick City, Md., for 10 years from 1832 to 1842 and was elected county surveyor in 1844, a position he resigned to head west. Barney was born in Genoa, N.Y., and moved to Niagara County with his parents as a small boy. He had mastered Greek and Latin as a young man, was a school master in Niagara County at 19, and had studied medicine before he was 28.

His eyes were a clear penetrating blue. He had a taste for adventure and sound judgment. After a few years in the meat business the elder Barney was ready to join his ambitious son in a new venture.

FIRST ALCADE, WIFE—Don Ignacio Pacheco and Senora Ignacio Pacheco entertained at lavish parties and fiestas held at the 6,660 acre land grant given to Pacheco in 1838. On the south it was bounded by Las Gallinas, the west by Rancho Nicasio, the north, Novato, and the east, San Pablo Bay. Pacheco was appointed San Rafael's first alcalde (mayor) in 1845 and had an office in a large room in the abandoned mission. After Pacheco's death in the early 1860's, his widow, the former Dona Maria Loreta Duarte, married James Black, wealthy Marin cattleman. (Marin County Historical Society)

Early Settlers Were Tallow, Hide Dealers

The hide and tallow business quivered to life in the West.

Rafael Garcia who had come to Marin as a young soldier stationed at the Mission in 1817 was given a 30,000-acre grant running along the Inverness Ridge overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

Garcia almost single handedly put down an Indian uprising in San Rafael in 1824, and 10 years later the grateful Mexican government paid its reward. Garcia immediately moved his family to his new rancho, to a site that is now near Olema. The first family to settle the wild land had arrived.

A FEW YEARS LATER Garcia gave the 8,920-acre Rancho Las Baulinas to his brother-in-law Gregorio Briones, former alcalde of Contra Costa and San Mateo, keeping the larger Baulines de Tomales for himself.

The two dons, dressed in their velvet coats and rich serapes instituted a flourishing business.

Their Spanish long horns were slaughtered in the fall for the tallow. The vaqueros galloped their wild, vicious looking horses into the middle of the herd, selected the animals to be used and stabbed them to death with long lances. Indian helpers stripped the suet from the carcasses and placed it in large blubber pots brought to the ranchos by visiting American whale boats. Later the tallow would be poured into large bags made from strips of the animal's hide. Each bag held 25 pounds of tallow.

Prior to 1840 Garcia had pioneered farming on his rancho. He ordered potatoes planted, and when the crop came up had it stored in sacks on a cliff near Wild Cat Beach. But before the potatoes could be picked up by the trading schooners, a land storm sliced away the cliff dumping the potatoes into the ocean. That was the end of farming on the rancho and Garcia happily returned to the profitable hide and tallow trade.

Another Army man, Ignacio Pacheco, whose family had arrived in Upper California with the D'Anza expedition in 1776 was given a 6,660 acre grant he called Rancho San Jose in honor of his birthplace. Later it became the site of the present town of Ignacio.

ANOTHER SPANISH speaking pioneer Don Antonio Osio received Angel Island as a grant. He stocked the island with cattle and sheep and placed it under the management of a majordomo.

Large grants began to mark off the wilderness. Paradise was staked out. To the east, west, north and south, long horns grazed, adobe haciendas were built by Indian laborers, vaqueros rode stallions over the hills, and guitars strummed at fiesta time.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Father Lootens will hold divine service in the Catholic Church, San Rafael, on Sunday, September 3d, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

APOSTATES.—It is rumored on the streets that the "sore-heads," who are not satisfied with the nominations made on the 7th inst., have in contemplation, the selection of an independent ticket. That's all right—having been fairly beaten, they now desire to be represented by such men as they can control; and after having gone through the Primaries with a pledge to support the nominees of the Convention, they "skin it all back," and attempt to defeat the regular ticket. We were informed on Tuesday last that an attempt would be made to get Mr. McCausland, (the Union nominee), on the "Bolters" ticket for the position of Treasurer, so as to secure the Tamales vote. But we think that gentlemen has too much honor to lend himself to so dirty and nefarious a transaction, especially after his endorsement of the resolution in Convention pledging himself to support and vote the regular ticket. An affiliation with Copperheads is desired so as to secure the loaves and fishes, but our opinion of the Democracy is, that the leading men of that party will not touch the "Bolters" with a "forty-foot pole." Oh! the hounds! how they would like to "rule." Their recent strength exhibited in Convention is a fair criterion of their popularity. Come on with your mongrel ticket, and have it lain in the shade. The 6th of September won't leave a grease spot of it.

A TORMENTED lodger in Virginia City got up in the night, took the candle and began to execute vengeance on bedbugs crawling on the wall. The lining took fire and burned the house, the man escaping in his shirt only. But he cleaned out the bedbugs.

No Go!—We understand a mongrel ticket will be presented to the people shortly, and that the Democratic strength will be relied upon in the support of it. They may catch the "sympathizers," but we doubt it. Oh! the "purest and the best!" What will the dirty hounds be after next? "Rule or ruin!"

THERE is a Doctor Amen at Fort Klamath. Awfully suggestive name for a doctor.

THE Calaveras county seat is still in the Courts—San Andreas and Mokelumne Hill being at law. The former has asked a change of venue from Sacramento to San Francisco.

QUERY.—Wonder how the "Mongrel ticket" will be on the "oath" question.

THE French remedy for staring in the street is good. If you regard a gentleman longer or more closely than politeness warrants, he takes off his hat to you.

THERE is a two year old baby weighing two hundred pounds, in Manchester, Vermont, and the parents are going to make a show of the gigantic brat.

A YOUNG man who seduced and afterward married the wife of a neighbor, at Washoe City, was recently "chivareed" and driven out of town, together with his frail and guilty baggage.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has produced reliable estimates of the quantity of cotton west of the Mississippi. The figures submitted to him foot up about 1,000,000 bales.

THE Post Office Department is now self-supporting. Its profits for the last six months of 1864, were $732, 320, and for the first six months of this year will be much larger.

THE consumption of snails has become so great in Paris, that it is said that a special market is to be opened for them.

THE wicked man, not only disguises his crimes or intentions from others, but through excess of self-love, he becomes his own flatterer, calls his vices by soft names, or, mistakes them for virtues; and deems his conduct justifiable, perhaps meritorious, when in fact, it is a hateful compound of impiety, injustice and malevolence, and will very soon be proved to be so.—Scott.

That Pledge.

IN the recent County Convention each candidate for nomination signed a resolution pledging himself to vote for and support the nominees of the ticket; yet, notwithstanding that fact, we understand it is the intention of some of the hounds to attempt to induce Mr. John McCausland to prove recreant to his word, and ignore his claim as a man of honor, by resigning his nomination as candidate for Clerk on accepting that of Treasurer on the "mongrel ticket." Such an insulting proposition should, and will be treated with scorn by Mr. McCausland.—What do the hounds care about their word as long as they can feather their nests? Bah! In favor of the "oath" system, and yet want a man to break his word!

SARATOGA LIFE.—A Saratoga letter says: "The most distinguished man at the springs is Mr. John Morrissey, the great stock operator and financier, and who is also known as having a taste for the turf. He is the proprietor of two elegantly furnished club-houses situated near the site of the old United States Hotel. These establishments are conducted on a different principle from the Athenæum or Union clubs of New York. They amount to banking institutions or places for the exchange of finance. The bank opens in the evening and is ready to accommodate visitors until a late hour of the morning. It is thought fortunes have been very easily made at the bank by parties who claimed to have invested in oil. Indeed, it it has come to be pretty well understood in some circles that this is the way in which certain persons have struck their oleaginous substance. All officers are particularly fond of hunting the ranger, and when found, attempting to extend his claws. If the animal is docile and winning, his new acquaintances may experience his generosity and go from his presence richer than when they entered it. But the beast generally puts the boot on the other leg—which seldom seems to fit so well. It is well known here that Mr. Morrisey has become quite a power in the stock board, the statement being that he has acquired a million dollars by operating in Central during the last few months. He may be seen daily at the telegraph office in Congress Hall, during the hours when the New York stock board is in session, in electric communication with his broker on the subject next in thought chiefly to interest him.

"On the other hand, his acquaintances seem to be courted by many financial lights of the metropolis, and by young men who want to 'know the ropes.' I fear that Saratoga will outstrip Baden Baden in some of its pleasantries. Ten thousand dollar ventures on the turn of a card, or the stoppage of a little ivory ball, are not at all uncommon in this section. The citizens of these luxuries are tumbled upon quite unawares among the guests at the hotels. Generally, they are the most attractive young men in town—wearing gorgeous raiment and costly jewelry, and using stylish turnouts. It is said that they take orders from lady acquaintances and deduct a commission for acting as brokers between the bank and the fair sex.—Perhaps, in time, that circuitous story and formal way of toying with the tiger may be superseded by the establishment of a well-kept bank for female gamesters. To many, the bank, and not the waters, is the real attraction of Saratoga."

RESULTS IN THE LAST DITCH.—All the rebel leaders are sub-lock. There is not a voice or hand raised against the Government. Howell Cobb counsels obedience to the Federal authority, and says that slavery is dead. Breckinridge advises his friends who are in Cuba to come home and take the oath of allegiance. Alex. Stephens, during his stay in Fort Warren, has grown excessively loyal. James D. Orr has written a letter from Andersonville, South Carolina, denouncing the idea that Southern men can ever go so far as to unite with the Imperialists in Mexico, in revenge upon our Government. Pryor has ceased belching treason, and hung up a law shingle at Richmond; Mallory sends an epistle from prison, declaring his entire conversion. All the rebel Governors save Harris, of Tennessee, are paroled or in confinement. All the rebel Major-Generals are on parole. Everywhere power has returned to rightful hands.

The traitor, Albert Pike, has written a letter to the New York Express explaining his connection with the Indian troops in the employ of the late Confederate Government, stating that they were raised by him to do duty within their own territory only; that 700 of them only were brought into the field in Arkansas at the command of the rebel General Van Dorn; that only one act of scalping by Indians had been brought to the attention of Pike; that this barbarity and that and that of shooting down wounded men were condemned by him; that his humanity toward Northern men got him into trouble with his rebel associates, and that, his life being at stake, he desires a little justice done him in opposition to reports of his connivance with the perpetrators of reported atrocities at the battle of Pea Ridge.

EMIGRATION.—The Territorial Enterprise says that the emigration during the past season to the Atlantic States to the States and Territories around and west of the Rocky Mountains, has been immense—larger than has been known for many years. A record of the passing wagons and live-stock is kept at Fort Laramie. From a dispatch from that post, dated July 8th, the Enterprise learns that for the sixteen days ending June 30th, 2,227 wagons, with 18,000 head of stock, passed that point, westward bound, and that about as many wagons, with an equal amount of stock, passed from the 1st to the 14th of June. During the month of May, over 5,000 wagons and 40,000 head of stock passed the same point.

CLEAR AND FORCIBLE.—The matter of "arbitrary arrests" and kindred questions, is admirably stated by Mr. Welsh, of Belmont County, Ohio, in a speech delivered in the Ohio Senate, not long since. He said:

"While war is raging, many of the rights held sacred by the Constitution, rights which cannot be violated by any acts of Congress, may and must be suspended and held in abeyance. If this were not so, the Government might itself be destroyed; the Army and Navy might be sacrificed; and one part of the Constitution would nullify the rest.

"If freedom of speech cannot be suppressed, spies cannot be caught imprisoned and hung.

"If freedom of the press cannot be interfered with, all our military plans may be betrayed to the enemy.

"If no man can be deprived of life without a trial by jury, a soldier cannot slay the enemy in battle.

"If enemy's property cannot be taken without 'due process of law,' how can the soldier disarm the foe and seize his weapons?

"If no person can be arrested, sentenced and shot, without trial by jury, in the county or State where his crime is alleged to have been committed, how can a deserter be shot, or a spy hung, or an enemy taken prisoner?"

AGGREGATE LABOR OF MANKIND.—Along with the compassion that is excited by listening to a tale of want, there is apt to arise, at that time, a feeling of astonishment that such a thing should be in a land like this. Perhaps, however, the true wonder is that want is not universal. One-half of those who survive the period of childhood are women who do not, as a general thing, contribute directly to the production of wealth. Of the men, many are sick, many are old, many are idle, many are wasteful, many are parasites. Those who do not work, and live to the age of three-score years years and ten, spend one-third of their lives in bed, one-twentieth at the table, one-sixth in recreation. Much of the time is wasted in mistakes much of what they succeed in producing is swept away by fire and flood. During half of the year nature sleeps. One harvest in five proves a failure. Only a fraction of the earth's surface is capable of cultivation. A large part of the general labor is absorbed in the production of luxuries, in repairing the damages of war, in preparing for future conflicts, in the transportation of produce, and in business. Probably not more than one-tenth of the whole amount of human force is expended in earning the world's daily bread. The standing marvel, therefore, of society is, not that any should suffer want, but that there should be any who do not.

AFTER THE SHENANDOAH.—The United States steamer Suwanee came down from Mare Island yesterday, where she has been for the several days since her arrival, undergoing some slight repairs, and about 10 o'clock sailed out of the harbor, firing a salute as she passed out on a cruise in search of the Shenandoah. The Suwanee is of 1130 tons register and carries ten guns and 207 men. She is a staunch vessel, and if she meets the pirate will doubtless put an end to her thieving career as speedily as did the Kearsarge to the Alabama. She is commanded by Commander Paul Shirley. Success to her.—Reg. 21st.

IGNORANCE AND VICE.—Carlyle says: Nine tenths of the miseries and vices of manhood proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fail in their schemes not so much for the want of strength, as from the ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers upon a single object, can accomplish something: the strongest, by dispersing his over many, may fail to accomplish anything.

METAMORPHOSIS IN DATA.—Whether there is or not a state of progression from the vegetable to the animal kingdom, we have before us what demonstrates that retrogressive metamorphosis is a fact in the economy of Nature. We look with wonder on the fungi which present a puzzle even to naturalists in determining where the vegetable kingdom ends and the animal commences. We admire and wonder at the petrifaction, in which the animal tissues and fluids have congealed into a solid stone, but few are prepared to believe that a living animal or insect is ever turned into a growing vegetable. The specimen before us was brought from Auckland, in the island of New Zealand. The root of the Metrosideros Robusta, a climbing vine found in New Zealand, is simply a large worm about four inches in length, evidently in its state of animal existence the counterpart of the large green tobacco worm. The ova are deposited by the mother worm in the stock of a certain plant, on which it subsists, and here, safe from the incursions of predaceous entomologia, they undergo the process of incubation. The worm attains its full size about the time the plant goes to seed. Then it accomplishes the great end of its life, an office the philosophy of which remains in the unrevealed arcana of Nature. By some impulse, whether instinct, or a freak of appetite, or some psychological agency that forces it along independent of its own volition, it climes to the seed, and swallowing a single grain, it descends and burrows in the ground. Here it remains and dies, while the seed it has taken into its body sends forth a sprout from the head of the worm, and becomes a vine, to be the scene of another like phenomenon. Meanwhile, the worm, preserving its shape entire in all the details of its external anatomy, turns into a woody substance, presenting a general appearance similar to the ginseng root. At first glance the specimen might be taken for a mere vegetable entomoid, but closer inspection presents a clear case of metamorphosis from an animal to a vegetable substance.—Call.

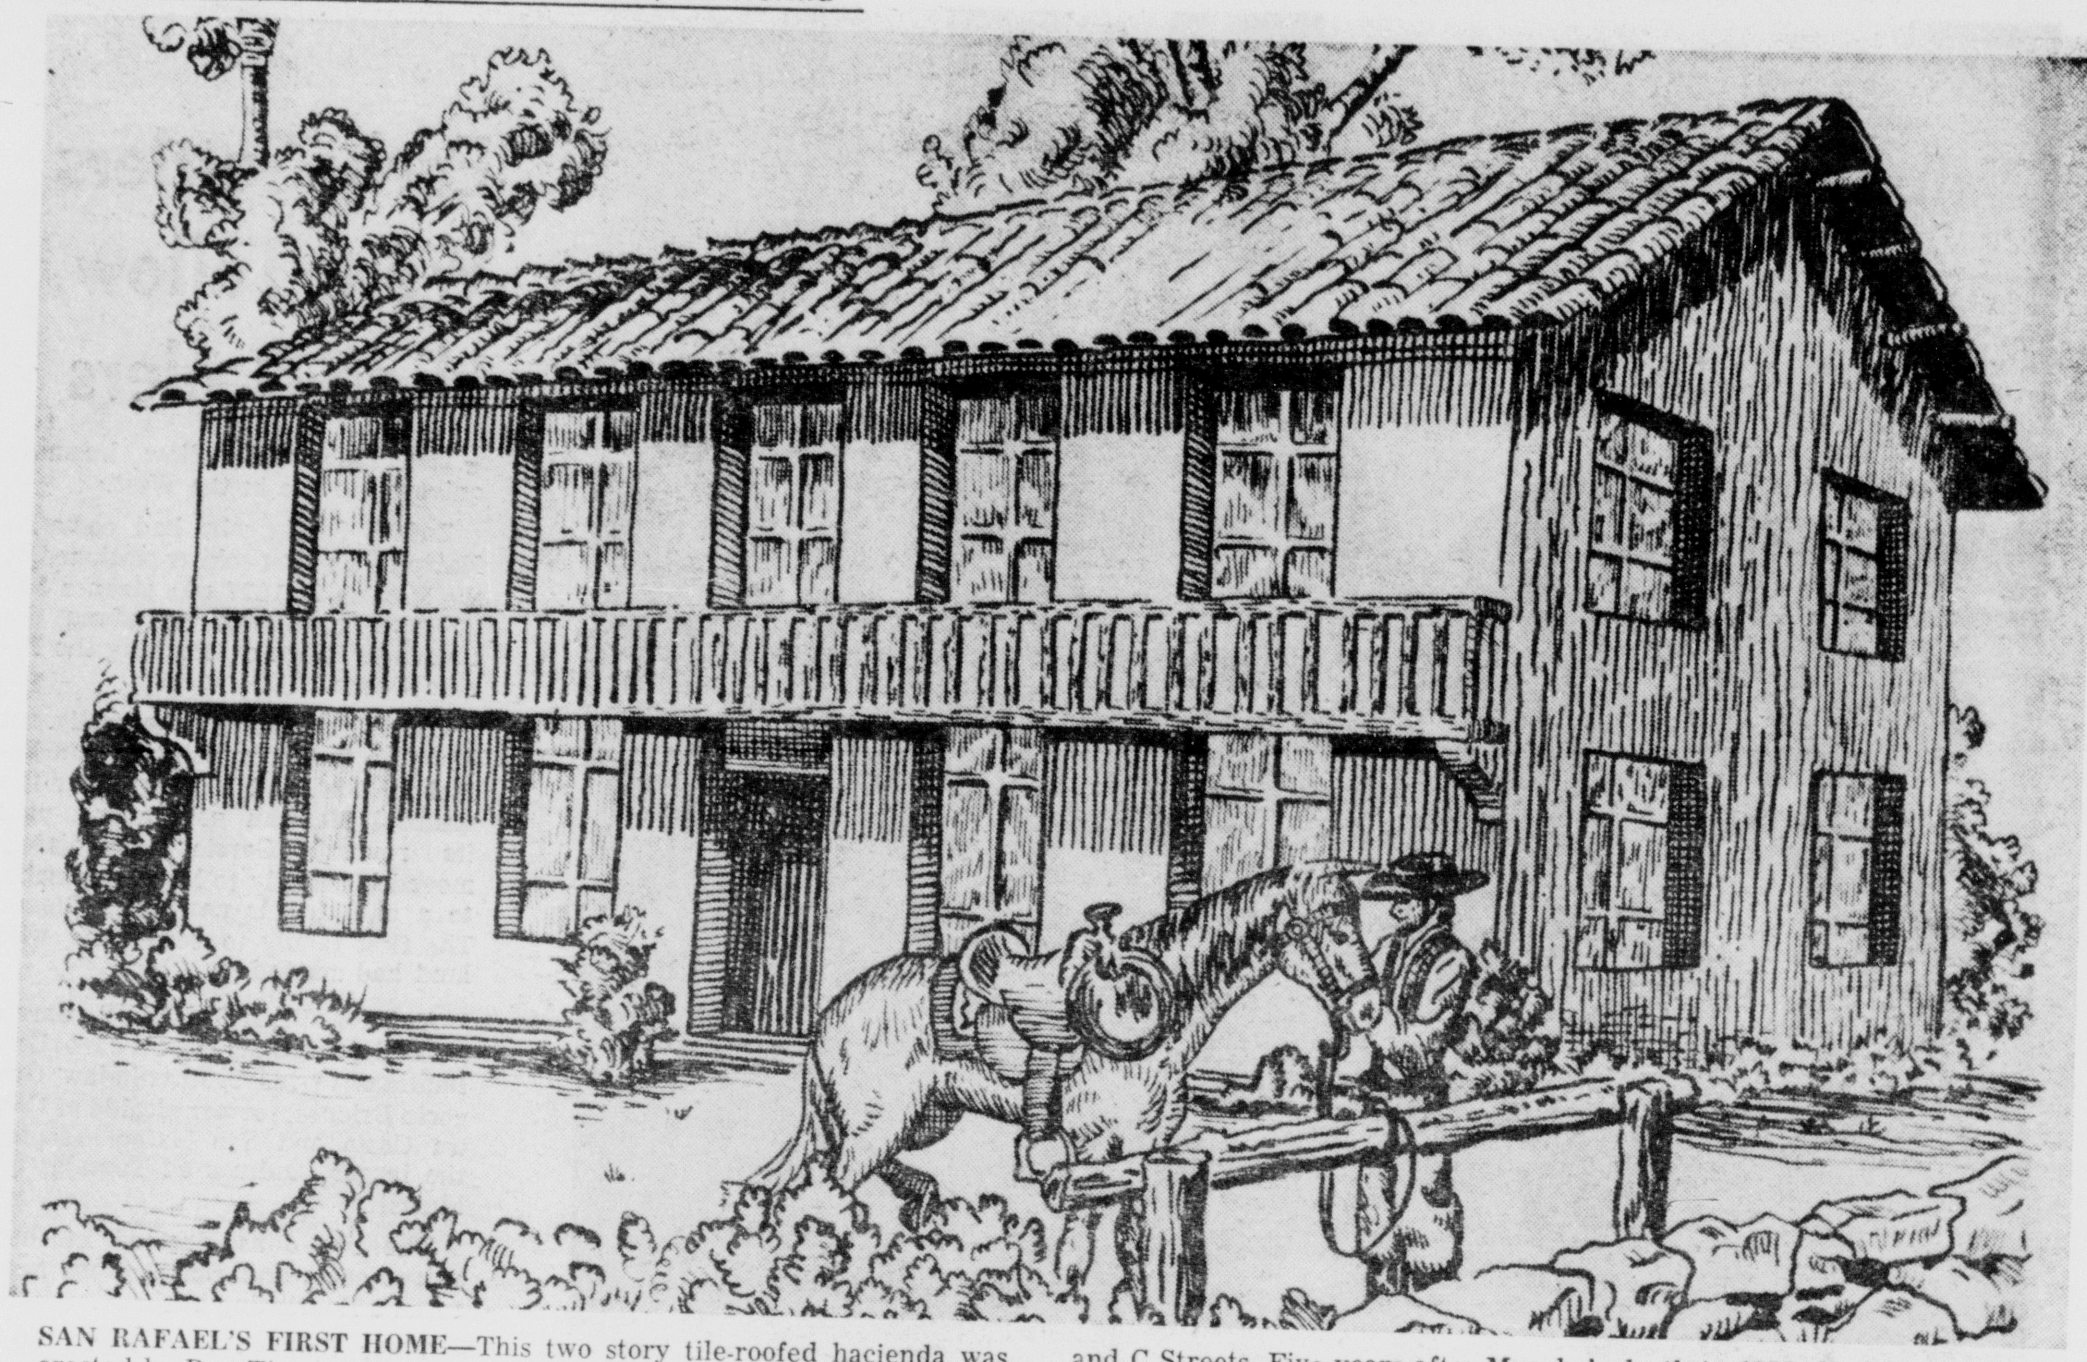
EARLY-DAY FRONT PAGE—This is the way the Marin County Journal's front page looked during the early years it was published. This issue, for Aug. 26, 1865, had political paragraphs, a slate of Union office-seekers for the forthcoming September election, various filler paragraphs and nearly two columns of advertising. The page was similiar to most others of newspapers published during that period in the United States.



SAN RAFAEL'S FIRST HOME—This two story tile-roofed hacienda was erected by Don Timoteo Murphy in 1844 on a site later to become Fourth and C Streets. Five years after Murphy's death in 1852 the County courthouse was transferred from a hall in the old Mission to this adobe purchased from Timothy Mahon. (Courtesy family)

Timoteo Murphy Befriended Indians, Constructed San Rafael's First House

He was a hunter, one of the best, when the governor gave him a mammoth land grant. Later as a land baron, he built the first home in San Rafael, was appointed alcalde (mayor), befriended the Indian and spoke his Spanish in an Irish brogue.

Timoteo Murphy was a giant of a man, standing six foot, two inches; his bones were large and he weighed more than 200 pounds. His stance was straight, complexion fair.

MURPHY'S SENSE of humor made him legendary among the Californians. Sitting at the head of his massive dining room table he told visiting Spanish rancheros hair-raising tales of the banshees in Ireland or patted his own huge frame that towered over the shorter, thinner visitors, and roared that in Wexford he was considered a mite of a man.

He roamed the land, rifle over his shoulder. He was a hunter and sportsman who had arrived in California in 1828 when he was 28 years old. He had left his Irish homeland to take a job with an English firm in Lima, Peru and was sent to Monterey by Hartnell and Co. to superintend exporting of beef from the port.

Later he made a living trapping coastal otter.

In 1837, the Mexican governor appointed the hunter Indian agent for the 1,400 Indians living in the Marin area. Murphy was a good provider for the people who had been mistreated and knocked from pillar and post since the Mission had been closed five years earlier.

He secured a 57,000-acre land grant for his wards in the Nicasio Valley and turned it into a flourishing rancheria called Tinicasia. In 1844, Murphy was given a 22,000-acre grant for himself by a grateful Mexican government. Called Rancho San Pedro, Santa Margarita and Las Gallinas it extended from the Rancho Nicasio on the west to the San Pablo Bay on the east.

Don Timoteo Murphy stocked his ranch with blooded cattle, merino sheep, pedigreed swine and big-boned horses to support his bulky body. He successfully managed Indian affairs until the American occupation in the 1840s, was appointed alcalde in 1844 and built the first hacienda in San Rafael.

THE BRIDE — John Lucas brought Maria Sweetman back from Ireland in 1855. She was 26 years old when she arrived as mistress of the Murphy ranch. While many Marin pioneer women galloped across the golden hills cross saddle, Mrs. Lucas would always be seen sitting very erect side saddle. (Courtesy family)

HEIR TO RANCHOS—The lands of San Pedro, Santa Margarita and Las Gallinas went to Timoteo Murphy's young Irish-born nephew, John Lucas. Murphy, who never married, brought his brother, Mathew and a sister's boy, young Lucas to his Marin rancho from Ireland in 1849. When the 52-year-old Don died unexpectedly three years later he willed his northern ranch lands to Lucas and the southern portion to his brother. (Courtesy family)

LUCAS HOME RANCH—Home situated in what is now the heart of Terra Linda was built by John Lucas for his wife in 1863 on a 2,340 acre stretch banked by rolling grazing land, trees, flower gardens and orchards. Shortly after the turn of the century the ranch passed from the Lucas family to the Freitas family and in recent years has been called "The Freitas Home Ranch." (Courtesy family)

FIRST BORN—First child of the Lucases, Alice, was the only one of five to marry. Four other children died at birth. She married Patrick Cadogan in 1877 when she was 21. She met her future husband, a native of Ireland, while he was visiting the Santa Margarita Home Ranch. She became the mother of five children. (Courtesy family)

Founder Outspoken, Generous

Jerome Barney Learned To Set Type Early

One of Ai Barney's nine children, Jerome, followed his father to San Rafael in 1853. He was 19.

Jerome had been born in Frederick, Md., where he learned to set type as a boy.

He was apprenticed on newspapers in Washington, D. C. and Baltimore and as soon as he had the fare headed West to join his father.

Jerome was a small, short man who soon gained a reputation for his persistence, outspoken tongue and generosity. His father gave him a job in the meat business, but the butcher counter wasn't for young Jerome.

HE ITCHED TO get back to printing, and finally in 1861 persuaded his father to join him as a silent partner in the publication of the county's first newspaper.

The Barneys and a young apprentice whom Jerome fed, clothed and housed in return for his work, boarded in a small, yellow rooming house on the east side of the hill belonging to a southern woman by the name of Mrs. Sheppard.

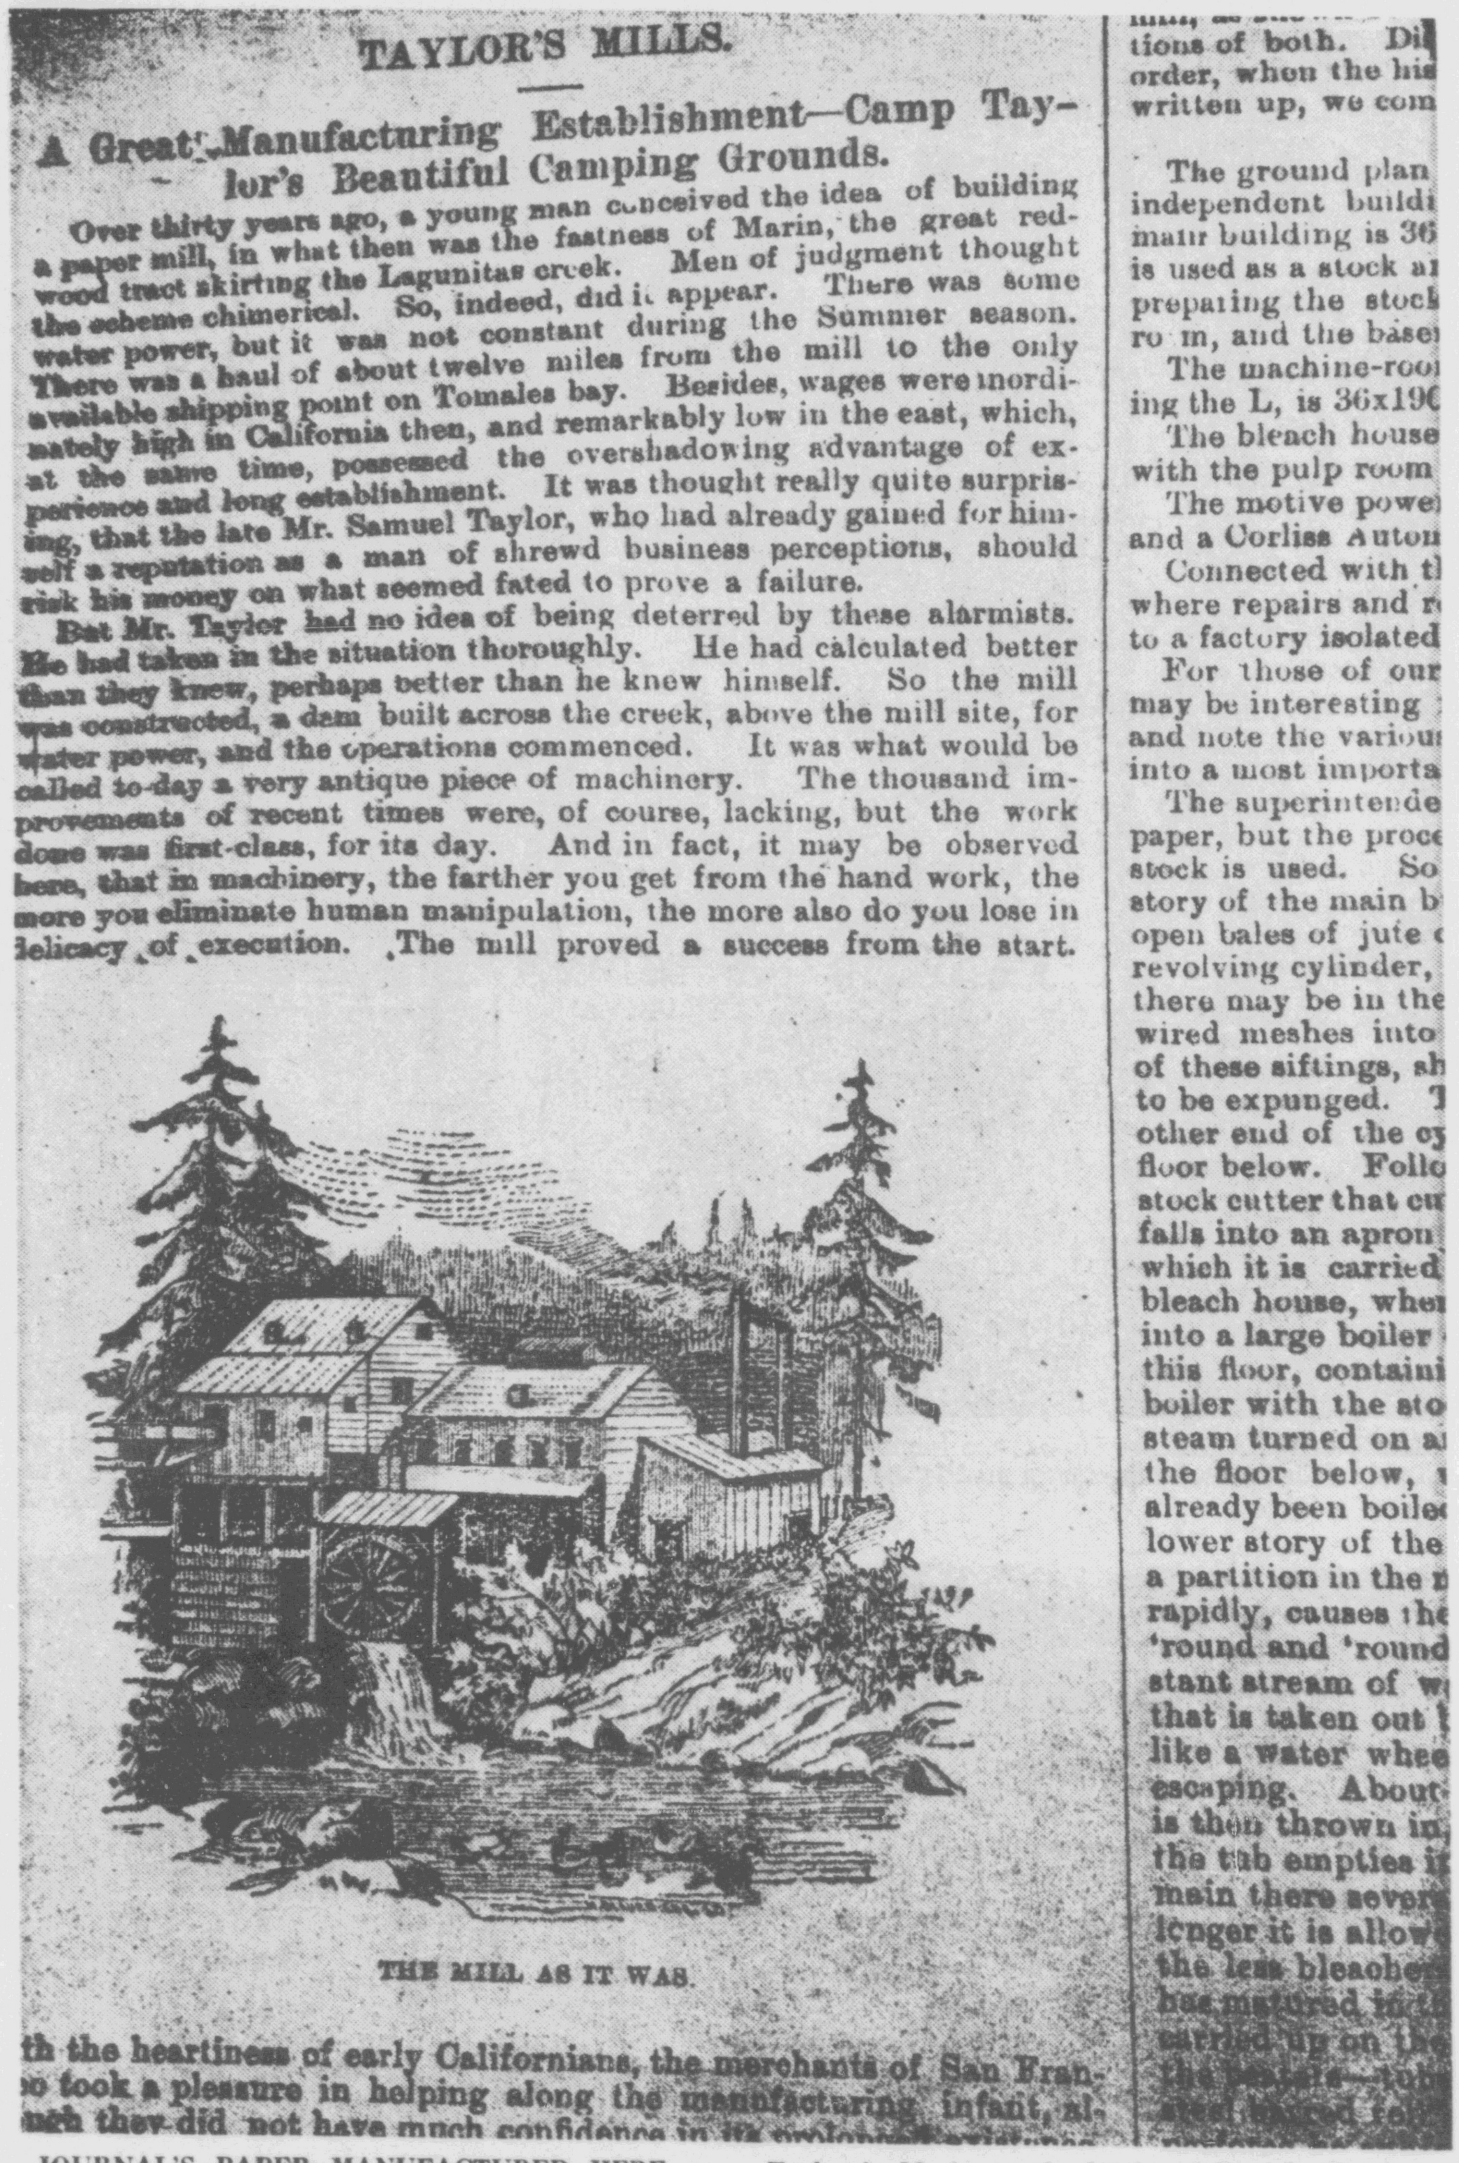
Besides the elder Barney's butcher shop there was in San Rafael in the winter of 1861 a blacksmith shop, two livery stables, two saloons, two hotels and a dozen or so private homes.

The Barneys and their young helper soon moved their printing office to a newly constructed building adjoining the Marin Hotel on Fourth Street between B and C Streets. Here on the upper floor of the building the three men cooked, ate, slept and printed the Journal for many years.

The paper caught on and began to grow. At first the Pony Express news was published in both English and Spanish, but gradually the Spanish faded away.

FOR THEIR EIGHTH anniversary in 1869, the Barneys enlarged the five column spread of the Journal to six full columns and two years later on April 3, 1871, brought the number of columns up to seven in honor of the Journal's 10th anniversary. The newspaper was now safely housed in its own building on Fourth Street, the pages were crammed with advertising and then an editorial printed Oct. 5, 1872 announced that the Journal had been sold.

Jerome Barney planned on taking a vacation and later entering the local political arena. But in less than four years the young man who had nurtured the dream of a Marin County newspaper, and made this dream a reality, was dead at the age of 42.



TAYLOR'S MILLS.

Over thirty years ago, a young man conceived the idea of building a paper mill, in what then was the fastness of Marin, the great redwood tract skirting the Lagunitas creek. Men of judgment thought the scheme chimerical. So, indeed, did it appear. There was some water power, but it was not constant during the Summer season. There was a haul of about twelve miles from the mill to the only available shipping point on Tomales bay. Besides, wages were inordinately high in California then, and remarkably low in the east, which, at the same time, possessed the overshadowing advantage of experience and long establishment. It was thought really quite surprising, that the late Mr. Samuel Taylor, who had already gained for himself a reputation as a man of shrewd business perceptions, should risk his money on what seemed fated to prove a failure.

But Mr. Taylor had no idea of being deterred by these alarmists. He had taken in the situation thoroughly. He had calculated better than they knew, perhaps better than he knew himself. So the mill was constructed, a dam built across the creek, above the mill site, for water power, and the operations commenced. It was what would be called to-day a very antique piece of machinery. The thousand improvements of recent times were, of course, lacking, but the work done was first-class, for its day. And in fact, it may be observed here, that in machinery, the farther you get from the hand work, the more you eliminate human manipulation, the more also do you lose in delicacy of execution. The mill proved a success from the start.

JOURNAL'S PAPER MANUFACTURED HERE — The paper for many early California newspapers including the Marin County Journal was manufactured at the paper mill founded by Samuel Penfield Taylor in Marin on the banks of Daniels Creek in 1856. (The Creek later took the name Paper Mill Creek.) Chinese in San Francisco gathered rags to make the paper. (First published Marin County Journal 1889.)

Barstow Bought Journal, New Era Started

When Simon Fitch Barstow bought the Journal from its founders in the early 1870s the pulse of the county had begun to quicken.

The dairy industry was booming, millionaires were migrating to Marin and the first railroad ties were being strung across the county.

But one facet of the paper remained what it had been from the beginning: strongly Union. After the outbreak of the Civil War the Journal went to the side of Lincoln and the Union.

MANY SOUTHERNERS had settled in the area, and although California officially was northern there were many Confederate sympathizers living in the Bay Area and Marin.

After the close of the war, the Journal went on supporting the Union political ticket (later the Republican party) and Barstow on taking over the publisher's seat in 1870 promised his readers he would boost Union candidate Ulysses S. Grant for president.

Barstow was a hardened, experienced newsman who learned the business in the roughest, rawest days California journalists ever knew; when editors and reporters had to be as ready with their fists or handy with a gun as they were with a piece of type.

He arrived in San Francisco in 1854 when he was 22 years. Barstow was born in Hartford, Conn., learned the hardware business in an uncle's store, and decided to become an apprentice printer. His first job in his chosen profession was on the Chautaugua County Journal in New York.

WHEN HE LANDED in San Francisco, Barstow was hired by James King of William to work on his newly founded Evening Bulletin. King of William had organized his paper as crusade against the underworld's control of city politics. He was gunned down and killed by one of the men he was attacking.

The slayer was tried and hung by the vigilantes led by William Tell Coleman who later became a leading developer of San Rafael.

In 1857 Barstow landed a job with the California Alta where he stayed for the next 11 years. In 1871, he moved to Tulare County where he worked on the Visalia Delta for one year before buying the Marin County Journal from the Barneys.

When Barstow became editor and publisher of the Journal, the county was facing a turn in the road, and Marin's first newspaper was about to meet competition for the first time.

FREMONT, KIT CARSON

The eighteen-forties were furious. Men mounted the Sierra and spilled over into California. The easy carefree life was beginning to fade.

He led his men into the frontyard of the Rancho Olompali, owned by the Indian Camilo Ynitia, and made a fast moving charge at the horse corrals, just north of present day Novato.

MEN POURED from the house and sprang from behind the trees surprising the attacking Americans. Ford ordered his men to dismount and scramble for cover behind trees. The California forces of Joaquin de la Torre and Juan N. Padilla, ran for their horses.

The Americans let go a volley of fire at the mounted California force driving the horsemen back. Soon the Californians were seen galloping over the hills into San Rafael leaving their dead behind.

In the previous week the Mexican military commandant at Sonoma, Col. Mariano Vallejo, had been seized by a small group of men dressed in greasy hunting clothes. These men declared California an independent state, lowered the Mexican colors and hoisted the bear flag of the California republic.

Fremont had come to join in the search for Padilla and de la Torre. Meanwhile, after hoaxing the American forces, the California counter revolutionaries slipped across the bay with the help of the Richardson family at the Rancho Saucelito and an infuriated Fremont who set up camp at the Mission ruins in San Rafael.

Fremont forced Don Timoteo Murphy to provide fresh horses, and secured more mounts from Richardson. Fremont, ostensibly in California on a map-making venture, declared himself the leader of the Bear Flag movement shortly after the capture of Vallejo.

LATER THREE well-dressed Californians stepped from a boat at the creek within view of the Mission. Fremont blandly told Carson that he did not want to be bother with prisoners. It has been said Carson approached the Californians, drew his gun and fired. Lying face down in the dirt dead were three of the most prominent and best loved men in California: the aged Don Berryessa and his two 21-year-old nephews, the De Haro twins, sons of San Francisco's alcalde.

On July 9, 1846, the American flag was raised in the public square at Yerba Buena and on Aug. 12 word reached California that Mexico and the United States were at war.

FIVE MONTHS later after a bloody fight, Mexico capitulated and California became a United States territory. In 1848, the same year gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill, the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo was signed annexing California to the United States.

But Fremont left another mark on Marin and the surrounding Bay Area. Looking down on the harbor entrance coursing between Lime and Fort Points he uttered the name that was going to stick: The Golden Gate.

Fortunes For Ranchers In '49 Gold Rush

The men thirsted for gold but hungered for meat.

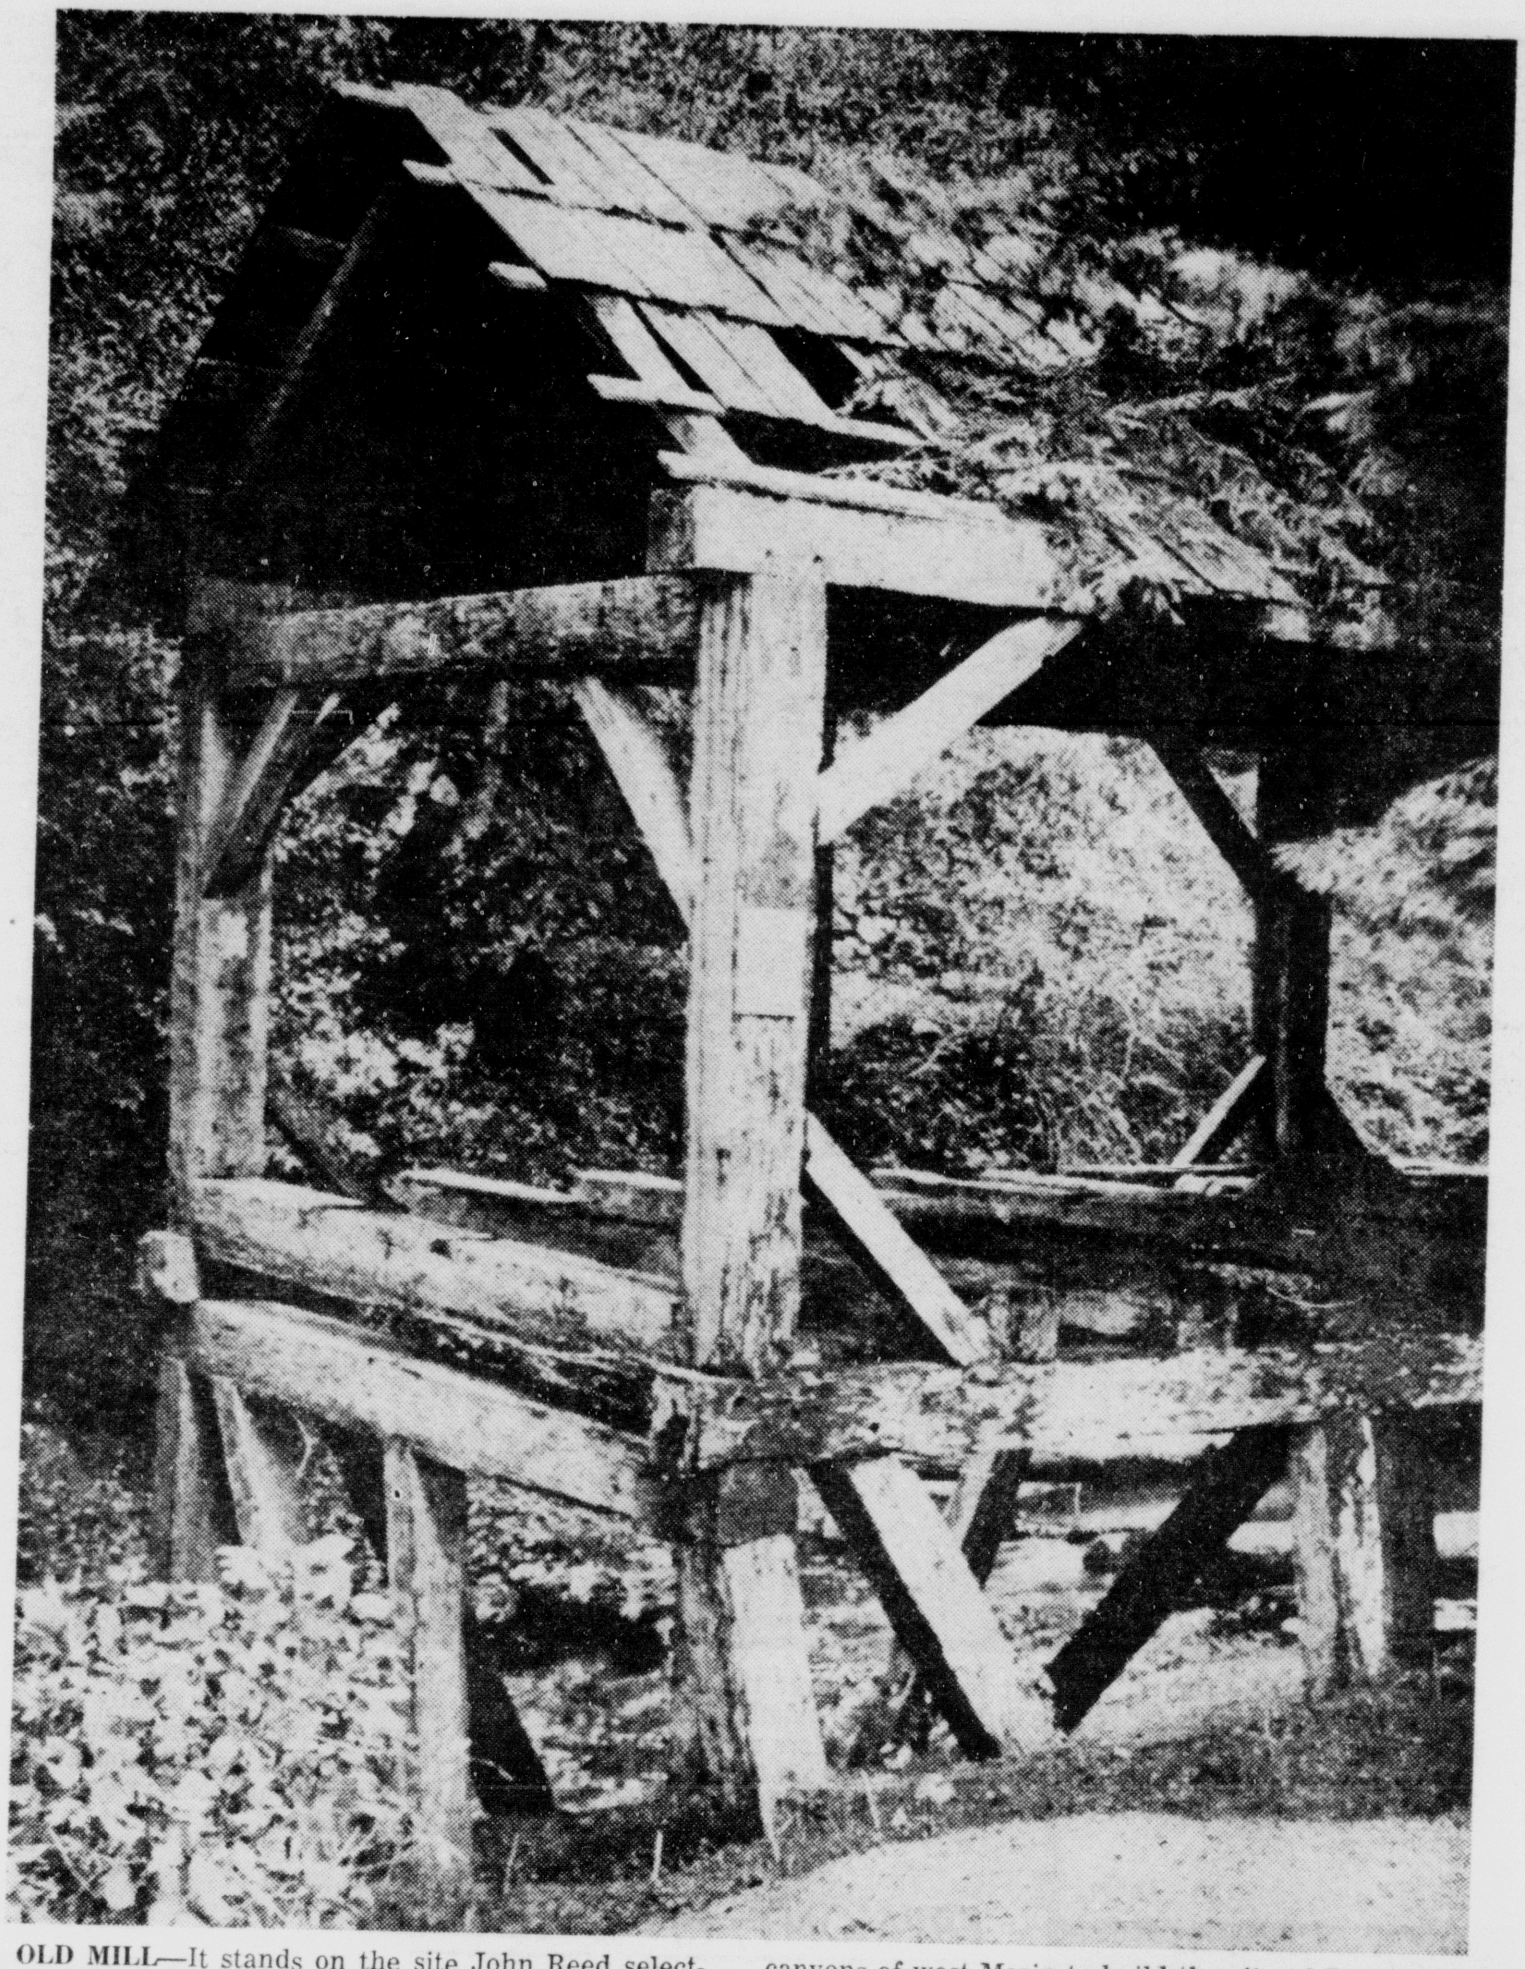
Don Timoteo Murphy and the young grandson of Paul Revere who settled in San Geronimo during the 1840's led a party of 30 rancheros, their Indian servants, 100 horses and 200 head of cattle to the Sierra gold fields in 1849. The cattle industry was born in Marin and San Rafael was on its way to becoming a "cow town."

But the cry "gold" grew fainter as men died in the fields and the pay dirt trickled out. Many wandered back across the Sierra or staggered into San Francisco to book passage for home. Others remembered the land they had seen on the way to the gold fields and decided to stay, to settle.

SOME OPTIMISTIC settlers even tried to mine gold in Marin in the Nicasio and San Geronimo valleys during the 70s but when they didn't hit pay dirt they turned to ranching, digging their heels into the abundant earth.

A new era was born. The quiet was shattered by the graveled sound of crude wagon wheels and the splintering of falling timber.



OLD MILL—It stands on the site John Reed selected for the first saw mill in Marin in 1834. The pioneer sawmill in the County that was to become the timbering center of the Bay area was run by an undershot wheel. Redwood was stripped from the slopes of Mt. Tamalpais and fir was taken from the canyons of west Marin to build the city of San Francisco in the late 40's and 50's. In the 40's tan bark oak and laurel from Marin was used to make knees for whalers damaged rounding the "Horn." Later this same wood was used as fire wood for the residents of waterless, treeless San Francisco. (From "Tamal Land.")

BERNARD MILLER'S WIFE, Emma Senter, came from Santa Clara County. The young Millers settled in the Nicasio Valley and became the parents of three daughters. At one time a convicted murderer at San Quentin wrote Miller requesting parole and a job on the ranch. A family friend on hearing of the incident asked if the family wasn't worried having a murderer on the place. Miller shot back: "Why? He isn't mad at us." (Courtesy Mrs. Adolph Lietz)

WHEN BERNARD MILLER was 6 years old, in 1862 his father, James, donated the land for the Dixie School to be built near the Las Gallinas home ranch so his son would have a school to attend. The elder Miller also erected an adobe house in San Rafael between Lootens Place and Lincoln Avenue in the 1840s. In 1849, the father built the first school in San Rafael. Bernard, the youngest son, was born 104 years ago in the San Rafael adobe. (Courtesy Mrs. Adolph Lietz)

J.O.B. SHORT ARRIVED in San Rafael, from Kentucky, in 1847 with his mother, Mrs. Merriner and a brother, Jacob Short. They built the second house on the Court House block. At first the brothers repaired the old buildings of the Mission San Rafael and ran cattle in San Anselmo and the Nicasio Valley. J.O.B. later owned a large subdivision in the southwestern end of San Rafael. (Marin County Historical Society)

J.O.B. SHORT MARRIED Margaret Alice Hawkins. He became a prosperous landowner and his mansion at the foot of B Street became one of the social hubs of of the young city. Social life in those days combined many of the traditions of the Spanish and of the Eastern and Southern states' Americans. (Marin County Historical Society)

Cattle Driven Down Streets Of San Rafael

Men poured into the peaceful land. Some came as soldiers in the Mexican War; others chased the scent of gold across the continent or oceans. Others were just young men trying to grab adventure by the tail.

Forests fell away before the eyes of these men. Sweat stained their red flannel shirts and callouses lined the palms of their sunburned hands.

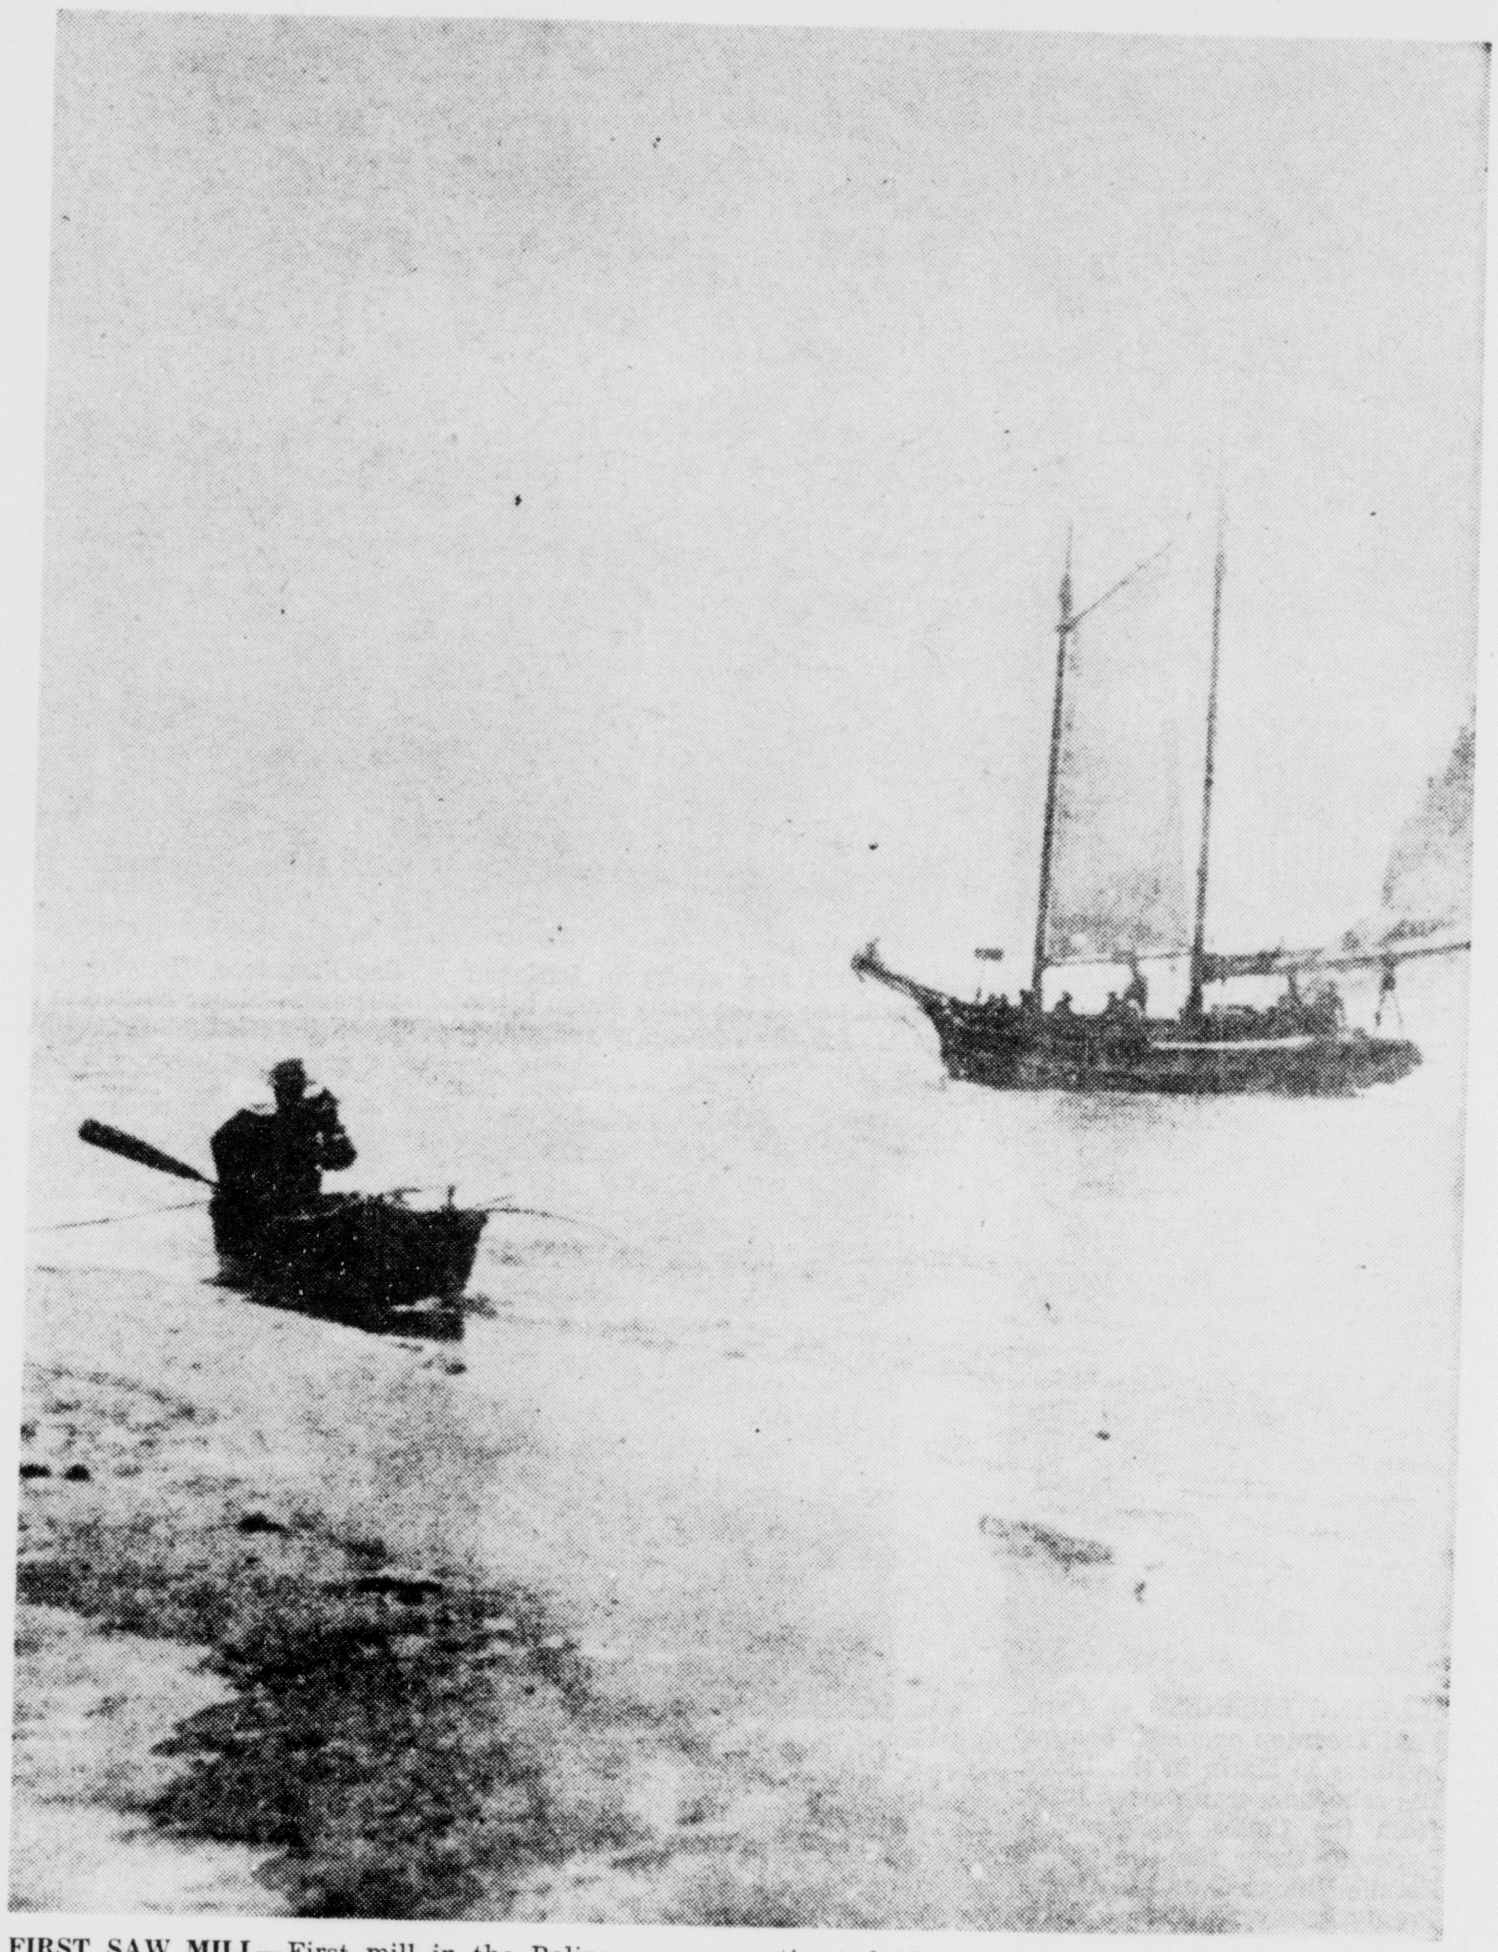
TREES WERE CUT, rolled, dragged, by straining ox teams over the pyramiding ridges running from Pt. Reyes to Olema to the Bolinas Harbor. The logs were loaded aboard schooners, shipped to San Francisco where a shanty town of tents and clapboard buildings began to grow into a city on the lumber torn from the Marin countryside.

Other woodsmen stripped redwood from the slopes of Tamalpais and the hills of Mill Valley and the flats of Corte Madera. These logs were shipped to San Francisco on the small boats that plied the navigable creeks criss-crossing the land. Redwoods were piled high on the pier at Ross' Landing (now the College of Marin site) waiting for the small barges to bring them to the booming San Francisco dock.

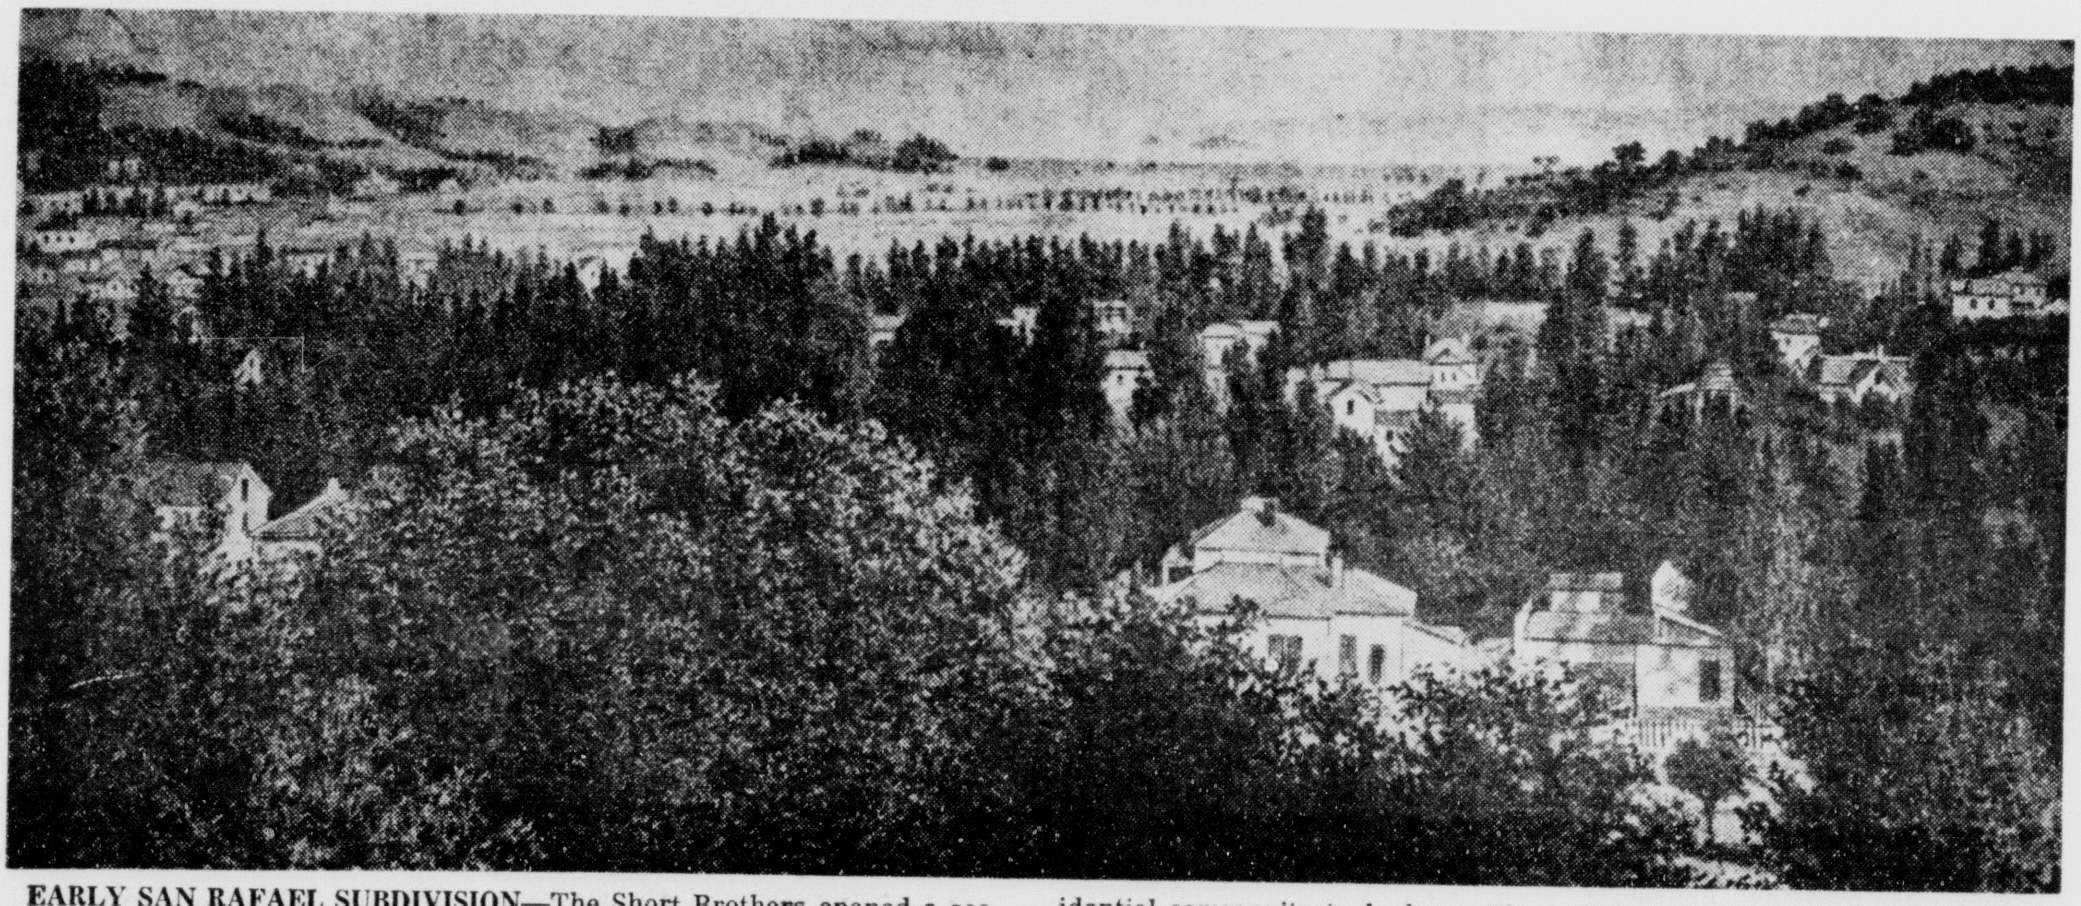
HERDS OF LONGHORN were chased over the hills by hard-riding, Spanish - speaking vaqueros. The herds were driven from the hills down into the basin and through the main street of San Rafael. (Now Fourth Street.) The thundering animals dug up screens of brown smoke with their sharp hooves, but the vaqueros drove them on to the slaughter house on the shore of the San Rafael Creek.

The beef was shipped from San Rafael four times weekly on Capt. Higgins old sloop "Boston." The Marin Ranchero was making a profit supplying the brawling city across the Bay with meat: a steer sold from $25 up. At least 100 head passed through San Rafael on the way to the slaughter house every week.

A town was beginning to grow out of the sleepy Mexican pueblo that had sprung from the Mission in 1834.



FIRST SAW MILL—First mill in the Bolinas area was at Woodville, called "Dog Town" by Capt Hammond in 1851. The area boomed and from the Bolinas Harbor, pictured here a few years later, an estimated 15,000,000 feet of timber was shipped to the San Francisco market on ships like these. Later dairying replaced logging as the chief industry of the area. (Courtesy Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas, Marin County Library)



EARLY SAN RAFAEL SUBDIVISION—The Short Brothers opened a section of western San Rafael as a subdivision when people began clammering for housing in the County Seat. Lots were laid out, houses built and a residential community took shape. The building boom hit the town in 1861. In 1850 there only had been 12 buildings in San Rafael and that number included both barns and stables. (Published originally by Marin County Journal in 1887)

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

We Start The Observance Of Our 100th Birthday

Today we start the observance of our 100th anniversary.

The actual birthdate is not until next Thursday, but today with your Independent-Journal is being delivered the first of our four special historical sections.

We are particularly proud of these sections. Marin County has no written history. In telling the story of 100 years of the Independent-Journal, it was necessary to go back into the county's earliest days to find out how and why Marin County reached a stage where a newspaper was needed and could be successful on March 23, 1861.

One of our staff members, Dorothy Slattery Gardiner, has spent the major part of her time for nearly a year in historical research, collecting photographs and in writing most of the four editions.

She has had wonderful cooperation from old Marinites, Marin Historical Society, the libraries, California Historical Society and many other individuals and organizations.

We believe that the four special sections, printed without advertising as a public service, will indeed become a historical reference library.

From our first editions, when the couple of hundred Marin Journal copies carried stories in Spanish so many of the county's 3,500 residents could read them, until today when more than 29,000 copies daily reach practically every part of our county, the I-J's objective has been to fairly and factually reflect what is happening in Marin.

Because we believe that our four special sections reflect a condensation of this effort and in fact have true historical merit, we are giving to the County Board of Education 400 sets for distribution to the county schools. It is the hope of the county schools superintendent that he will be able to bind at least one set for every school library in every school in the county. In addition, he plans to give additional unbound copies to every school for classroom use.

We hope that you too will enjoy these sections. And we invite you also to help us celebrate our birthday by paying us a visit. We will hold open house at our San Rafael office on the evening of Friday, March 31. There will be conducted tours of our plant. You are invited to drop by.

The Lowly Kumquat

We have suddenly developed an unexpected respect for the ignominious kumquat. Up until recently, we had regarded it as the lowest form of citrus fruit.

But not at all — their small fruits are as plump and tasty as plums. The "trees" are the size of house plants, but may bear 70 or 80 fruits. Of course, in our cool Marin climate, kumquats are generally hot-house plants.

In the Far East, the kumquat is a symbol of good luck and many boys in the family.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the 60 or so individuals who make up eight citizens committees advising the Novato Planning Commission in preparation of the new city's master plan. Meeting one or more times per week, these people are putting in long hours and doing a real service for their community.

BRICKBATS to Larkspur's new garbage ordinance which forces residents to pay for service whether they receive and need it or not; reasonable exceptions shouldn't be eliminated because they create "policing problems."

A BRICKBAT to Assemblyman Jack Schrade (R, El Cajon) for his resolution to allow each legislator two sets of license plates with his special district number on them. No two sets of plates should have the same number and besides one car with police immunity per legislator is enough.

"FANTASTIC" BURGLARY NETS $50,000

Safe crackers showed a determination and thoroughness worthy of a far better cause when they stole $50,000 in Miami, Fla.

The police had only one word for the burglary—'fantastic." The thieves smashed two large safes to get at the money, knocking down a warehouse wall in the process. They rolled two other safes out on dollies and packed them into a truck. Apparently they came equipped with an electric drill. The whole job was estimated by police to have taken a good five hours.

All this time the night watchman was asleep in the room above. It was his first evening on the job.

"I didn't hear a thing," he told authorities.

The forces of evil don't stand a chance when good people are wide awake and do what they are supposed to. Otherwise the initiative goes by default to the unscrupulous.

Those who love God and their fellow men should use as much ingenuity to save the world as others do to wreck it.

Should Parochial Schools Get Aid?

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's education program, presented to Congress last week, is running full blast into the emotion-ridden controversy over federal aid to parochial schools.

Participants on all sides of the issue base their arguments on what they believe the Constitution allows or forbids.

The President's program calls for grants to public elementary and secondary schools, but omits either grants or loans for parochial schools. The President has said "aid" to parochial schools is clearly unconstitutional. However, Kennedy is requesting low-interest loans, for construction of classrooms, to both public and private, sectarian colleges. His proposed college scholarship program would make grants to both the student and his college, public or private.

LEADING AMERICAN Catholics say they will oppose the program if it does not include loans to parochial schools. While not asking for grants, the Catholic hierarchy says long-term, low-interest loans would be "strictly within the framework of the Constitution" and discriminatory not to provide them.

Since 1950, the government has granted long-term, low-interest loans to public and private colleges for dormitory construction. Sectarian colleges — and most non-public colleges do have a sectarian basis—may receive the loans, but colleges whose main purpose is the teaching of religion, such as theological seminaries, may not. The administration's college classroom plan works the same way.

Money for the education of a veteran under the GI Bill was given to the school, and veterans were free to choose any school, including a religious seminary.

UNDER TWO programs, the government aids parochial elementary and secondary schools.

The National Defense Education Act, passed by Congress in 1958, authorized loans to private elementary and secondary schools for the purchase of equipment to improve the teaching of science and mathematics. Public schools were given grants for this purpose.

The National School Lunch Act grants money to the states for the purchase of food for non-profit lunches in public and private schools.

None of these programs has been challenged in the courts on the church-state issue and there has been almost no controversy about them on the religious issue.

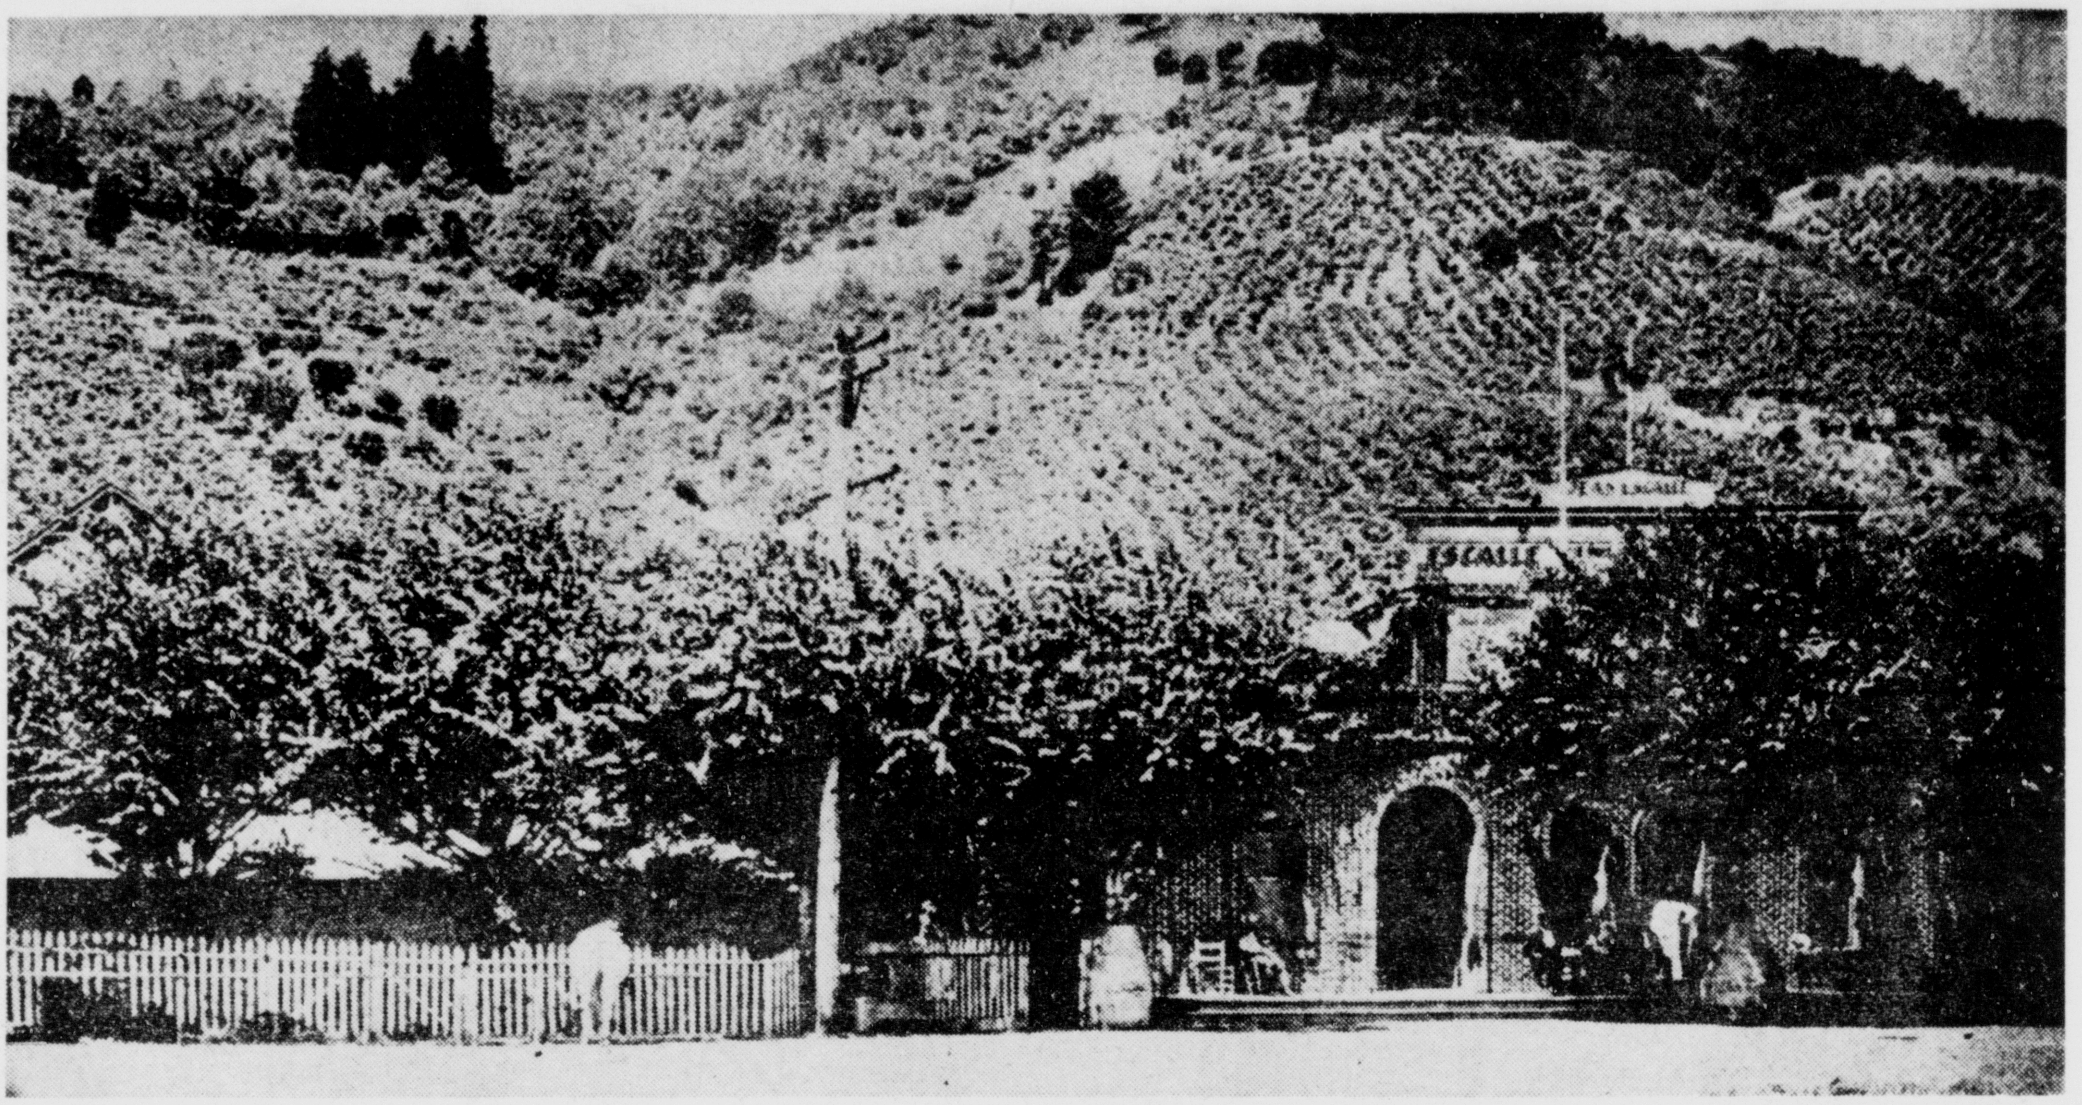
What Supreme Court decisions there are on the issue of the use of public funds for aid to religious schools were based on state laws. Although the justices often went beyond the immediate case to offer general opinions about the intent of the First Amendment, their decisions offer no clear guidelines on how the Court would rule on both existing and proposed federal programs.

AN AMENDMENT for loans to private schools was rejected by the Senate last year by a 37-49 roll-call vote. In the House, where the issue is considered explosive enough to kill a general education bill, a similar amendment was ruled out of order.

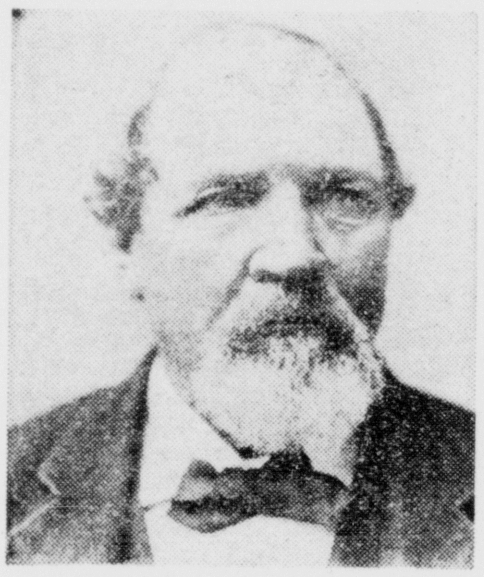
In the interest of getting any elementary and secondary school aid through Congress and of avoiding great embarrassment to President Kennedy, a Catholic, administration officials and school bill sponsors are hoping that a showdown may again be avoided in 1961.

The Country Parson

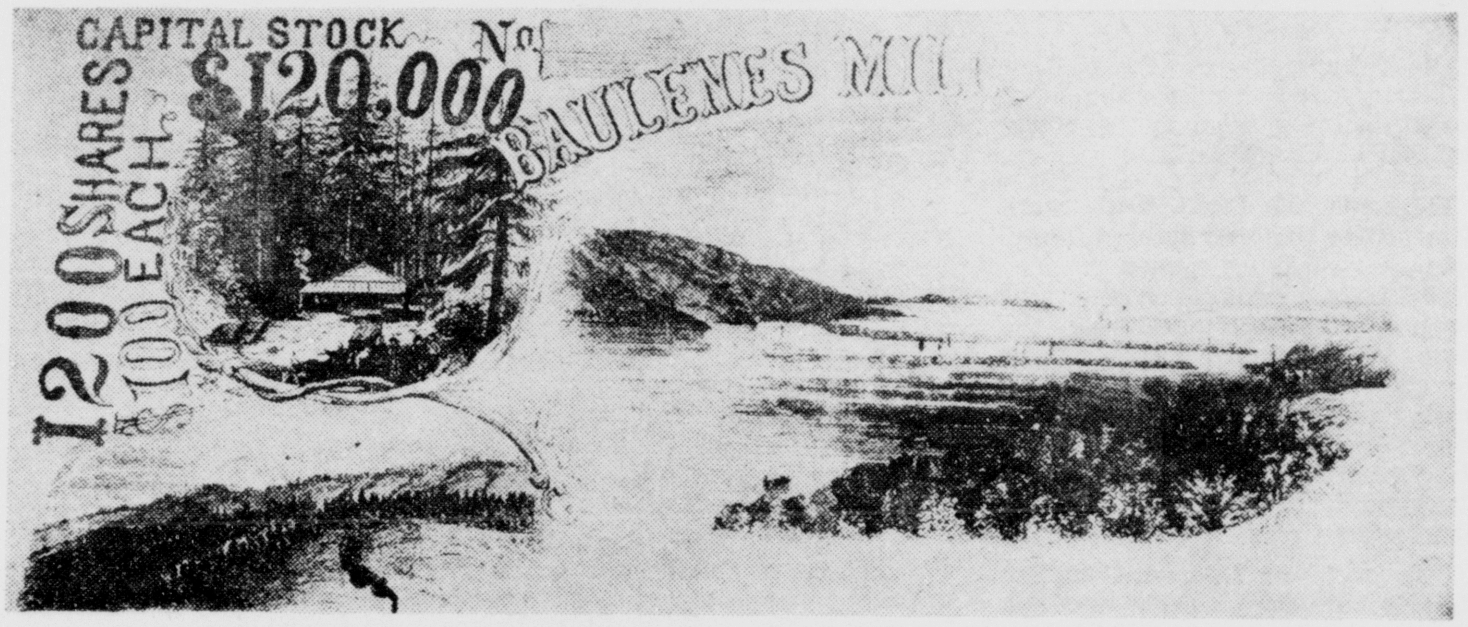
"The surest way to doom a man to failure is to arrange for things to come to him too easily."



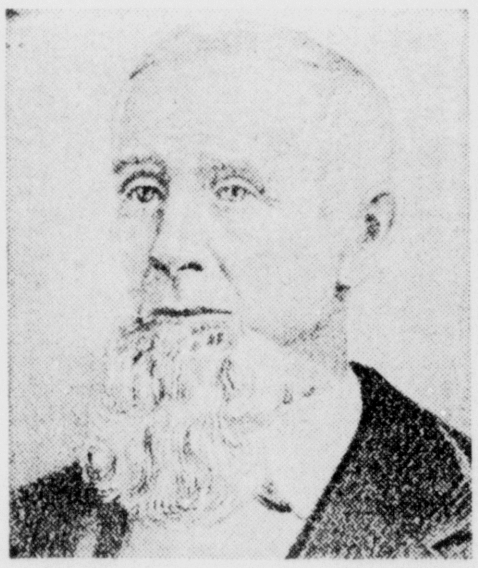
BRICKYARD, WINERY—The Escalle vineyard and winery in Larkspur was the original site of the Callot brickyard, one of the many Marin brickyards that supplied the building materials for the constantly rebuilding San Francisco. The young city was destroyed many times during its first 20 years—either burned to the ground by fire or shaken off its foundation by earthquake. (Marin County Library)



BOATING BUSINESS — Capt. Paul Treanton opened a boating business in Marin in the 1850s. His schooners transported brick from the Callot brickyard in Larkspur (later the site of the Escalle Vineyard) and the Peter Prenty brickyard (site of Marin General Hospital) to the San Francisco market. He first arrived in the Bay waters in 1837 aboard a French man-o-war. (Courtesy Paul Treanton)



GILT EDGE SECURITY from the booming logging days of Bolinas. Timber taken from the forests of Marin was used to build San Francisco then called "The Emporium of the Pacific." Loggers and millworkers flocked to Marin's shores and schooners weighted down under heavy loads of bark covered logs headed for Meiggs Wharf. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas, Marin County Library)



POWERFUL MAN—A big man with clear blue eyes, Charles A. Lauff, confident of Fremont, friend of Kit Carson, Gen. Vallejo and bandit Murietta arrived in Bolinas in 1849. Lauff fell in love with Maria Jesus Briones, spirited daughter of Don Gregorio on his arrival but his allegiance to the unpopular Americans prevented his courting the girl. After Maria's husband, Francisco Sebrean died, she married Lauff.

Nixon Is Coming To Marin Next Month

CHIP DAY

The plan is that Nixon will make an informal swing through Bay Area counties. He probably will meet in Marin with people from Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties who supported him in his successful campaign to carry California last November.

Just where the meeting will be held and of what it will consist is still to be worked out. One thing is certain; it will NOT be a fund raising event—no $100 a plate dinners or whatever.

On the contrary, it may well wind up as an informal kaffee klatsch sort of thing, or a buffet luncheon, where the former vice president will be strolling around with the other guests chatting.

He will come here from a day in San Mateo-Santa Clara counties and later the same day will move over to Contra Costa-Solano. San Francisco and Alameda will also have their Day With Nixon.

If he actually does make it, it will be the first time Nixon has set foot in Marin County since he ran for U. S. Senator against Helen Gahagan Douglas in 1950. Last time we recall hearing him in Marin was speaking to a handful of people gathered in Mill Valley's Golf Clubhouse.

It was a very dull speech. He's improved since then.

THE REPUBLICANS had a big last weekend in Sacramento. Marin Sen. John F. McCarthy introduced Gov. Norman Erbe of Iowa at a State Central Committee banquet. He told how the governor was born in Boone, Iowa, was educated in Boone, went away to college, came back to Boone to enter practice of law, married a Boone girl and now "the governor and Mrs. Boone have three fine children." The laughter so fussed him he took "pleasure in presenting Governor Boone," and the house about came down.

The governor himself, brother of Mill Valleyan Ellen Bergman, made a similar slip. Telling how well the Republicans had done in Iowa and California because of organization, he declared, "With this kind of organization, there is no excuse for a Republican landslide in 1962."

Carl Conelly of Santa Cruz, chairman of the County Central Committee Chairmen's Association, also urged full organization. "We've got to take advantage of our women," he boomed. As the chairmen roared, he fixed it: "What I mean is we have to make every use of them possible.""

It was quite a weekend in Sacramento.

MARIN - SONOMA Assemblyman William T. Bagley pushed Senator McCarthy's resolution urging federal aid to rapid transit systems through the Assembly, but not without a fight.

Final vote was 41 to 32 after Bagley was forced to call in the absentees to get his bare majority of the 80-man Assembly. Seems his fellow Republicans were loath to open a new field of federal assistance and most of them voted against him.

NOTICED AN ITEM in a column of one of those out-of-county papers which said directors of the Golden Gate Bridge are considering stringing colored lights on the bridge towers for the Christmas season.

This is an old suggestion turned down again and again by the bridge directors — a dead duck unless their new public relations man has something going.

ONE OF THE interesting things about the recent book-burning fiasco was why they had the extra books in the first place.

At a press conference recently they explained it.

Seems that instead of stopping printing books when they had the number ordered, they continue printing until all of the paper is gone. It "doesn't cost much more after the press is once set up." The reason they had extra paper was that they'd ordered 10 per cent too much to begin with for "spoilage."

Then after the books are printed, it doesn't cost too much more to bind them. So they do.

Of course binding them makes them unusuable for scrap paper, so they burn them.

BENNETT CERF

Things get so quiet in the summer in western Illinois, mourns Joe E. Lewis, that the Mississippi River runs only three times a week.

A minor auto mishap brought a traffic cop on the run. He found an irate male motorist jawing away with the even more irate female driver of the other vehicle involved in the accident. The cop pulled the male motorist aside and whispered sympathetically, "If I was you, Bud, I'd settle here and now. After all, it's just your word against thousands of hers!"

Overheard in the Sheraton East bar. "He's one of the nicest guys on two feet—if he could only stay on them."

Independent-Journal:

A belated "bouquet" to you for the fine editorial of Feb. 16 on Major Gen. Krulak's speech before the Freedom Forum at San Diego. We need more publicity of this sort. The Freedom Forums are doing a great service for Americans and our country, and I for one appreciate your recognition of it by giving it editorial space.

I had occasion a few weeks ago to hand you a "brickbat" for your editorial on the House Rules Committee, the letter which you so kindly printed.

I wish also to thank you and commend you for the means you are using to increase your circulation and to make available to everyone the standard of our country — specifically your new American Flag offer.

I think it is a tremendous idea and one which I, and I know many others, greatly appreciate.

Keep up the fine work you can do to alert the citizens of our republic to awaken and to act in order that our constitutional freedoms will not be lost or adulterated.

The More We Think About Being 'All-American' Better We Like It

Some sophisticated citizens of the county might pooh-hoo all of this to-do about Marin's being named "All American City."

But the more we think about it, the more we like it.

Sure, we have our ups and downs, but that's what makes this place so lively and interesting. Who wants a place with no ups and downs, just a flat expanse of land stretching to both sides of a straight state highway?

THAT'S WHERE we once lived—in a Central California town. The only relief from working in the hot vineyards was a quick dip in the irrigation ditch when Paw wasn't looking. By the time he got back, we were soaking wet, but he was never sure whether it was from perspiration or from the ditch.

A trip to an ocean beach was just about unthinkable. The closest we got was when we chugged off to the Kings River in an old Model A for a day of fishing. An eight-inch catfish hauled out of the little stream looked as good as a 20-pound bass out of Racoon Straits.

The only greenery for miles were grapevines and peach orchards. The only grass that abounded were called Johnson and Bermuda.

BY COMPARISON, Marin County sparkles.

Everywhere you turn, you see little gems almost every day. Just last Monday, a fellow tossed out his fishing line at Tiburon, got a strike and hauled in. He had snagged some old lines and hooks lost by other fishermen. And on those hooks were six big rock cods. He pulled in all six with the one cast.

If you don't believe it, ask Charles Roth of Tiburon. He was the one standing nearby, watching in astonishment as the string of cods came flopping out.

TREE PLANTING on city streets is in style. San Rafael, San Anselmo and Novato are putting out greenery in decorative containers.

San Rafael's Beautiful Committee reports that money for the trees is coming in at a fast clip on a voluntary basis from merchants.

But is it true that San Anselmo is already having some trouble? They tell me that on the day the concrete containers were laid out on the streets, one heavy container was promptly stolen.

The first grade alone has four sets of twins, and the school as a whole has seven sets.

CALIFORNIA'S Bear Flag must have been flying upside down for all these years at the San Anselmo city council chambers.

The Bear's plight was discovered when councilmen decided that the ancient emblem should be replaced by a new one.

SAN RAFAEL is still red-faced for forgetting to invite Harry Heifetz to the grand opening of its Terra Linda firehouse.

All Heifetz did was donate the land for the fire station.

Independent-Journal:

As long as my name was mentioned in your paper by Leslie Smith, I feel it is my duty to reply, even to the point of lowering myself by doing so.

Mr. Leslie Smith . . . failed to mention the removal of the vast amount of eucalyptus trees (sale or otherwise) along Shoreline Highway 1 which was to Tamalpais Valley so much protection from the fog and wind from the ocean. Is it a question of whom the trees belong to that make a difference? Or what side you are on.

Also he failed to mention the sand that I gladly gave to the Muir Beach property owners for their road work whenever they needed it, and many others as well.

As far as old Highway 1 is concerned, if that's what the people of Marin want, I can get along with that, too.

But, when mothers' sons from other states in the service of their country visit our beautiful shores of Marin County to lose their lives or get injured on scenic Highway 1, something is wrong and someone is to blame for it.

The California Highway Department knows what kind of a highway is needed. Let them do the job which is theirs even if they don't intend to start for 10 years, as they so stated.

THE CYNIC'S CORNER By Interlandi

"Let me quote our president—'If a free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich' . . . !"

COUNCIL FIRST MET HERE—When the San Rafael Board of Trustees, (counter-part of today's city council) met for the first time April 9, 1874, it gathered in the second story of the Mechanics Institute Hall owned by J. O. B. Short at the southeast corner of Fourth and C Streets. The building was also the site of the town's first post office. McAllister's saloon occupied the first floor. The first trustees were: Sidney V. Smith, J. B. Rice, A. W. Taliaferro, William J. Miller and Jacob Short. (Marin County Historical Society)

Local Government Organized By Legislature In Early 50's

On Sept. 16, 1850, Marin County felt the first slice of the dividing knife as four settlements were carved out of its flank. Shorb, Black and Milewater shaped Sausalito from the Richardson Rancho, Novato from the area north of the county seat and Bolinas from the Briones Rancho in the west.

Two surveyors were called in to lay out the town of San Rafael. Lots were squared off at 300 feet.

ON OCT. 18, the Oregon, a side-wheel steamer churned through the Golden Gate. Her bells were ringing and streamers fluttered from her mast. One read: California admitted.

On Sept. 9, President Millard Fillmore had signed the gold-rich territory into the Union breaking the deadlock between free and slave states by making California the 16th free state.

THREE YEARS later the Court of Sessions led by Ai Barney established the towns of Tomales and Point Reyes and in 1855 formed new boundaries for San Rafael, Corte Madera, Sausalito, Novato, San Antonio, Tomales, Point Reyes and Bolinas.

In 1852 the legislature organized the first board of supervisors, and in December T. F. Peck was elected chairman and W. T. Whittlesey and H. S. Baechtel supervisors. The supervisors and court of sessions operated together for three years until the legislature abolished the latter and set up a list of powers for the supervisors. Local government was coming of age.

BARNEY AS JUDGE—Ai Barney was appointed Marin County judge by the governor in 1850 to replace Dr. Shorb who resigned four months after taking office. Barney was re-elected and held the office for seven years. He arrived in the County in 1849 as a member of the Baltimore and Frederick Mining and Trading Co. out of Maryland. In 1861 he and his son, Jerome, founded Marin County's first newspaper, The Marin County Journal. This pictures him as he appeared in earlier years. (Marin County Library)

COUNTY'S FIRST SURVEYOR—Alfred Derby Easkoot settled in Bolinas in 1851. He held the office of Marin's first surveyor until 1871. Born in Massachusetts in 1820, Easkoot went to sea at the age of 9. Three years later he severely burned his face and hands losing several fingers. He arrived in San Francisco in 1851 to take charge of the ship Asa Packer but was unable to after being stricken with a fever. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas)

By Bert Brown, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael, Bel Aire, & Fairfax, GL 4-4792
Member, Textile Maintenance Committee, University of California

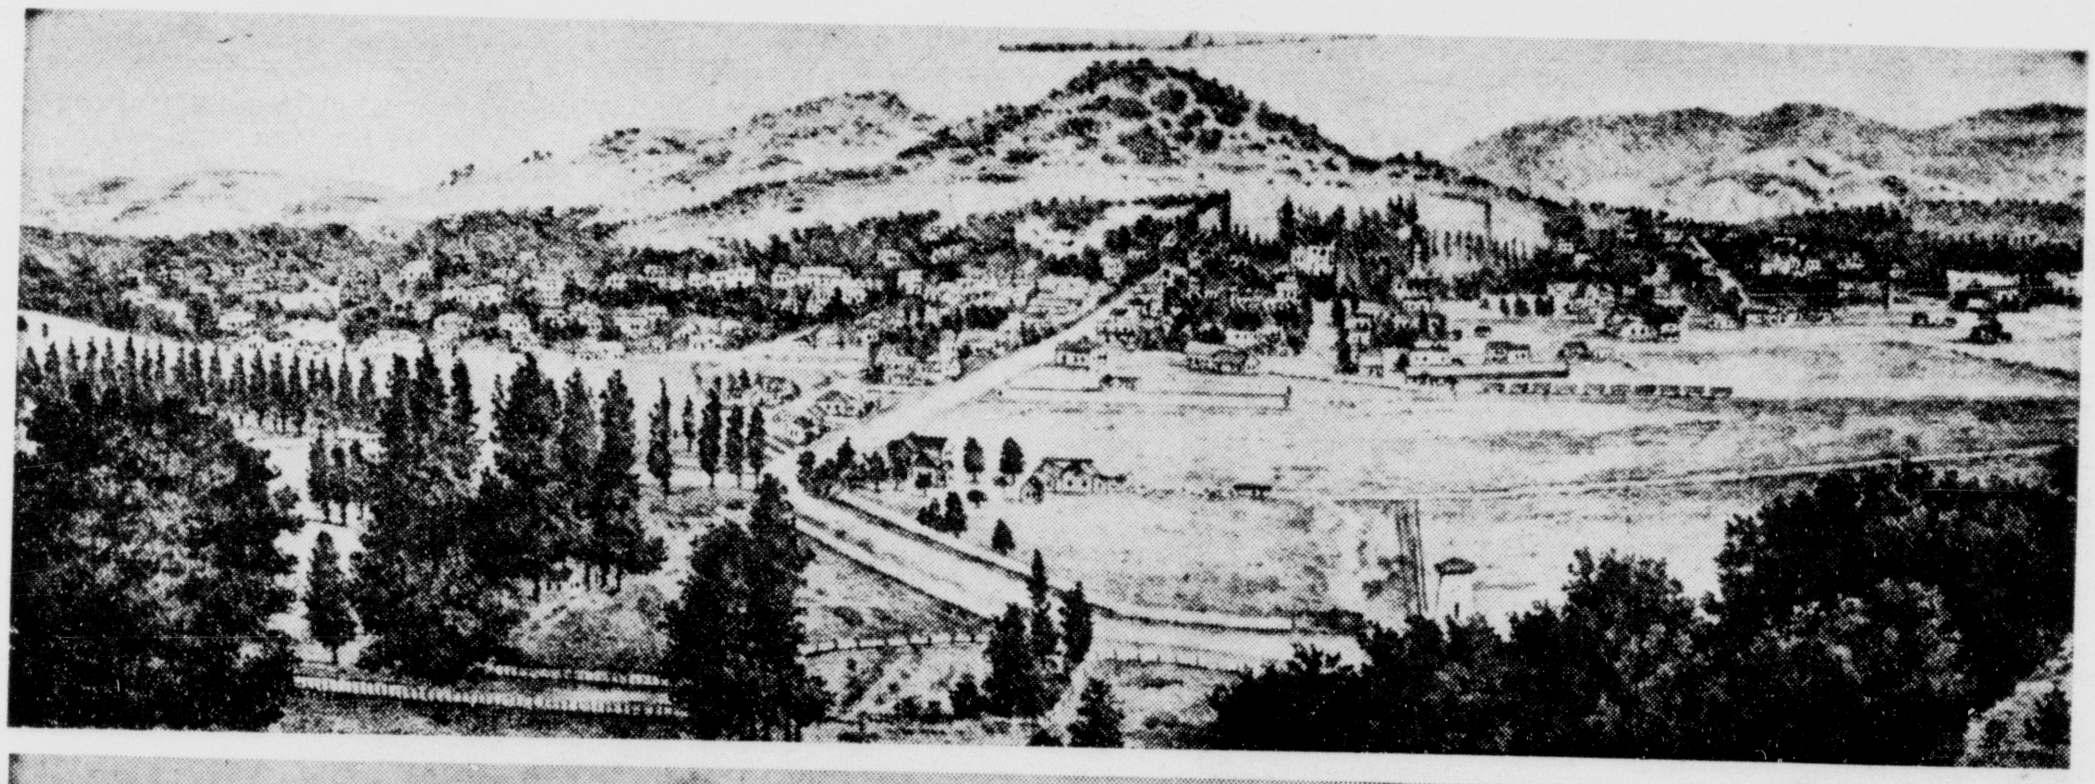
"Can My Fur-Type Coat Be Dry Cleaned?"

This is the season that these coats begin to show soil and wear. Naturally, you want to restore your fur-type coat as nearly as possible for future use. Therefore, you should take your coat to an authorized Fur Frost cleaner.

Deep pile fur-type coats, as you know are luxurious in appearance and feel; however, in wear they tend to mat down and the fibers sometimes bunch together and "tuft." The amount of tufting depends upon the fiber content, fabric construction, finished amount of wear and method of cleaning. The pile on knit-back types is usually deeper than those with woven backs and the former are most likely to tuft. If your coat is made of Wild or Tussah silk pile, which resembles seal, it will not tuft like synthetic piles. It will dryclean. Because these fabrics are of a synthetic nature, heat such as exposure to a hot steam radiator or a cigarette burn, will permanently mar the fabric. Nothing can be done to restore it after this damage.

However, if your deep pile fur-type coat has had normal wear and care, drycleaning by an authorized Fur Frost cleaner, who knows how to handle it, for it must be treated differently than ordinary garments, will clean and preserve it for you to wear again and again.

HEART OF THE COUNTY SEAT—The Marin County Courthouse was erected at Fourth and A Streets to replace Don Timoteo's crumbling hacienda two blocks west. The building has been enlarged several times over the years and is still being used today, 89 years later. The Marin lodge No. 191, Free and Accepted Masons, officiated at the laying of the cornerstone, Aug. 3, 1872. (Marin County Historical Society)



PANORAMA OF THE COUNTY SEAT — This picture shows San Rafael looking north (above) and south (below) in the same decade the new courthouse was built at the corner of Fourth and A Streets. Many San Francisco businessmen had bought permanent residences in the town and many others were opening summer homes on the hills rimming the downtown area. (Published in the Marin County Journal in 1889)

SAN RAFAEL SCENE—The streets of the County Seat were dusty in the summer and as gooey as quicksand in the winter. This is the Frederick H. Pratt store at Fourth and B Streets. The sign to left of the building is advertising "Philadelphia Lager." The saloons are reported to have "done a flourishing business" in frontier days. Many times city fathers hashed out political issues sitting by the stove in the watering spot close to the adobe courthouse at Fourth and C Streets. (Marin County Historical Society)

1st Legislature Carved Land For County

Government blew up like a firecracker with a short fuse.

Military Governor Brig. Gen. Bennett Riley called a convention in Monterey in the fall of 1849 after Congress closed its doors without doing anything about the new territory of California. The California and American settler chafed under the military tribunal and Riley felt the uneasiness.

The session lasted a painful six weeks with embarrassing pauses as harried representatives and assistants made desperate searches for reference books.

1st Nicasio Mills Erected In 1852

In 1852 Noah Corey built the first house in Nicasio and with his brother, Hiram, opened the first saw mill in the Nicasio Valley. There were large forests of redwood and oak.

But in a few years forests had disappeared and pasture land had taken their place.

A year after the Coreys landed in Nicasio, William Butterfield and William Dampier put up a house south of town and started a stock business. The valley began to fill.

Nicasio is the geographical heart of Marin and the early settlers felt that it should be the county seat rather than San Rafael.

Ten years after the Corey brothers built their saw mill in Nicasio, James Dixon and James Ross opened another mill, one and a half miles east of town. The mill turned out 15,000 feet of lumber a day and ran for three years until Dixon bought out Ross' interest and moved the mill to Fort Ross.

Isaac Shaver and Jonathan Mitchner opened a third mill, one and a half miles southeast of the town in 1866, turning out 20,000 feet of lumber a day. This mill was closed in 1872 when the machinery was moved to San Rafael and installed in a planning mill.

County Named For Indian Chief

They organized a Court of Sessions to minister local government at San Rafael and on July 22 Dr. James A. Shorb, recently arrived Yankee who had landed in Marin as part of the Baltimore and Frederick Co. of Maryland was elected county judge. Oldtimers James Black and another newcomer George Milewater were elected associate justices.

Black, Scot born hunter and cattle raiser, arrived in California in 1832 aboard an English trading ship. When the boat reached Monterey the 25-year-old sailor was put ashore with a severe case of typhoid fever.

But Juan Cooper, the American born brother-in-law of Mariano Vallejo, a leading Californian, took the young Scotsman in and cured him. Black met another Scotsman, Edward McIntosh in Monterey and decided to join him in a hunting and trapping venture in the north. The young men lived at the adobe Presidio at Yerba Buena in 1833 and Black, Murphy, Reed and Vallejo became close friends.

WHEN VALLEJO was made military commandant of California in 1835 he secured a land grant for his Scot friends close to the Russian border at Fort Ross. A few years later Black swapped his Sonoma holdings for a piece of the Rancho Nicasio in Marin.

The three members of the court of sessions ordered the newly elected Sheriff, S. S. Baechtel, to build a log jail and find them a place to meet. Vendors were told they must obtain licenses to peddle their goods.

BOLINAS BECOMES RESORT TOWN—Nellie Esten Waterhouse transformed a quarter section of the Juan Briones Rancho on the Bolinas beach into a resort tract, Grand Vista, in 1883. She hired surveyors to lay out lots, ordered eucalyptus and cypress trees planted and planned on selling 10 lots a year to persons wanting Bolinas summer homes. The area soon became a popular resort town and gathering place for many prominent Marin families. (Courtesy of Mrs. James Jenkins and the Marin County Library).

SUNNYSIDE AREA—This portion of the James Ross ranch later to become part of the town of San Anselmo was softly rolling meadowland in the 1870's and 80's. Portions of the area in the beginning days were almost treeless and many of the verdant growth that today cover the area were planted by the early settlers to shade the blistering hot sun. (First published in the Marin Journal 1889)

RANCHO PUNTA DE LOS REYES —The 8,878-acre grant was given to James R. Berry, an Irishman, on March 17, 1836, by Gov. Gutierrez. Berry later sold his rancho to Joseph F. Snook an Englishman who in 1840 transported, 25 captive Americans from Yerba Buena and Monterey to San Blas in his boat the "Joven Guipuzcoana." The Americans had been expelled from California by the governor who suspected an uprising and revolution was in the making.

Two years later Snook's bark was taken prisoner by two American war ships in the port of Monterey. It is doubtful if the seafaring Snook ever lived on his Marin rancho. In 1843, the rancho passed into the hands of Antonio Maria Osio, well-known Mexican official, and owner of Angel Island. Osio lived in Don Timoteo Murphy's hacienda in San Rafael when in Marin. He never occupied his western Marin ranch. Later he returned to his home in lower California and wrote a history of California.

Osio's ranch and the Rancho Punta de los Reyes Sobrante (leftovers) were granted to Andrew Randall who had arrived in California as a gunner on the U.S.S. Portsmouth. The two ranchos were patented, totaling 57,000.98 acres in 1860. The ranchos next passed into the hands of Justice Oscar L. Shafter, Judge James McMillan Shafter and Charles Webb Howard who opened the area as a dairying section and leased out the land.

RANCHO PUNTA DE QUENTIN —This ranch bordered on the east by the waters of San Pablo Bay on the south by what is now Larkspur, on the north by San Anselmo and to the west by a ridge of mountains north of Tamalpais, was granted in 1840 to Juan Bautiste Cooper, brother in law of Gen. Mariano Vallejo. It was soon acquired by Benjamin R. Buckelew. Buckelew, one time editor and publisher of the San Francisco newspaper the "Californian," died in 1859 at 37.

The ranch was bought in 1859 by Irish-born James Ross who had come to San Francisco by way of Australia. He opened an import business in the boom town across the bay and also owned a fleet of river boats that traded along the Sacramento River. He was a man of medium size, and a great lover of music and fast horses. The pioneers of Ross Valley originally bought their land from this quiet spoken man whose name has become an indelible mark on Marin.

RANCHO CANADA DE HERRERA —The 6,658 acre ranch that today is part of San Anselmo and Fairfax was granted to Domingo Sais in 1839 by the Mexican governor. Sais had served a two-year term as elector and regidor of San Francisco. The first parceling of this ranch covering the hills and valleys occurred in 1849 when 40 acres by the banks of a clear flowing stream were given to Dr. A. W. Taliaferro who had arrived in Marin as a member of a mining company and who was to become the first physician for San Quentin.

Later Taliaferro in turn gave his land to his close friend Lord Charles Fairfax, descendent of the English barons of Fairfax and former resident of Fairfax County in Virginia. Lord Fairfax had married the niece of U.S. Sen. John C. Calhoun, and his home became one of the social and political meccas of early California. His land was soon known by his name. The Fairfax home was located near the old railroad station of Fairfax and Manor.

RANCHO de NOVATO — This ranch reaching to Black Point and the San Pablo Bay on the northwest and was given to Fernando Felis in 1839. Later the rancho was owned jointly by Frederick Billings, James R. Bolton and Henry Halleck. Archibald Peachy bought the rancho after 1850.

RANCHO SAN GERONIMO — Granted to Rafael Cacho in 1844 and later patented to Joseph Revere, grandson of Paul Revere in 1860. Revere arrived in California in 1846 as a Navy lieutenant and soon settled on his rancho and went into the stock business. He was a close friend of Don Timoteo Murphy. Revere later returned to the East coast where he lived in Morristown, Pa.

THE DAYS OF THE DONS—Marin's early years under Mexican rule were a time of carefree and elegant living that has never been paralleled. This was the time of the big ranchos.(See map) Hospitality was a law in every household. A bowl of silver was customarily left by the bed for any stranger asking for a night's rest in case he did not have enough money to eat. Ranchers traveled hundreds of miles to attend a party or fiesta at a friend's rancho. These parties sometimes lasted a week or two. Huge barbecues were held daily. Later the dons and their ladies waltzed into the pre-dawn hours. Picnics were held in the afternoons. Horsemanship was the main occupation of the don and he was considered to be the best in the world. (Map courtesy Society of California Pioneers)

LOOKING OUT OVER his property under Richardson Bay, George Zaro contemplates its future development. He has already converted once "swamp land" into dry land and plans to continue the conversion. His final goal: A multi-million dollar waterfront apartment project. (Independent-Journal photo)

By PAUL MILLER

George Zaro will be 70 in two months, lives in Greenbrae and was born on an island in the Adriatic Sea. He had a priest cousin who was shot down in front of his parish by Communist Party agents, and an uncle who was exiled from Yugoslavia for running up an American flag over his home on the Fourth of July.

George Zaro has been a restaurateur since he was 12. He speaks five languages, was a soldier, has more than 600 relatives in San Jose, and in 1945 he saved his wife and himself from an inferno that leveled his own nightclub. In that decade he bought some 49 acres of land, most of which was under Richardson Bay. He is now lessor of Sabella's restaurant on some of that once wet property and plans to develop the rest of the land—most of which is now dry—into a multi-million dollar waterfront apartment project.

GEORGE ZARO'S story begins in Southeast Yugoslavia, a region along the Adriatic coast where the Dinaric Alps taper off to form the ancient province of Dalmatia. The region is known for its open, friendly people, its ports, fishing villages, olive groves and small off-shore island chain where the sun is extra bright in the summer, and the wind in the winter from the Adriatic and Ionian seas is piercing.

On the largest of these islands, Brac, in a town called Bobovisce, George Zaro was born. The day was April 11, 1892, 14 years after Yugoslavia (then Serbia) gained its independence from Turkey by the Treaty of Berlin, and 20 years before the Austrian government forced war on Serbia and brought on World War I. But by 1914 Zaro had been a resident of the United States for about eight years, his uncle Steve Zaro having sent for him from San Jose when George was 12.

As soon as he arrived in San Jose he went to work in the family eating place. It had been established by his grand-uncle in 1869 and was called Overland Restaurant. In 1908 the restaurant was renamed Zaro's. George recalls that it was there he learned the business the hard way.

"When I was learning to mix drinks I got some hard lessons. Just a pinch of bitters more than should go in a drink and my uncle would raise my ear no matter who was watching. I learned that I had to do things right, or not at all."

ZARO MUST have learned because when he was 16 his uncle would take business or fishing trips for weeks at a time and leave the responsibility of the restaurant in young George's care. This included a staff of 18 waiters and six cooks.

George Zaro inherited his business ability and energy from his father, Anthony, who was a wine merchant in Dalmatia. A wine merchant would buy wines from the peasants in the country and sell it to buyers in the cities. It was carried in the 1800s in sheepskin bags and poured into the barrels of buyers. Anthony Zaro traveled much. He was a friendly and gracious man who cared for the peasants who sold him their wine.

George was also proud of his grandfather, after whom he was named: George Gligo. Gligo was the captain of his own trading schooner that carried goods like olives, wine and wheat to Mediterranean ports. Captain Gligo was six feet, seven inches tall and had a reputation for being able to lift a mule off the ground, boasts his grandson.

NOT IN HEIGHT, but in spirit and energy, Zaro takes after his grandfather. George Zaro sits on the edge of his chair when he talks. As he speaks of food, government or land, his eyes get wide, and his voice is loud and resembles Edward G. Robinson. After his opinion is expressed, Zaro may sit back and smile or laugh, but only for a moment.

He speaks five languages: English, Italian, Croatian, Spanish, "if people speak or write slowly," and Latin which he learned as an altar boy. He can also understand some French and Portuguese.

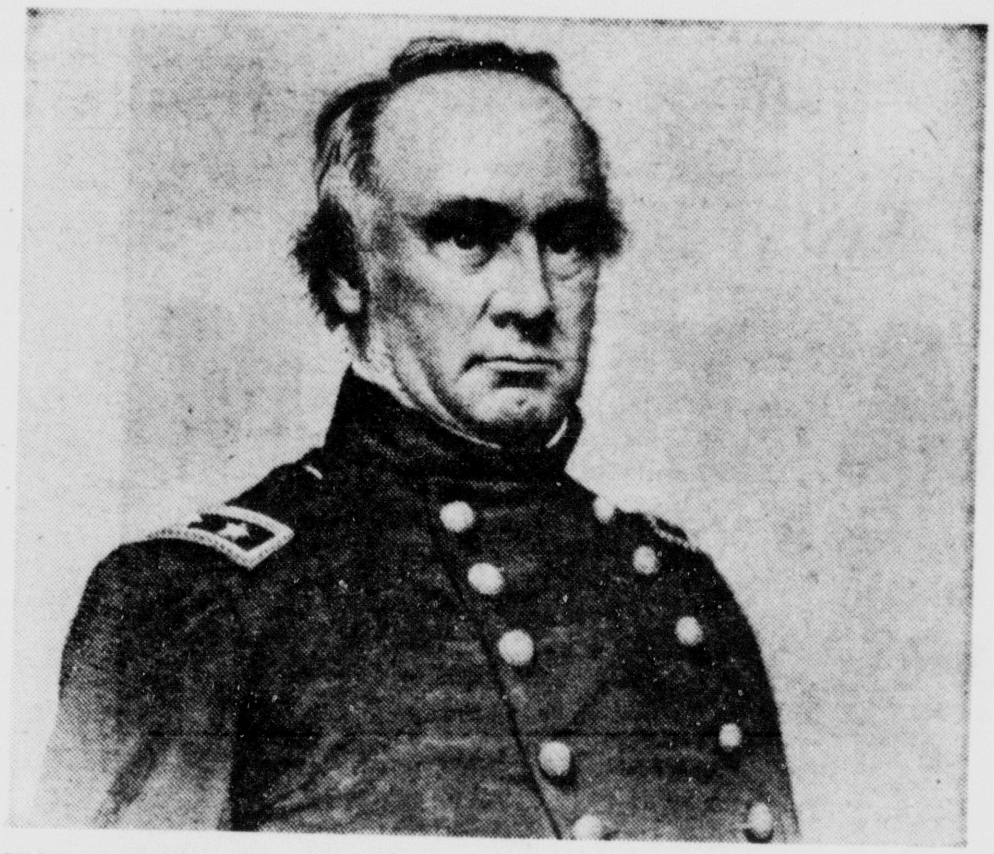
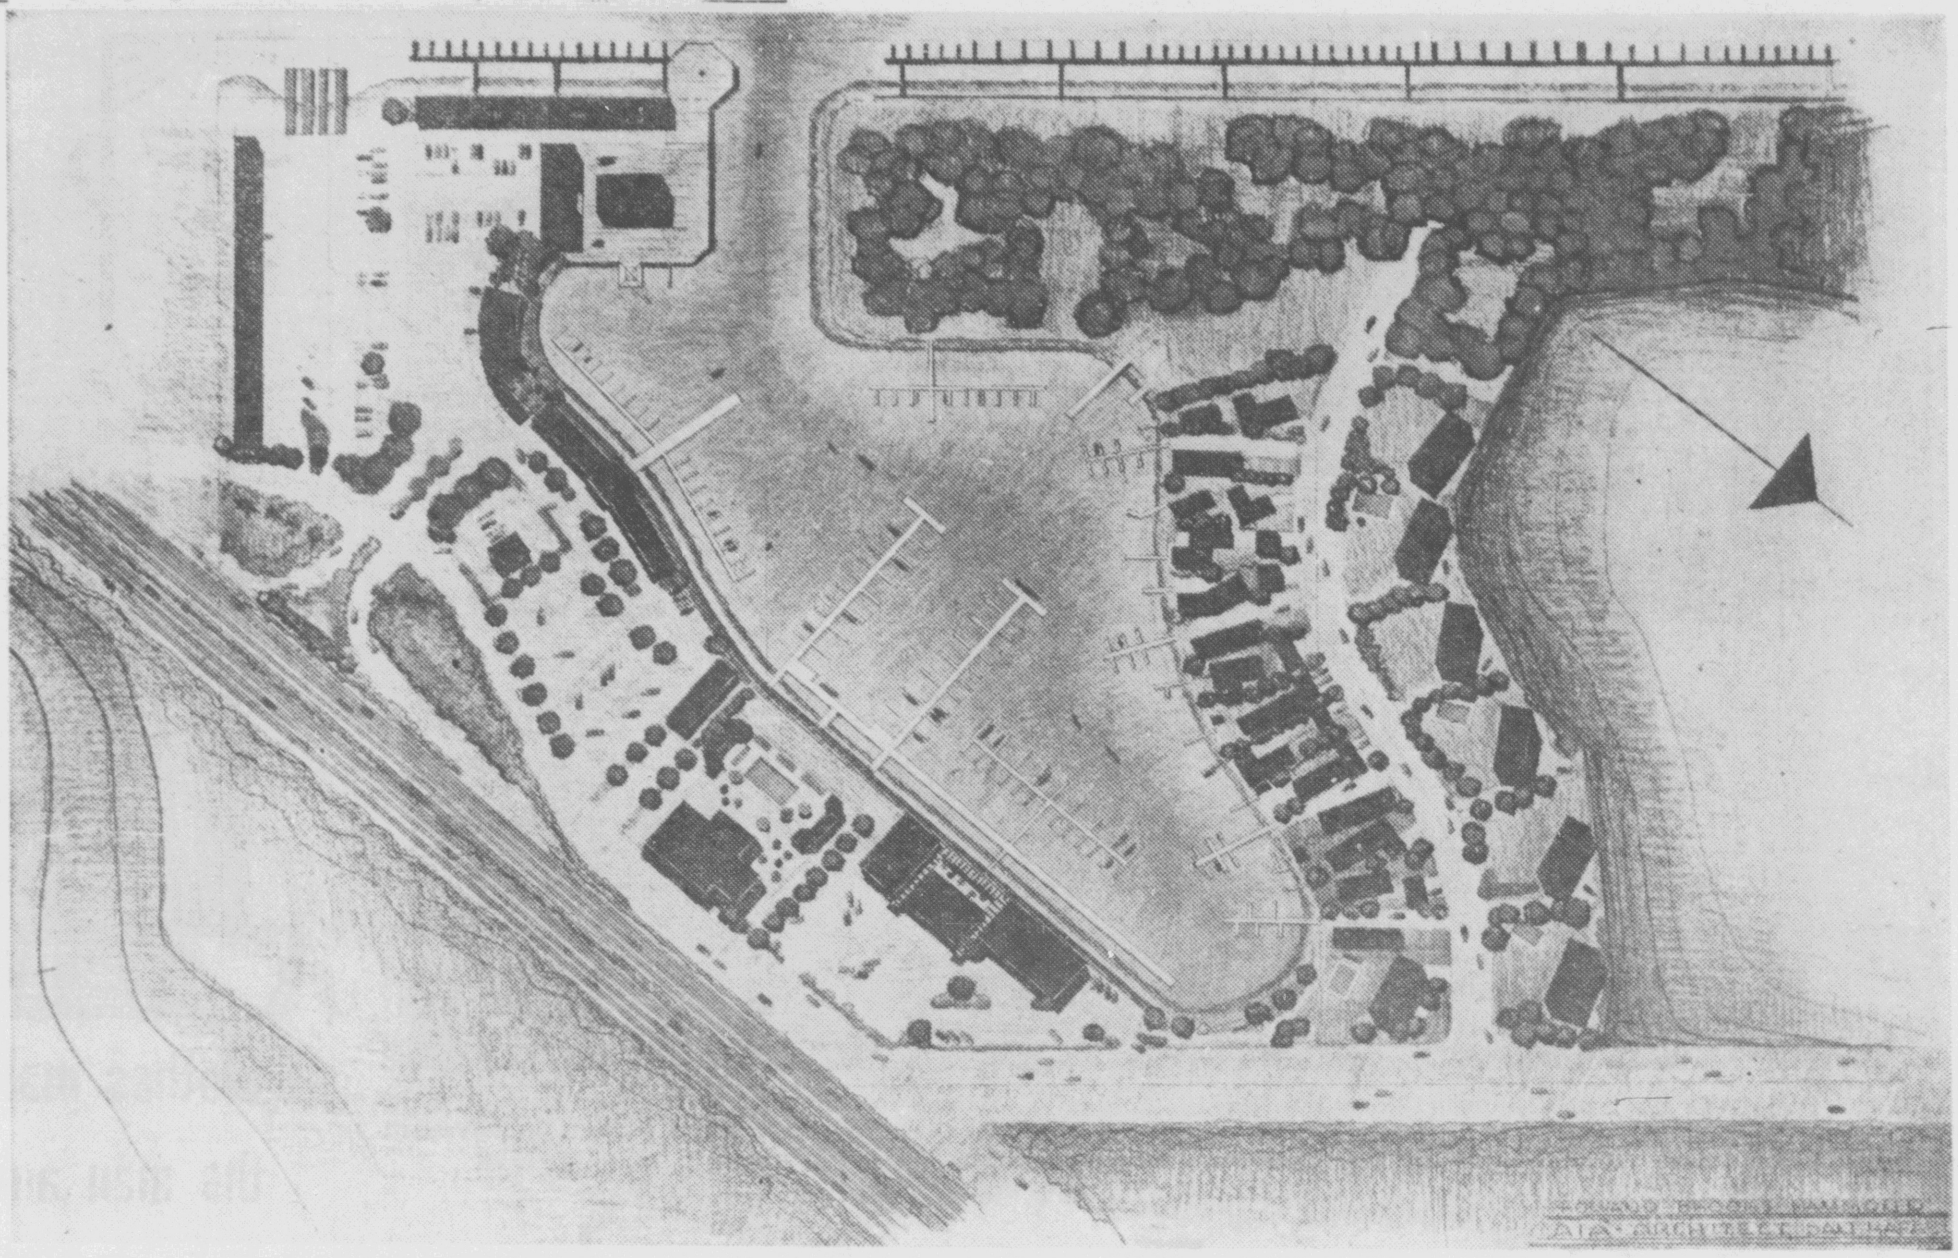
ONE TICKET — One flag, one government. The Civil War aroused strong political feelings within the early Marin settler. The county's newspaper, the Marin County Journal, vehemently supported the Union cause, published the Union party's political platform weekly six years after the close of the Civil War. Pictured above is a "Union Ticket" for the Tenth Senatorial District then taking in Contra Costa and Marin. John Swett served as Supt. of Public Instruction from 1863 until 1867. (Compliments of Boyd Stewart)



WAR FIGURE — Henry Halleck later to become the Union commander in the West during the Civil War signed California's first constitution as secretary of state in 1849. He arrived in 1846 to fight in the Mexican War and was promoted to the rank of captain the following year. He acquired about 57,000 acres in the Nicasio Valley after the Mexican grants had been reviewed by the United States governments. He started practicing law in San Francisco in '54 and seven years later on the recommendation of Lt. Gov. Scott was appointed major general in the Union army. (Society of California Pioneers)

EARLY FIGURES — Standing on the porch of DuBois and Barney's butcher shop near Fourth and C Streets are a group of men who were luminaries of the young County Seat. Among those pictured are: Ned Eden, Elisha DuBois, Jerome Barney, founder of the Marin County Journal and son of County Judge Ai Barney. Dan Taylor, who arrived in Marin with the elder Barney and was County Clerk for many years and Val Doub. (Marin County Historical Society)

FOUNDER OF RESORT — Mrs. Nellie Esten Waterhouse turned a portion of the Bolinas beach area into a resort, residential area in 1883. The land was given to her as a gift by her husband, Frank Waterhouse, a Sacramento banker. (Courtesy of Mrs. L. G. Pepper of Bolinas)



THIS DRAWING shows what George Zaro's proposed future development program for Richardson Bay will look like when completed. The multi-million dollar apartment project will have a dock capacity for some 400 boats. Negotiations for the construction of the apartments is now under way. "God put us on earth to do things, to develop for future generations . . . ," Zaro believes.

not present, two dramatic events are related to his family in Europe. July 4, 1889, uncle Steve was visiting the Zaro home after he had been in America. It was the Fourth, so his uncle flew an American flag from the top of the family house. The problem was that he failed, purposely or otherwise, to put up an Austrian flag beside it. (At that time the Austrian government governed Serbia.)

"Gendarmes surrounded our house and my uncle was told to leave the country within 36 hours. He did not want to go because my grandmother was old and the family believed she would go anytime."

As it turned out the Austrian government and Steve Zaro battled in the courts in Vienna for two months. Steve lost his case and had to return to America.

"Ironically," recalled George Zaro, "my grandmother not only did not pass away soon, but she lived for more than 20 more years!"

The other drama unfolded in the 1940s. George had a cousin shot down by agents of the then newly established Communist Party. He was Father Chrrgin. He died in the dust in front of his own parish in Mirce, Yugoslavia. The holes of stray bullets are in the door of the village parish to this day. Father Chrrgin had spoken out against the Communist form of government.

ZARO SAYS his mother, Mrs. Marjeta Zaro, now living in San Jose, expresses the family attitude toward the totalitarian tactics of a communist regime. "You see, Tito took all the property: Orchards, vineyards, olive groves. My mother, when his name is mentioned, goes into a rage and says she would wring his neck like a chicken."

Mrs. Marjeta Zaro will be 91 this month. She has borne and reared 15 children. Five sons and five daughters are still living. Residing in San Jose are Mrs. Rita Visch, 67; Mark Zaro, 65; Mrs. Milena Jurras, 64; Mrs. Vojsava Slavich, 61; Nick Zaro, 57; Stephen Zaro, 52, and Mrs. Mary Goulart, 48. And living in Berkeley is Mrs. Zorka Scarich, 58.

George's father came to American and settled in San Jose a year after George. He died in 1934.

"When people used to ask him if he was going to take a holiday and go back to Dalmatia, he would tell them that he could see all the beauty the world had to offer right along the coast of California," said his son.

It was about 1910 that young George Zaro began to get restless. After feeling he was learning all he could learn about a certain phase of restauranting, he begin to wander to other establishments and then back again. His cafe circuit from about 1910 until 1942 included the Grand cafe in Reno, Nev., and in San Francisco the Black Cat cafe, Alturas nightclub, the Dante cafe and the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins hotels.

One evening that first year, 18-year-old Zaro was carving a steaming duck in Dante cafe. "The famous maitre d' of the Fairmont Hotel, Boserini, was visiting the Dante and and after watching me carve, came over and asked if I would come over to the Fairmont. He said he wanted to have some fun with the old timers (waiters)."

ZARO WENT. He said his first assignment was to carve two pheasant in front of a party of six. He said the regular waiters watched anxiously and were mystified at his dexterity for being so young.

George Zaro stayed at the Fairmont for several months and then left to return to San Jose, then to Reno again, and then back to San Jose.

"I would get bored with one place. And I wanted to learn new things in new and different places," explains Zaro.

He was in San Jose when World War I broke, and he was one of thousands of Californians who enlisted in the "Fighting Grizzlys" field artillery division (40th) to fill its quota within 24 hours after volunteers were sought.

Zaro suffered injury to both his foot tendons and arches during the first days of Army drilling.

"We slept on the floor of the barracks and drilled in our own shoes. Both of my arches were broken."

Zaro was given a medical discharge and returned to work in Reno, but felt that he was obligated to serve in the armed forces and wrangled his way back into uniform to become an interpreter. And for the remainder of his military career he was stationed at the San Francisco Presidio.

AFTER THE war Zaro attended Hills Business College in San Jose from where he was graduated. He then went to work as assistant auditor for the city of San Jose and attended night school in San Francisco.

"I commuted to San Francisco three and four nights a week so I could pass a CPA (certified public accountant) exam. We had six to eight hours of homework a day and after four years I began to see figures in my sleep.

The effort was too much for Zaro's body and he was hospitalized for three months following a recurrence of his foot trouble. After 13 months in foot and leg braces, he was well enough to go back to his restaurant circuit which this time began in Reno and ended in San Jose in 1937.

Four years earlier Zaro had married his San Jose sweetheart, Theresa, whom he had been going with since 1915. She died April 9, 1951.

"She was a hard worker and loved by all she knew. She had a heart bigger than a lion," says Zaro in tribute. Just before her death, she and Zaro resided in a beautiful home at Rio Del Mar near Santa Cruz. He had built it especially for her. Zaro still keeps the home and opens it to his friends to use for a weekend, or vacations.

AFTER HIS wife's death Zaro was a sad and lonely man and lived under this shadow for almost a decade. Then in 1959 he met Mary George of San Francisco. Now Mrs. Mary Zaro, she and her husband live in a large, modern and pleasant apartment at 35 Corte Lenosa, in Greenbrae. Mrs. Mary Zaro is a friendly woman and has had to put sheets over the living room rug because all the neighbor youngsters come in and out, knowing she will keep them stocked in goodies.

"Eventually I became his trusted employee and did any job he wanted at the Hopkins or the Fairmont."

THE country is electrified with the late news of the fall of Richmond and the surrender of Lee ,with his whole army. For four long years the swelling heart of the nation has pulsated faint or deep as alternate tantalizing hopes or fears would seize upon it—as victory or defeat attended our heroic, but at length, victorious army. The great question raised, the root and cause of the mighty conflict, as to the right of the stronger to doom the weaker race of humanity to perpetual slavery, is now and forever settled. Right is triumphant in this great American struggle, as in every other instance in the history of the world, it has been, where the sword has been invoked in the cause of oppression. This triumph of the swelling tide of freedom, is not alone for the shores of America. Already the haughty aristocracy and kings of Europe begin to feel the waves of progression and freedom invading their seats and questioning their birth-right to rule. In vain they may cry out to the billows, "Thus far shalt thou come but no farther." The mighty blows here inflicted against the presumptuous approaching trend of tyrants, like impinging blows no matter, will be felt as far as the sound shall reach the ears of desponding and oppressed humanity. All hail, morning of peace! hasten the mid-day cloudless sky when thy genial sun-rays shall have dried up the blood-bedewed battle-fields and assuaged the grieving hearts of orphanage, and the loneliness of desolated and ruined households.

THE YEAR'S EMIGRATION.—Advices from the east, says the Salt Lake Telegraphic foreshadow an unusually large emigration to the territories this coming spring. Many large companies already organized, are composed wholly of discharged soldiers and their families, who, after the turmoil and excitement of war, are coming to seek a home in the more peaceful West. The war has made our people more enterprising, if possible, than ever before. Men who left the plow, the anvil, the workshop and the counter, and rushed to the defense of their country in her hour of peril, have caught the restless spirit of the age, and can no longer be satisfied with their former theater of action. Besides, the rough life of the camp and the unavoidable exposure incident to an active campaign in the field, has peculiarly fitted them for pioneers of civilization in these western wilds.

The discipline of the army has neither injured, nor its influence demoralized them.—By meeting danger face to face—and fighting it out—they have gained manliness and courage, and, thanks to the philanthropy and christianity of our nation, no man has, per force, become worse, morally and intellectually, by his service in the army.

A PIECE OF IMPUDENCE.—A letter has just been received at the Navy Department from Sir Wm. Armstrong, the English inventor of the Armstrong guns, in which he urges our government to imitate the example of France and Russia, by manufacturing his guns. To this piece of scientific impertinence Captain Wise of the Ordinance Bureau, has written a caustic reply, in which he tells Sir William that the Armstrong guns captured at Fort Fisher, afford us the means of testing their supposed efficiency. Upon these guns was found an inscription setting forth that they were a present by Sir William Armstrong to Jeff. Davis.

STRANGE OCCURRENCE.—A most singular and strange occurrence took place at the restaurant of Thomas Guineau on Friday last. A soldier sitting at the table waiting for his dinner, was seized with a violent cramping pains in his stomach. So severe were his torture that he fell from his chair to the floor. Soon after his fall a singular reptile crawled out of his mouth. This reptile or snake is about seven inches in length; of a dingy white color, and has a black stripe running through the length of the center of its body. There is no head to the snake perceptible, each end appearing like the ends of those vermicular objects which occasionally trouble children, especially in the eastern States.—The body of the reptile, which is preserved in spirits, is in diameter about the size of one of Faber's pencils, but is somewhat flattened especially near the extremities. After the snake had left the man's stomach his internal tortures appeared to increase with great severity, so much so that he prayed for immediate death. It is understood that he is still sick in the military hospital. Previous to this occurrence the man had experienced general ill health.—Bee.

RAILROADS IN CALIFORNIA.—The railroad enterprises of the State are being pushed forward with energy. The Central Pacific road has some eighteen hundred men employed; the Placerville road has a large number at work, and is calling for more; the Western Pacific road is employing a large force, and pushing its work forward as fast as possible; and work on the Napa road, though that enterprise is of less magnitude than any of the foregoing, is being prosecuted with praiseworthy energy. All of these works are of vital interest to this State, and it is a matter of public rejoicing that they are thus being pushed forward with spirit, energy and enterprise.—Sacramento Bee.

GRANT'S PURSUIT OF LEE.

Washington, April 8.—To Major General Dix: A telegram received from General Grant, dated noon to-day, at Farmville, sixteen miles west of Burke's Station, says the enemy have been pushed from the road toward Danville, are now being pursued towards Lynchburg, and that he is very confident of receiving the surrender of Lee and what remains of his army.

[Signed] STANTON.

[OFFICIAL.]

Washington, April 8.—To Major General Dix: This Department has an official report of the surrender this day, of General Lee and his army to Lieutenant General Grant, on the terms proposed by General Grant.—Details will be given as speedily as possible.

[Signed] E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

New York, April 8.—A meeting of prominent citizens held at the Custom-house to-day, adopted an address to President Lincoln, requesting that a day may be designated when the people may assemble to offer thanks and praise for the brilliant successes which under Divine Providence, have been secured by the persistent energy, sagacity and fidelity of the Government, and by the skill, intrepidity and self sacrificing devotion of the Army and Navy.

THE EVACUATION OF RICHMOND.

Washington, April 7.—Richmond letters say that previous to the surrender of the city the Mayor ordered all the liquor destroyed, and as a consequence the rebel rear guard became entirely ungovernable, and a terrible scene of pillage and ruin ensued. Stores were plundered, and the whole city was in a tumult with their riotous proceedings.—Great damage was also done by the explosion of one of the rebel magazines. Among the victims of the explosion were all the victims of the almshouse close by. The flaming dome by the fire is enormous. Those portions of the city bounded by Main street and the river, and Seventh, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets are destroyed. It is estimated that eight hundred buildings were burned. The flames were finally arrested by blowing up the Negro Trader's Bank building by order of General Shirley. The colored troops were treated by the negro inhabitants in the most extravagant manner.

The Richmond Whig was issued on Tuesday by the former editor, he having given pledges of a hearty support to the Union cause.

The work of removing the obstructions from the James river is progressing rapidly. It is believed that some of our smaller vessels will be able to go to Richmond this week.

The prisoners who have arrived at City Point number 11,000.

Washington, April 6.—The following is a continuation of General Meade's report:

The Sixth Corps came up with the enemy about four, P. M., and in conjunction with the the Second on the right, and cavalry on the left, attacked and routed the enemy and captured many prisoners, among them Generals Ewell, Curtis and Lee. Transmit dispatches from Humphrey and Wright, which in justice to these distinguished officers and the gallant corps they command I beg may be sent to the Department for publicity. It is impossible at this moment to give any estimate of the casualties on the other side or of the number of prisoners taken. It is evident that to-day's work is going to be one of the most important of the recent brilliant operations. The pursuit will be continued as soon as the troops have had some rest. General Griffin of the Fifth Corps will be moved by the left, and General Wright and General Humphrey continue the direct pursuit as long as it promises success.

(Signed) MEADE.

[Signed] WRIGHT.

The Tribune's Richmond correspondent says that when Davis received Lee's dispatches in church, he rose much agitated, and left the church, all eyes being centered upon him. When the services were concluded the minister was handed a note, and he, too, hastened off as speedily as possible. There are seven distinct lines of fortifications surrounding Richmond, protected by a new style of a most formidable chevaux de frize. They consist of sharp hewn sticks, projecting like spokes from a hub, so close that they cannot be crawled through. Among the first to seek an interview with the President was Judge Campbell. He was with him half an hour, and again longer the next day. On the part of the citizens there is a general disposition to acquiesce in a desire to return to the Union.

The Whig gives additional particulars of the evacuation, which has been going on for months, but the people were blinded and refused to believe that the removal meant an evacuation, as all declared that the measures were only precautionary. On Sunday morning the gold and silver coin belonging to the Louisiana banks, and recently appropriated by the Confederate Congress, was sent down to the Danville train, and also the specie of the Richmond banks. The programme for the departure of officials was arranged and a number of officers were to leave during the evening. Still there was not room for all who thought it desirable to get away.—Jeff. Davis left at 7 P. M. Breckinridge went on horseback with the last of the army on Monday.

Correspondence Between Gen. Grant and Lee.

Clifton House, Va., April 8.—Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War: The following correspondence has taken place between General Lee and myself. There has been no relaxation in the pursuit during it's pendency.

U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

April 7.—General R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—General:—The result of last week must convince you of the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the Army of Northern Virginia, in the struggle. I feel that it is so, and regard it as my duty to shift from myself the responsibility of any further effusion of blood, and therefore, before considering your proposition, ask the terms you will offer on condition of its surrender.

R. E. LEE, General.

April 8.—Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—General:—Your note of last evening, in reply, I would say, that peace being my first desire there is but one condition I insist upon, viz: The men surrendered shall be disqualified from taking up arms against the United States until properly exchanged. I will meet you or designate officers to meet any officers you may name for the same purpose, at any point agreeable to you, for the purpose of arranging definitely the terms upon which a surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia will be received.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

April 8.—General:—I received at a late hour your note of to-day in answer to mine of yesterday. I did not intend to propose the surrender of the army of Northern Virginia, but to ask the terms of your proposition. To be frank with you, I do not think the emergency has arisen to call for the surrender of the army, but as the restoration of peace should be the sole object of all, I desire to know if your proposals would tend to that end. I cannot, therefore, meet you with a view to the surrender of Northern Virginia, but as far as your proposition may affect the Confederate States forces under my command, and tend to the restoration of peace, I should be glad to meet you at 10 A. M. to-morrow, on the old stage road to Richmond, between the picket lines of the two armies.

Very respectfully, etc.,

April 9.—General R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—Your note of yesterday is received. As I have no authority to treat on the subject of peace, the meeting proposed for 10 A. M. to-day, could lead to no good. I will state, however, General, that I am equally anxious for peace with yourself, and the whole north entertain the same feeling. The terms upon which peace can be obtained will be entertained by the South. Laying down their arms they will hasten that most desirable end, save thousands of human lives, and hundreds of millions of property not yet destroyed. Sincerely hoping that all our difficulties may be settled without the loss of another man, I subscribe myself.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General.

Appomattox Court House, April 9.—Gen. R. E. Lee, Commanding C. S. A.—In accordance with the substance of my letter to you of the 8th, I propose to receive the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on the following terms, to wit:

Rolls of all the officers and men to be made in duplicate, one copy to be given to an officer designated by me, the other to be retained by such officer or officers as you may designate. The officers to give their individual parole not to take up arms against the Government of the United States until properly exchanged, and each company or regiment commander to sign a like parole for the men of their commands. The arms, artillery and public property to be parked and stacked and turned over to the officer appointed by me to receive them. This will not embrace the side-arms of the officers nor their private horses nor baggage. This done each officer and man will be allowed to their homes, not to be disturbed by the United States authority so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside.

Very respectfully,

U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen.

Headquarters Army of Northern Virginia, April 9.—General: In reply to C. S. Grant, Commanding U. S. Armies—General:—I have just received your letter of this date, containing the terms of surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, as proposed by you. As they are substantially the same as expressed in your letter of the 8th instant, they are accepted. I will proceed to designate the proper officers to carry the stipulations into effect.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

New York, April 8.—The Herald's Mobile Bay correspondent of the 31st, says it appears that General Granger's and General Smith's Corps marched from Danby's mills on the 25th, for Blakely, meeting with slight opposition only on the first day. On the 26th, the Fifteenth Corps arrived and moved toward the fort at Spanish Point, a strong earthwork, encountering and driving in the rebel cavalry. In the evening Granger encamped on the left of that fort and the Sixteenth Corps continued on towards Blakely, encamping at Sibley's mills, five miles from Mobile, on the 26th. On the morning of the 27th our forces advanced on the fort at Spanish Point, driving in the rebels, capturing the rifle-pits, and establishing our batteries within 400 yards of the fort. On the 24th, our forces were entrenched within 70 yards of the fort. Several lives have been lost by the torpedoes strewn about. Our loss averages 150 per day. 300 of the enemy had been cut off by a portion of our force, but are not yet captured, owing to their having taken refuge in the swamps. Early on the morning of the 30th, the rebels made an attack, and were handsomely repulsed, with heavy loss. The rebel fleet of gunboats are on the right, within musket range of our troops, and the earthworks are being completed to mount siege guns. Our losses to the 31st are about eight hundred. Five of our monitors and the gunboat Octoroon have crossed Blakely bar, and the others were speedily arriving. On the 31st the siege guns and mortars were being placed in position, and a heavy cannonading was opened on the Spanish Point fort, which continued all day. The result is not known. Steele's column Pensacola on the 19th. He captured a train of cars at Greenwood. At Polard, Alabama, two rebel cavalry regiments were routed. Brigadier General Clawson, twenty-two officers, four hundred men and four hundred and fifty horses were captured. The Twenty-seventh Regiment, Col. Spalding with a detachment of the Seventh Maine and First Florida Cavalry, cut the Mobile and Montgomery Railroad, capturing two wagon trains and one hundred prisoners. General Steele an force have arrived at Blakely, six miles from Spanish Point, and would soon unite with General Canby.

A naval letter to the Herald states that the monitor Milwaukee was blown up by a torpedo on the 28th, on the Osage, while operating against the Spanish Point Fort. Four sailors were killed on the Osage and six seriously injured. Only one was injured on the Milwaukee. One of the turrets of the Milwaukee is still out of the water, is in working order and is used. They will probably be raised. The rebels are sending down torpedoes and fire-rafts. The force in the Spanish Point Fort is estimated at between six and seven thousand, it having been reinforced from Mobile by water on the night of the 29th. It is rumored that Forrest and his whole force had reached Blakely. The rebel ram Nashville and the gunboats Tuscaloosa, Morgan and Natchez are in Blakely river, evidently intending to give battle to our monitors in the west of the bay. Our gunboats have had several skirmishes with water batteries, driving the rebels from their guns. The rebel troops in the Spanish Point Fort are commanded by Manty.

Washington, April 10.—The Departments are all closed to-day, and everybody is keeping holiday. Secretary Stanton expresses the opinion that there will be no more heavy fighting. It is expected here that Johnston will surrender.

There is reason to believe that Jeff. Davis was at Danville on Saturday night, trying to join Johnston with the archives of the late rebel government and a large amount of specie.

Reliable information has been received from a gentleman who left Richmond yesterday, that General Shirley by order of the President, has given safe conduct to Senator Hunter to go and come from that city. He is supposed to be on his estate, in Essex county, fifty miles from Richmond. No prayers were offered in the churches yesterday for the President, and none for the confederacy. The citizens generally regard the war as over, and further resistance unwise.

WAR NEARS END—Reader's of the April 15, 1865 edition of the Marin County Journal read of Lee's surrender to General Ulysses S. Grant and the evacuation of Richmond. The Journal kept Marin readers abreast of the war's happenings and frequently published strongly worded pro-Union editorials. The war ended officially April 26, 1865.

You Can Still Ride A Train In Marin

By DICK STEINHEIMER

The high cost of hauling railroad passengers has caused creased brows throughout the industry, and regular rail passenger service to Marin County is a thing of the past.

True, the passengers must ride in freight cars and top speed is only something like 15 miles per hour, but the service is friendly.

Adams, of Scotch parentage, came to the United States from Great Britain in 1947. To him the railroad on his two acre property is the expression of love for mechanics and railroading maintained since his childhood in Birmingham, England.

The roster includes one mock steam engine constructed by Adams from junk, spare parts and castings poured from his own patterns at the Joseph Secco Iron Foundry in San Rafael. "Steam" for the engine is provided in the form of 24 volts of electricity from several hundred pounds of storage batteries in the tender of the engine. A 24-volt motor with a five position throttle and chain drive sends power to the drive wheels.

The "passenger" equipment consists of a number of flat and gondola cars, all constructed from Adams' own design and patterns. The only assembled parts purchased for the cars were the automatic couplers.

The passengers usually sit two to a car on benches or boards set athwart the sides of the cars.

Perhaps because of being a professional railroader as well as an amateur one, Adams has seen to it that his pike is complete even to having an automatic block signal system and "spring switches." The spring track switches allow his trains to move around the reversing loops at each end of track without the necessity of stopping before re-entering the main track.

To top it off, he proposes to begin construction soon on a wig-wag crossing signal where his driveway crosses the tracks.

What about the managing of the crowds of kids and eager parents?

Adams has informally established that the kids are invited to see the railroad when the front gate is open to the Adams' drive.

When the gate is closed operation is "private."

How about discipline?

"If the kids get too rambunctous, which is seldom, why I just tell them to go home. And you only have to tell them once," Adams said.

WHILE THE present engine is electric, plans are already well under way for operation of the line someday with steam power.

In the Adams garage rests the frame and drive wheels of a future live steam engine which Adams painstakingly plans to manufacture and assemble.

On the sawhorse alongside the steamer is the underframe of a future gasoline driven locomotive to be constructed with Adams help by one of his young admirers, Sellar Nugent, 13, of Ross.

Sellar, a youngster knowledgeable about railroads and steam engines, plans to power the locomotive with a small Briggs and Stratton engine, using chain and belt drive.

Suburbs Commute Began In '60s

Quentin Ferries Coaches Ran On Daily Basis

In the 1860s, Marin's climate began attracting wealthy San Franciscans to the North Bay shore. The commute to the suburbs had begun.

The steam navigation pioneer had arrived in the San Francisco Bay in 1849 when he was 34. It was in this year East coast steamers started plying around the horn to take over the packet service of the San Francisco Bay waters.

During 1865 a toll road was built across the marshes from San Rafael to the ferry wharf eliminating the uncomfortable jog across the San Rafael ridge; the same year ferry fares were reduced from $2 to $1. A monthly commute book sold for $15.00. The Stage Co. also reduced its fare from $1 to 50 cents.

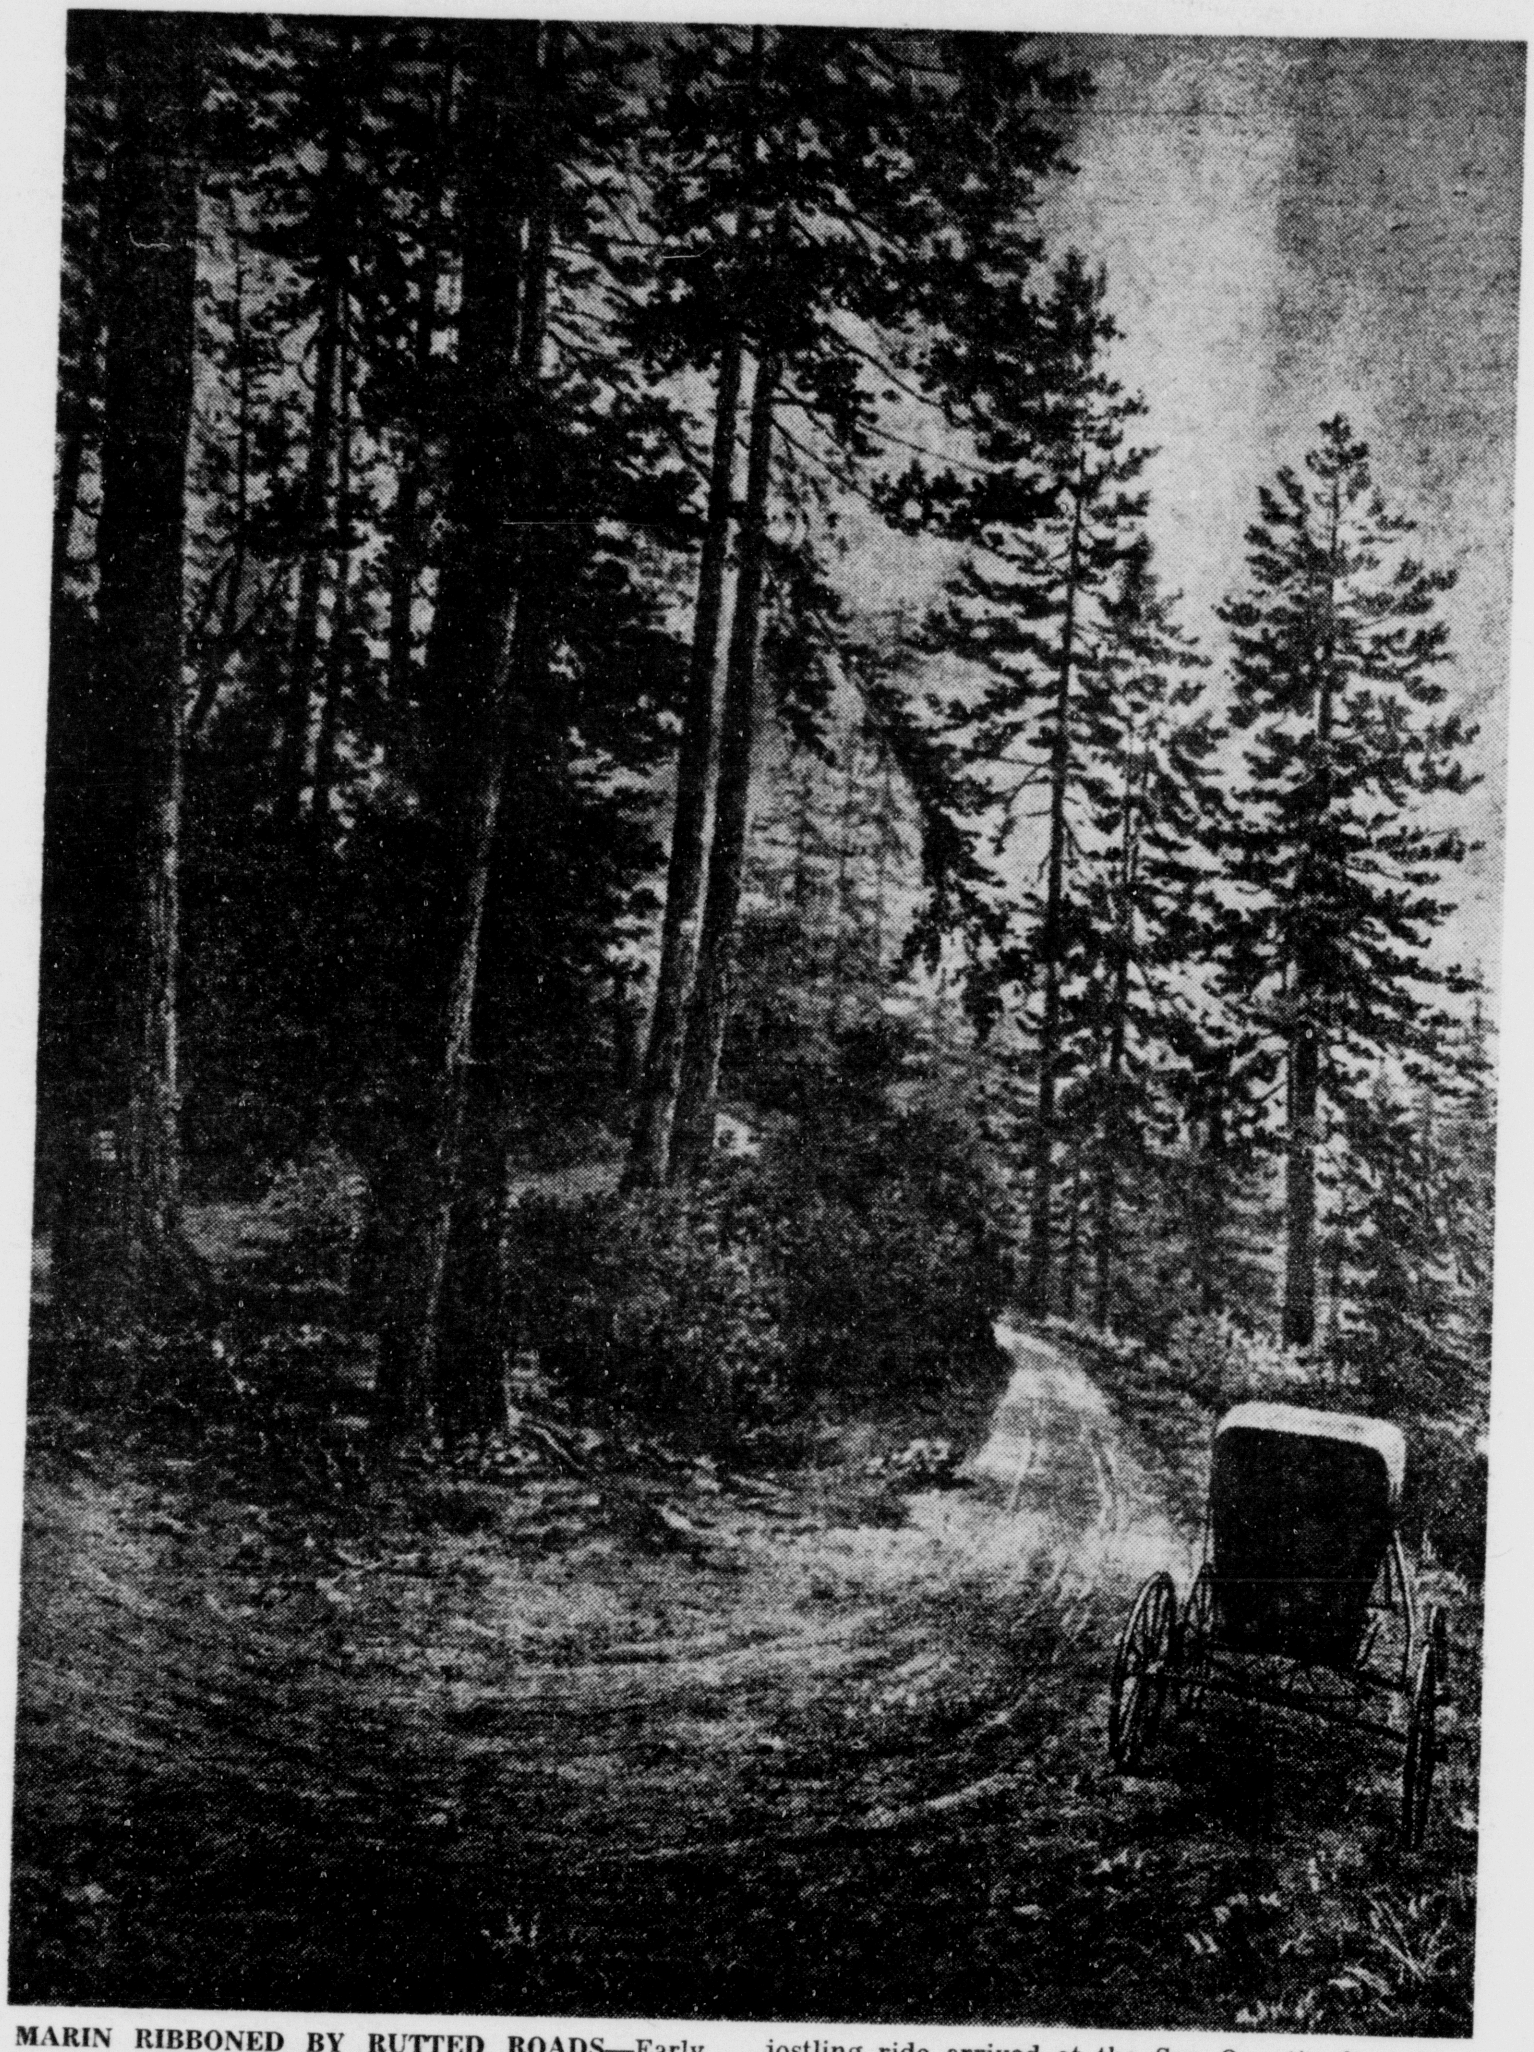
If a harried passenger missed the Minturn ferry he had a chance to catch Peter Smith's sloop that sailed from Ross' Landing every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

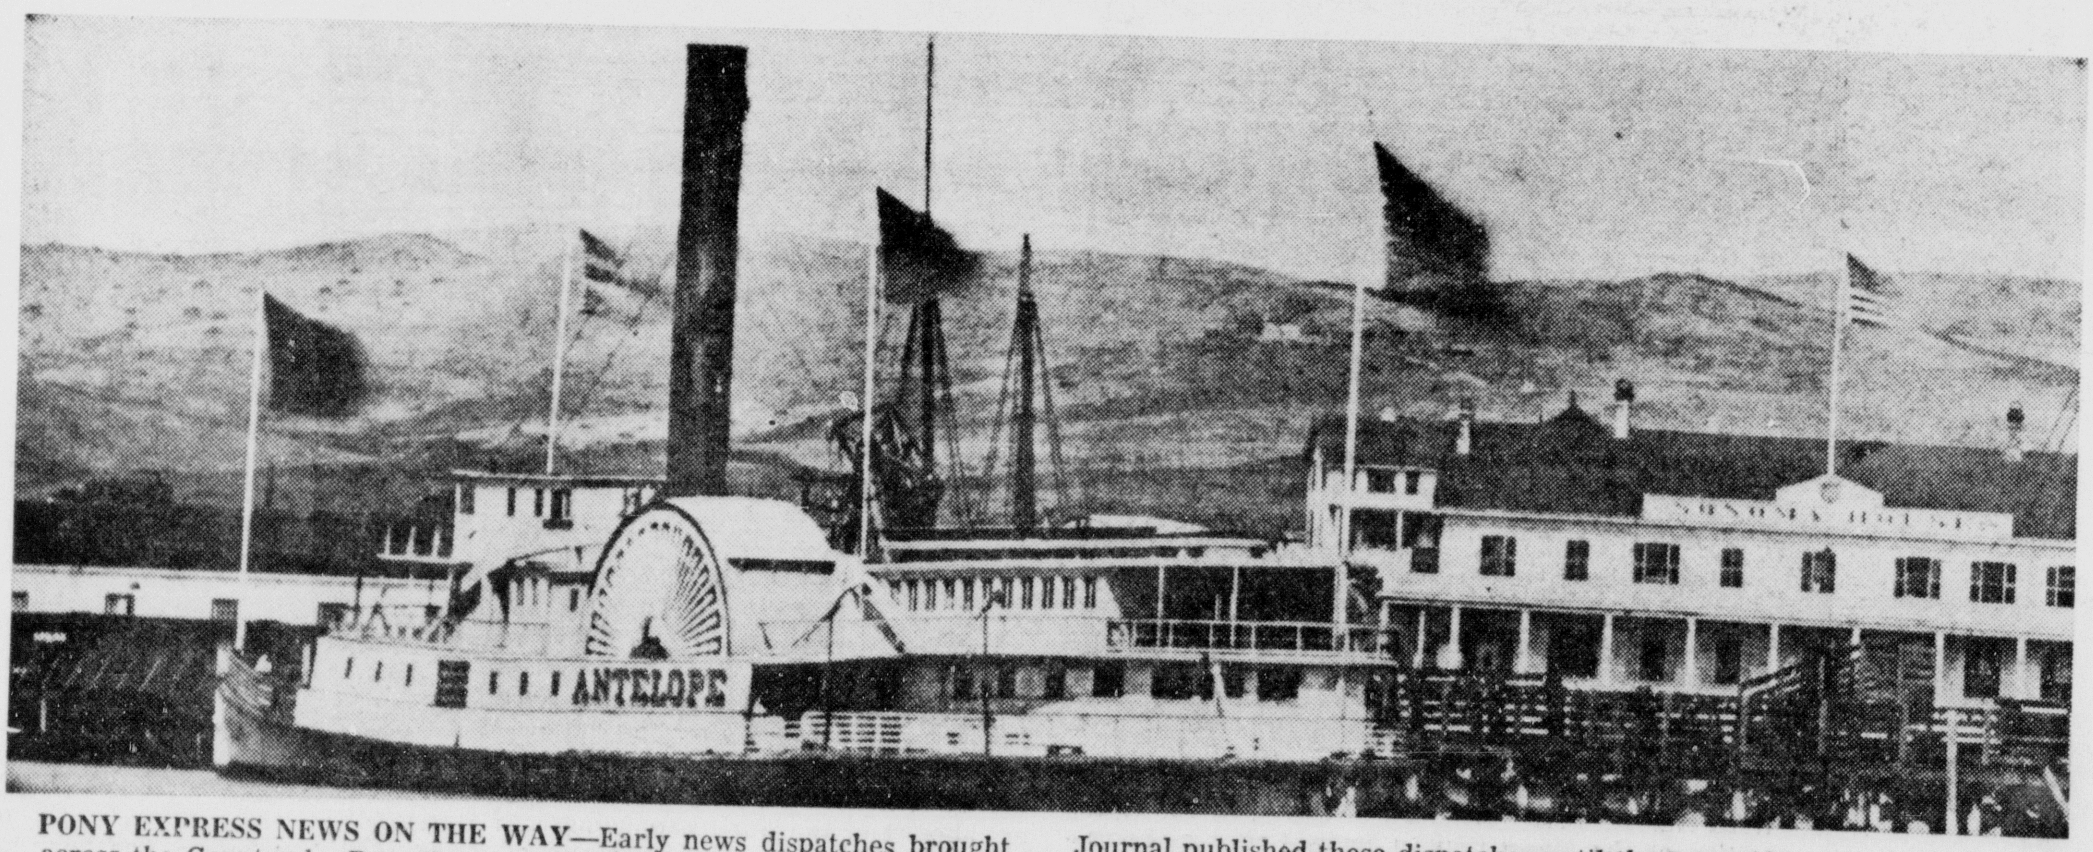
TRAVELERS HEADED toward the western coast could buy a seat on the Nelson and Henderson stage that left San Rafael every Wednesday and Saturday at 8 a.m. The western route was a long trek over White's Hill and the passengers had to make sleeping arrangements for the two day trip. Luckily for the early-day traveler Marin ranchers were known for their hospitality.

Two men by the name of Morse and Bassett ran a stage between San Rafael and Tomales by way of Novato, Petaluma and the Two Rock Valley.

Crude wagon wheels carved out dusty, rutted roads leading like arteries to the heart of the County Seat. Marin began to wed into one community.



MARIN RIBBONED BY RUTTED ROADS—Early Marin roads made coach travel dusty, slow and uncomfortable. Commuters caught a stage in San Rafael early every morning and after almost an hour's jostling ride arrived at the San Quentin ferryslip where they caught a San Francisco bound boat. This is Bolinas Road in San Rafael and coach is typical of private transportation during this period. (First published in Marin County Journal, 1889.)



PONY EXPRESS NEWS ON THE WAY—Early news dispatches brought across the Country by Pony Express riders were transported to the Bay Area from Sacramento by the steamer, Antelope. The Marin County Journal published these dispatches until the Pony Express was abolished. In 1863 the Journal began publishing news sent into Marin over the wire by the State Telegraphic Co. (Courtesy of Roy D. Graves)

Adams was born in Birmingham of Scottish parents and there was raised among the industry of England's second city.

He attended the University of Birmingham and then hired out as student mechanical engineer for the London Midland and Scottish Railway and then for the London Subway System.

In World War II he became a locomotive engineer in a Railroad Operating Division in France. After the fall of France he was engaged in secret work, ending the war in the merchant navy.

THE WAR interrupted his plans to come to the United States so he worked for the subway system until 1947 when he arrived in the U.S.

EARLY PRISON—The prisoners wore striped suits and were whipped and often half starved in the early days of San Quentin prison. Above is an artist's sketch of the great prison fire of 1872 that destroyed part of the prison. The sketch was printed in newspapers across the nation. (Marin County Historical Society)

State's First Prison Held Men, Women Inmates

On the morning of July 14, 1852, a slimy bottomed bark was towed across the clear waters of the Golden Gate to the jutting point three miles south of San Rafael called San Quentin.

The countryside was quiet, the hills etched humps under the sparkling summer sun, but when the small brig touched Marin's shore some of the county's serenity must have been shattered.

THE BARK WAS the home of 50 men and women prisoners of the State of California, aptly named "Hell Ship."

Benjamin R. Buckelew sold a portion of his Rancho Punta de Quentin to the State for $10,000 for the prison site. The prisoners were turned over to Gen. M. Estell who had contracted to guard, house, feed and shelter them for a 10 year period. He was to be paid for services rendered with the backbone grease of the prisoners.

It was San Quentin labor and San Quentin bricks that went into much of the building of early San Rafael.

The new prison rapidly began to swell beyond the 50-convict capacity for which the bark had been refitted. In that first year sheriffs from up and down the state had deposited an additional 100 convicts at San Quentin. (Sheriffs were then paid $1 a mile to deliver a man to the prison and subsequently beat a steady path to the boat's gangplank with every piece of human flesh they could lay their hands on.)

There was not enough water, sleeping quarters aboard the bark reeked of foul air causing illness and the spread of disease. What made it worse there was no hospital to treat the sick.

The guards used billy sticks, clubs and straps to discipline the prisoners. There was not enough food to go around, but the prisoners were allowed to have complete saloon facilities for a number of years.

When the legislature in Sacramento was told of the bar flourishing at the state prison, it replied: Why should these unfortunates deprived of their liberty also be deprived of the staff of life.

WHEN THE FIRST cell block was completed in 1853 conditions improved for a short time. Then trusty system was inaugurated to make up for the shortage of guards. Breaks increased as trustys shut their eyes as convicts "went over the hill."

The escaped convicts ruled as sylvan princes in the peaceful countryside. In the summer they camped by the babbling streams, fished for trout or salmon, snared deer and stole blankets, clothing and bacon and eggs from the terrified ranchers.

The prison changed hands several times and the state finally took over in 1860. Lt. Gov. I. N. Quinn was made ex-officio warden. Quinn was succeeded by T. N. Machin.

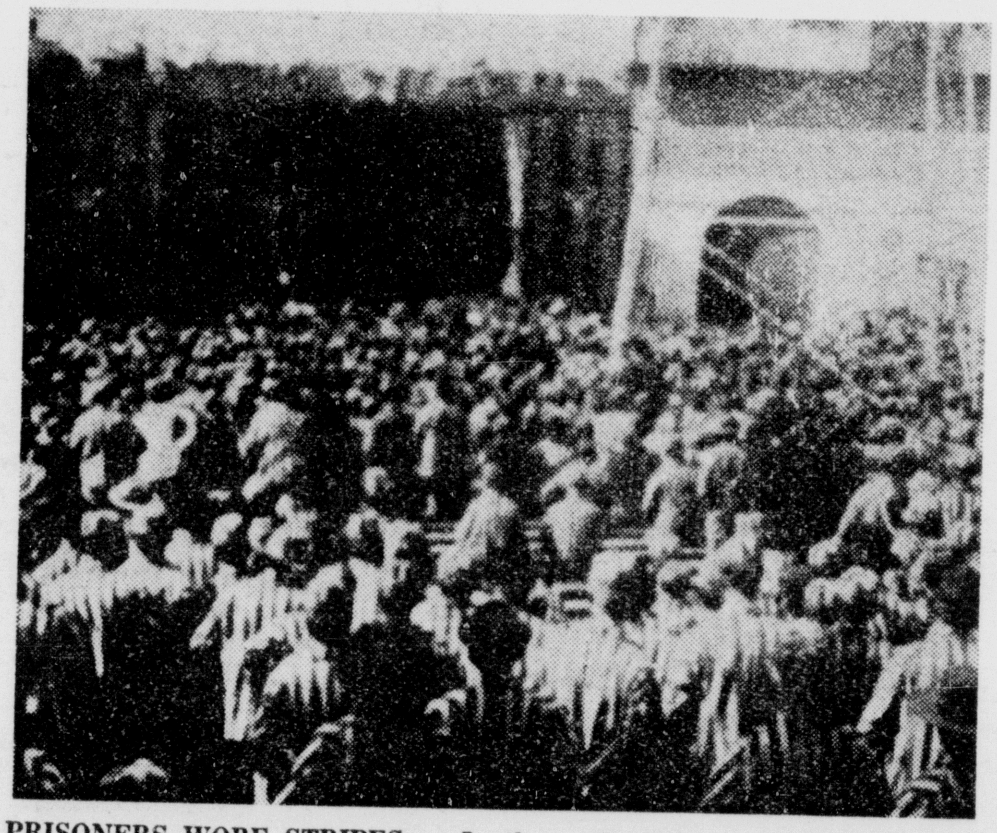
DURING THE administration of these two men the prisoners heads were shaved. They were dressed in rags, lashed with whips and given the water cure.

The prisoners revolted in April, 1864, seized Machin as hostage and forced their way out the main gate. They crossed the marshland to Ross' Landing where they came face to face with a platoon of farmers and loggers armed with rifles, clubs and pitchforks. The prisoners were defeated. A number were killed, and others ran for cover in the hills. Machin was saved and took charge of the punishment of the captured prisoners. He gave them severe treatment.

A messenger galloped into San Rafael and spread the word that the prisoners were about to invade the city. Residents clutching their possessions ran for protection of the courthouse or a store on Fourth Street.

PUBLIC OPINION turned completely against the prisoners. Forty years later with James H. Wilkins, a member of the State Board of Prisons, reform measures were introduced in the management of the prison. A parole law was enacted in 1893 and 12 years later an appropriation for building a new prison was passed.

When Clinton Duffy became warden of San Quentin in 1940 he permanently abolished the use of whips, straps and rubber hoses in the punishment of prisoners and later instituted a rehabilitation program.



PRISONERS WORE STRIPES — In the early days at San Quentin the inmates were dressed in stripes or red shirts so they would be better targets for guards to aim at in case of a break. The stripes alternated between vertical and horizontal. In 1894 San Quentin took over executions from the County sheriffs. The first man to be hanged at the prison was an Irishman, P. J. Sullivan who had slain his wife in San Francisco. (Marin County Historical Society) yard railroad was partially complete on the Fairfax two acres before house construction was even started.

He said they had fun on weekends coming to the site and working on the line and drinking lemonade in the shade of the oak trees on the lot.

TIES FOR the railroad came from scrap lumber and the small rails came from various parts of the state. Most were from small mining railroads.

Another attic project taking Adams skill as craftsman is the rebuilding of two live steam locomotives owned by Dr. L. L. Stanley of Fairfax. The locomotives were constructed in Marin county and have lain for a number of years, damaged by corrosion.

The most dramatic of the two locomotives is a breath of old-time England and of the era prior to Adams' birth. It is a scale steam model of a mighty "Stirling Eight-Foot Single," a type of fast express passenger engine built for the Great Northern Railway of England. It operated with a single 8-foot high drive wheel on each side of the engine. Fifty-three of the 4-2-2's were constructed and they hauled the majority of fast trains until the 1890's.

Examples, Appraisals Of Work By Voices Of Beat Generation

GARY SNYDER
Marin-based Beat

A CASEBOOK ON THE BEAT edited by Thomas Parkinson, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 326 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The appearance on the American scene of the Beat school of writing, with Jack Kerouac and Allen Ginsberg in the vanguard, was initially greeted with near hysterical adulation and wild prophecies as to the future role these young bohemians were to play in American literature.

Then the pendulum swung. And it became fashionable to belittle their contributions and to heap personal scorn upon them.

This book should help to bring about a fairer perspective.

It has been compiled by Thomas Parkinson, University of California English professor who has been personally closely associated with the Beat.

First section of the book is devoted to examples of some of the more impressive pieces of Beat writing. Ginsberg's "Howl" is accorded lead-off honors, followed by work of Kerouac, Gregory Corso, William S. Burroughs, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, former Marin resident Gary Snyder, Philip Whalen, Michael McClure and John Wieners.

The second half consists of criticism and commentary with a wide variance of viewpoint. Kenneth Rexroth, Norman Podhoretz, Henry Miller, Paul O'Neil, Herbert Gold, John Ciardi, Lawrence Lipton and editor Parkinson are some of those included. There is an openly-partisan pro-Beat faction as represented by Lipton, Miller and Carolyn Gaisser. There are the equally-partisan anti-Beats including Podhoretz and O'Neil. And there are the open-minded critical analyses by the likes of Rexroth and Parkinson.

Virtually all the material included in the book has been published before, but often in journals of small circulation. The selecting, collecting and assembling job by Parkinson provides engrossing, stimulating reading.

What occurred to this reader is that criticism of Beat writing for its lack of form, its absence of purpose, its scarcity of hope, is not without justification. But that those who point out such faults should also take note of the somewhat contradictory sense of excitement and integrity which Kerouac, Ginsberg, Corso, et al, can and often do create. Even in voicing doom and despair, the Beats frequently seem to engender more movement and stimulation than commercial literature of a milksop, pollyanna tinge. And our more memorable "commercial" writing frequently appear to bear some relationship to the philosophy and technique of the Beats.

In fairness, let it be noted that some of the critics do take cognizance of this. Ciardi says: ". . . And were it a simple choice between going Madison Avenue and going Beat, I should certainly insist that the Beat has all the merit on his side."

He takes due notice of the implausibilities, contradictions of Beat non-conformity, and finds it still preferable to and less tiresome than slick, regimented, idea-less conformity.

NEAR OLEMA—Woodside was built by Nelson Horatio Olds on a 3,890 acre ranch near Olema bought from Rafael Garcia in 1856. Olds who brought his family from New England around the Horn the same year paid Garcia $2 an acre and used the land for dairy ranching. In 1858 he paid a $121.55 tax bill to the county for his acreage. He built the barn pictured in the above lithograph in 1869 and the dairy house in 1863. It is still standing, and is the Boyd Stewart home. (Courtesy of Boyd Stewart)

Dairy Ranching Brought Butter To Marin —It Was The County's Own Kind Of Gold

In 1855, the Steele brothers arrived on the sandy flats of foggy Point Reyes. The earth was covered with wild strawberries, cut by steep ridges and sand dunes.

They rented acreage, stocked it it with 1,100 local longhorns and a few bulls they had brought from the East Coast.

The following year they started milking the cows, making cheese and churning butter. They shipped the cheese and butter to the San Francisco market by schooner out of the Bolinas harbor.

The land started to go fast. Roads were cut by the tread of wagon wheels leading from the ranchland to the harbor. The young city across the Bay was hungry for dairy products and the industry that would be Marin's resource for over a hundred years had been pioneered.

AFTER THE CIVIL WAR thousands of acres of wheat were planted at Tomales. Barges sailed into Old Town to pick up the grain shipments and bring them to the San Francisco market. Large crops of potatoes were planted by the Northern Irish immigrants who settled Tomales in the 1850's.

A young hand working on the Warren Dutton ranch in 1853 began experimenting with the tuber, improving the local crop. Many thousands of potatoes were shipped out of the small port of Ocean Roar.

Tomales was a booming city and the largest after San Rafael. In 1864 the town had a population of 300.

THE LAGOON THAT was used as a harbor in the 19th century was destroyed by the 1906 earthquake that leveled part of San Francisco and Bolinas.

Italian Swiss dairymen flocked to Point Reyes, Inverness and Olema in 1860. Large chunks of land had been bought by three prominent San Franciscans, James M. Shafter, his brother, Oscar Shafter and Oscar's son-in-law, Charles Webb Howard. The trio divided their land into 1,400-acre ranch sites, stocked each ranch with a dairy herd of 180 cows and rented the land out. Dairying was becoming a big business.

James Shafter put up a saw mill, cut redwood and built the ranch houses on his tenant farms. The land was cleared by Chinese labor and the top quality lumber from the western section was tied together and rafted across the Golden Gate to San Francisco.

James Shafter was a huge two-hundred pounder who sported a large black slouch hat and drove the best horses in California. He was a prominent San Francisco lawyer, a close friend of Leland Stanford.

Shafter maintained a mansion on San Francisco's Russian Hill besides his ranch near Inverness. At his ranch Shafter raised some of the finest blooded horses in California and maintained a private race track near the house.

SHAFTER'S SON, Payne, his wife and two daughters later lived at "The Oaks" near Olema, a ranch James had ordered built for his wife who died before she could occupy it.

Oscar Shafter was a supreme justice of California. His daughter, Emma, married Howard, another famous horse breeder of his day. The Shafters and Howard also raised beef cattle and had the cattle driven to the Petaluma Creek where they were loaded aboard the McNear's steamer, Gold, and sent on their way to San Francisco's Butcher Town.

The land was overrun with wild game. The Shafters leased thousands of acres of the Bear Ranch to members of San Francisco's Pacific Union Club. The members formed the exclusive Olema Country Club where visiting presidents, kings and dignataries were entertained until the club was wiped out in the financial crash of 1929.

WHILE RACING champions were being nurtured on the Marin grasses and noblemen were stalking quail and duck, the dairy industry was steadily mushrooming.

The Shafter and Howard tenant ranches were designated by letter, eg. "Y," "H" or "Z." Each tenant branded his butter with his letter using a small wooden disc. Schooners swung into Limantour and Drake's Bay to pick up the barrels of butter. Point Reyes butter was considered to be the highest premium butter in the country.

The tenants paid their landlords so much per cow instead of by the acre.

WAS SHERIFF—Nelson Olds came West the first time to fight in the Mexican War when he was 22 years old. He had been born at Painesville, Ohio. From the front window of his ranch home, Woodside, Olds watched Don Rafael Garcia ride by every day dressed in a velvet riding habit trimmed in silver. In 1862 Olds was appointed sheriff. What is FM? How does FM differ from AM? With the number of FM Broadcasting Stations in the Bay Area increasing at a rapid rate, the listener has as great a selection of FM stations as he has AM stations. We have passed the realm of two or three FM stations to choose from. There are now approximately twenty FM stations in our area.

AM Broadcasting is the conventional form of radio reception that we have been using for years. The main disadvantages to AM Broadcasting are that the frequency range (tonal range) transmitted is usually limited to 5000 cycles or vibrations per second, & that static interference can be received easily by AM radios.

FM is a completely different method of broadcasting or transmitting the signal. FM therefore requires a radio receiver with a different type of electronic circuit to receive these stations. The advantages of FM Broadcasting are that the complete musical range of tones are transmitted; that is, from 30 to 15,000 cycles or vibrations per second. Secondly, the FM receiver does not respond to static when a station is properly tuned-in. Thirdly, whereas with AM all music is broadcasted at one constant volume, FM music is broadcasted with all of the musical dynamics left in; in other words, you hear the loud passages loudly, and the soft passages softly just as you would if you were at the concert hall. Fourthly, most FM stations are dedicated to providing quality, good musical programming and practically no rock and roll.

To sum this all up, a good FM receiver or Tuner will provide you with full range, static free, high quality music complete with all of its dynamics. You will be provided with a wide choice of program material because many of the stations specialize in certain types of music such as jazz, the classics, etc.

Visit us soon, listen to the superb quality of FM, and uet us show you our large selection of FM compon-

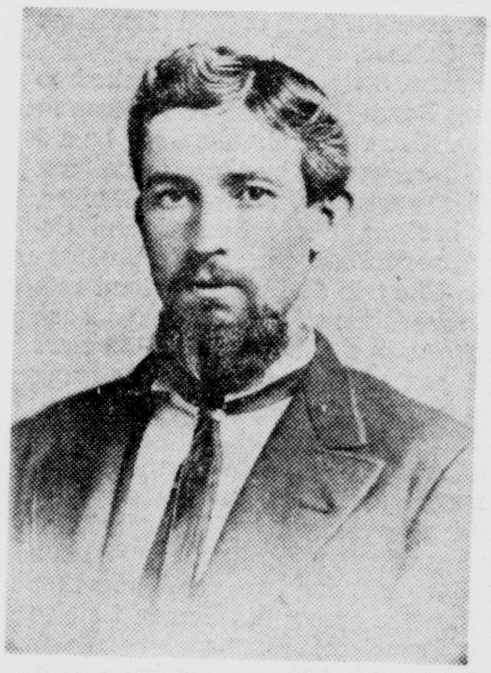
EARLY BOLINAS HOME—Briones Hacienda at Bolinas pictured as it looked near the close of the last century. Don Gregorio Briones, remembered as a just and considerate man, raised cattle for the hide and tallow trade on his Bolinas rancho. He ordered the first dance floor erected in western Marin in 1850 for the marriage fiesta of his daughter, Maria, who had ridden over the hills double with her fiance, Francisco Sebrean, to be married in the Mission at San Rafael. (Mrs. James Jenkins, Bolinas)

EARLY AMERICAN WIFE—Nelson Olds' wife, Lavinia Martin, was 25 when her husband brought her to Olema to live. She was a native New Yorker. When the Olds family arrived on their ranch site Christmas Eve, 1856, they found squatters were already living on their land. A $100 payment persuaded the brigands to look for new pastures. (Courtesy Boyd Stewart)



OLDS SON—Nels Olds was a small boy when his family moved to Olema. He fished for trout and salmon in a nearby creek and hiked through the raw, new land that was opening up under the hard working hands of men like his father who had come West to carve a new way of life. The family moved to Southern California in the 1870s but Nels Olds returned as a guest of the present owners of Woodside, the Boyd Stewarts. (Courtesy Boyd Stewart)

PIONEER DAIRYMAN — A. J. Pierce arrived on Point Reyes in 1859. Later he purchased the 2,200 acre ranch on the tip of Tomales Bay. He was respected as one of the finest dairymen in Marin. Pierce Point was named for him. In 1860, the county was already producing 932,427 pounds of butter and 533,000 pounds of cheese annually. (Marin County Library)

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔Begonia tubers started in flats may be transplanted when they have about three inches of top growth.

✔Feed Azaleas and Camellias when they've finished blooming. Use a special acid plant food and supplement it later with liquid fish.

✔Dahlias may be planted from now into May. Be sure to set the stake at the time you plant. It might injure the tuber if driven in later.

✔Give old lawns a booster shot of fertilizer. Start a new lawn this month or next . . . the sooner the better.

Tea Trees Thrive In Tough Going

Gardeners who like to plant their shrubs and leave them alone will get a lot of mileage from the many tea trees offered in local nurseries. Nurserymen tell us that tea trees are ready to serve you in a wide range of rough places.

Take the toughest situation any shrub could face—along a weather battered stretch of seashore. Far from succumbing to such conditions, the tea trees seem to thrive on them. Or try them on a sunbaked hillside that seldom sees water and they will thrive again. In fact, if you want to be truthful about it, tea trees are more apt to suffer from too much attention than from too little.

If you infer from this that tea trees are best not used in friendly garden settings, you're wrong. Their narrow, decorative foliage and free-flowering habit dictates that they should be used close in as well as in out-of-the-way garden spots. Just be sure that they have good drainage since they won't tolerate sodden conditions from over-watering.

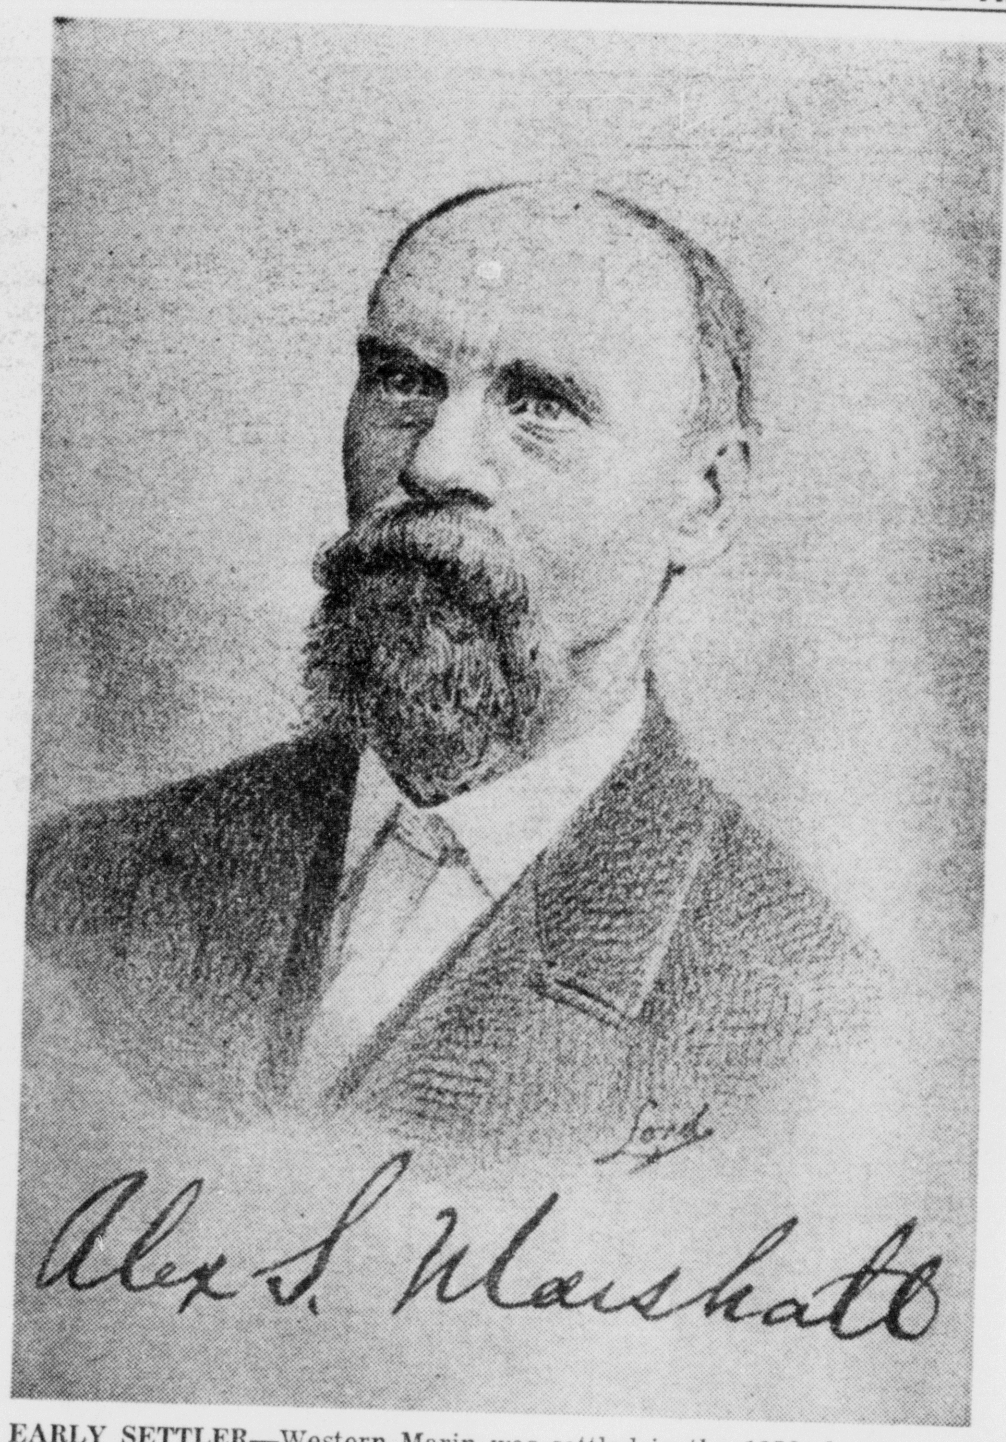
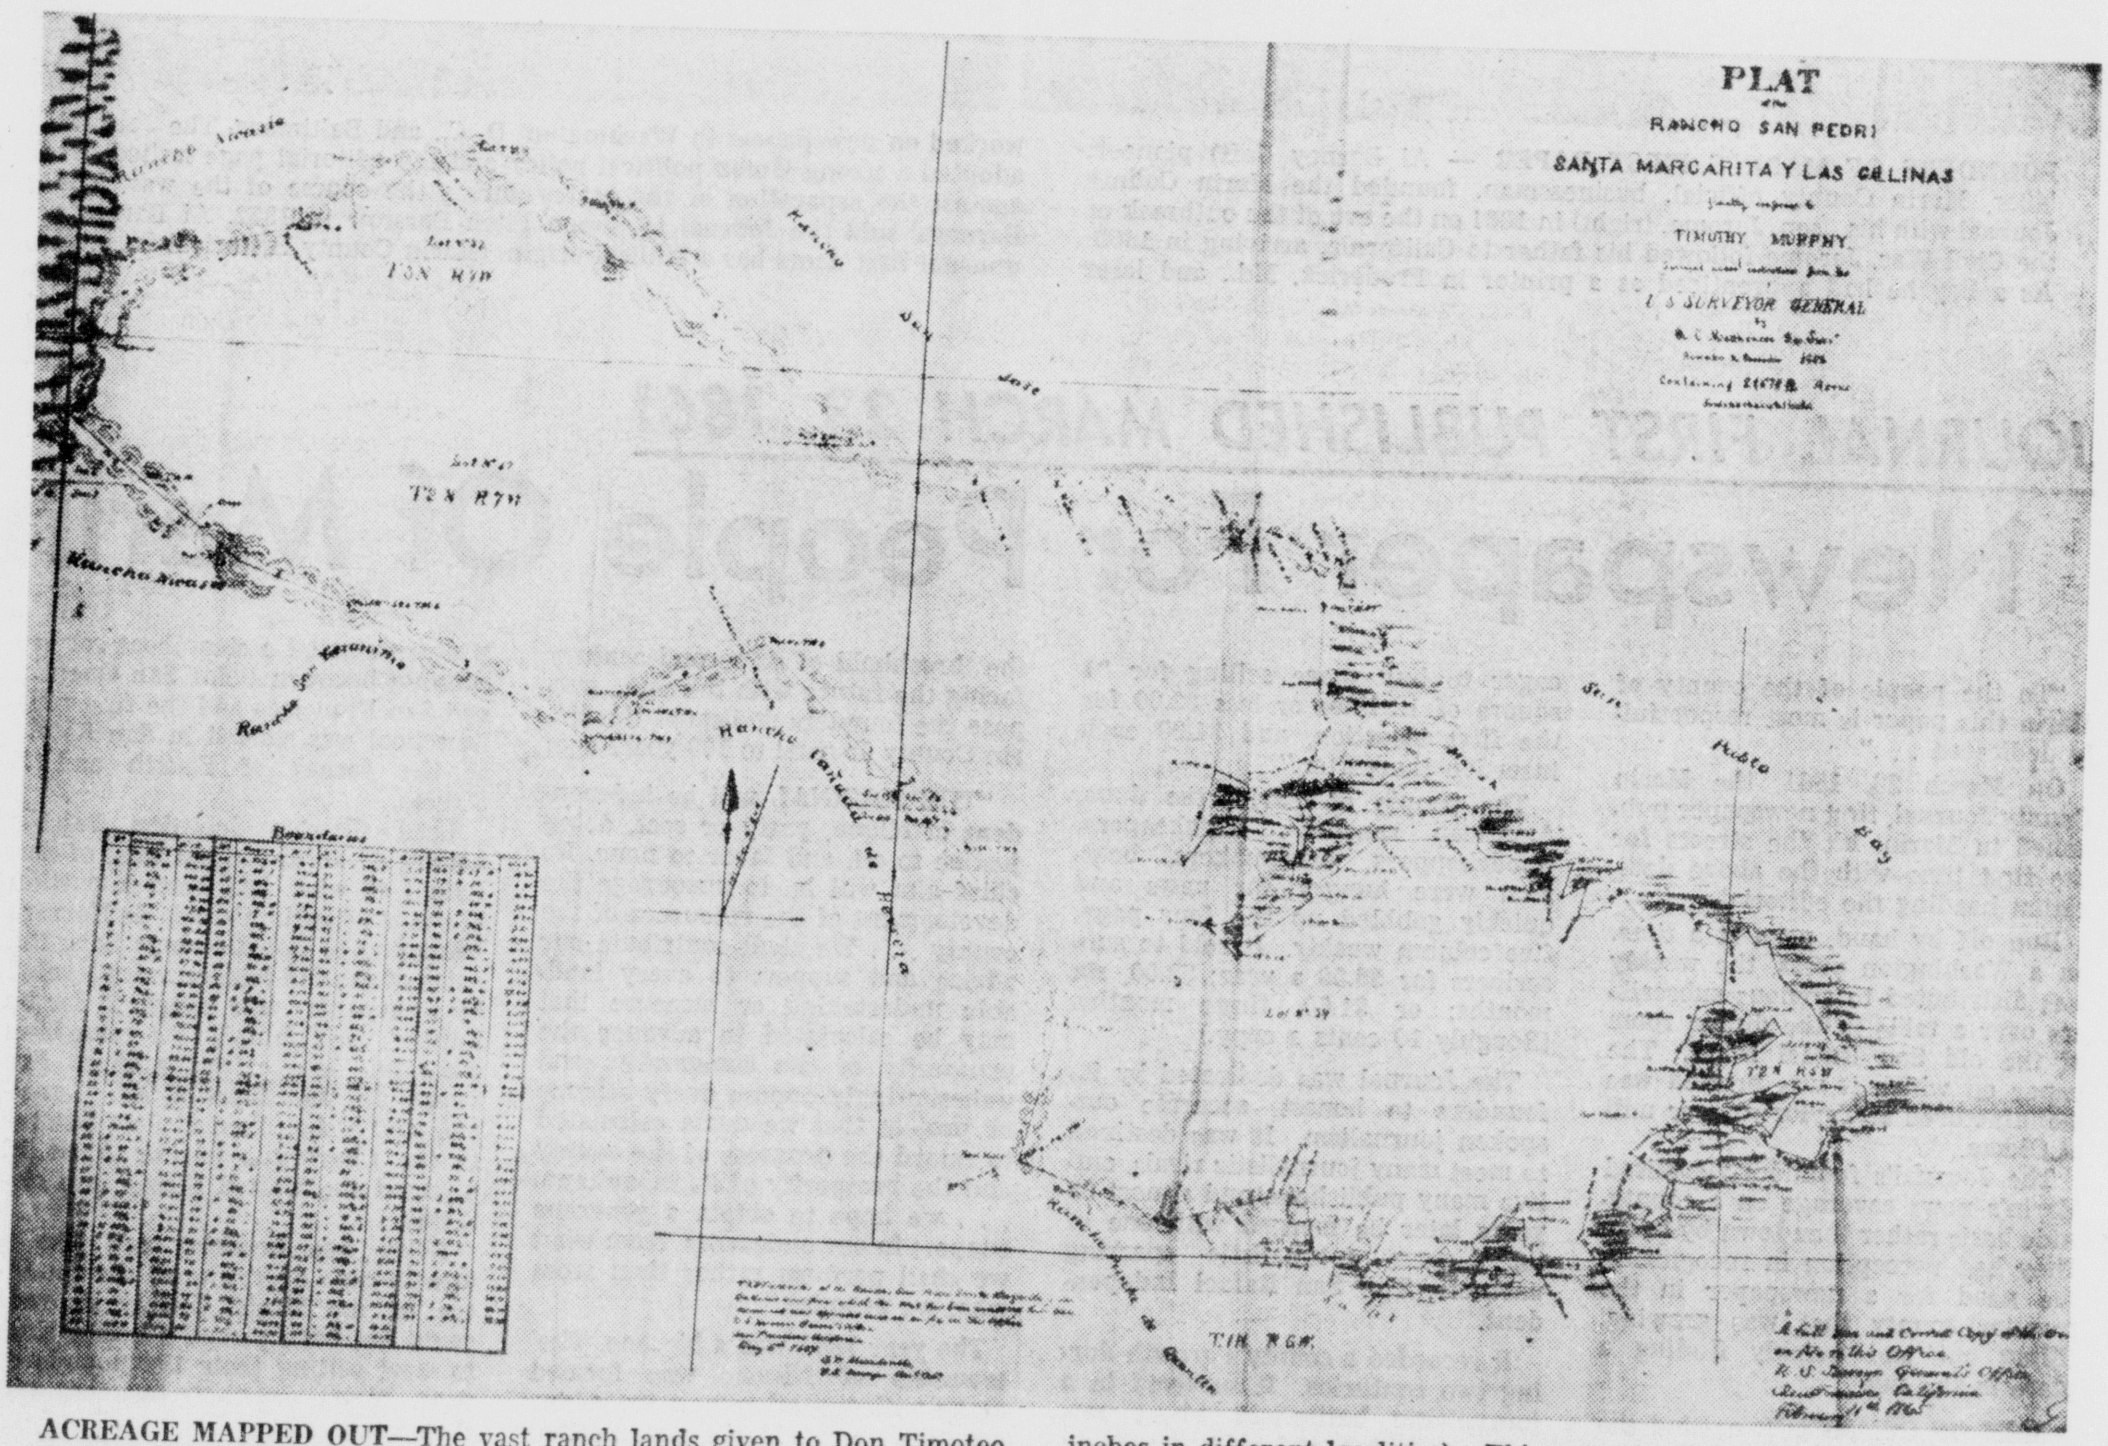
NAME GIVEN TO MARIN TOWN—Lady Charles Snowden Fairfax moved to her "Birds Nest Glen" homesite with her husband, Lord Fairfax, in the 1860s. Her husband was prominent in California political circles. After coming to California in 1849, he was clerk of the State supreme court from 1854 to 1859, and chairman of the State delegation to the Democratic convention in 1868. He was also assemblyman from Yuba and Sierra counties from 1857 to 1866. Lady Fairfax was the niece of Senator John Calhoun. The Fairfax home later became Pastori's restaurant and the site of the Marin Town and Country Club. (Courtesy of Mrs. Tony Sechitano)



EARLY SETTLER—Western Marin was settled in the 1850s by a group of Northern Irishmen who planted crops and turned it into a potato and wheat producing area. Alex Marshall with his brother settled on a large ranch south of Tomales. Later a town grew on a portion of the site and took its name from the two Irish brothers. (Marin County Library)



ACREAGE MAPPED OUT—The vast ranch lands given to Don Timoteo Murphy by the Mexican government were measured by chains and blocked off in the Spanish measurement of varas (varying from 32 inches to 43 inches in different localities). This map shows a portion of the acreage that was patented to Murphy's heirs by the United States government and includes San Pedro Point, Marinwood, Terra Linda and portions of San Rafael.

know people, and saved money. On July 2, 1942, through a waiter friend who jointly owned the White Spot nightclub at the San Quentin Y in Marin, Zaro was able to buy the club. The owners had to sell and they let it go cheap. Three years after he bought the club, Zaro lost it. July 4, 1945, at 4:30 a.m., Zaro was awakened by the sound of popping and crackling drifting from the club proper into the Zaro living quarters. Zaro knew it was a fire. His wife awoke and became hysterical.

"I had to knock her cold—it was the only time I ever hit her—and drag her from the bedroom," said Zaro.

The club was burned to the ground in 45 minutes. There was a little insurance on the building and Zaro lost $3,200 in cash in his bedroom. Within 48 hours Zaro was fighting back. He put aside his regret, hired bulldozers and began to excavate a portion of some swamp property he had purchased "in" Richardson Bay a year earlier just off what is now Highway 101's Alto strip.

"THEY SAID I was crazy, but within a year we had one of California's best nightclub restaurants." It was called Zaro's. That year Ann Baxter and the late John Hodiak celebrated their honeymoon dinner there. Zaro ran his establishment for two more years and then leased it to Enricho Pastori until December, 1950, when Zaro leased it to Angelo Sabella, uncle of Lucien Sabella of the Fisherman's Wharf Sabella's.

In 1947 Zaro could see how even more valuable this "swamp land" might be, and he bought 31.9 more acres from the Coleman estate adjacent to the land upon which his restaurant stood. All of the latter property was under water except a 118-by-four-foot section near the highway. Today, after pouring "thousands of dollars" to develop and bring it above the water, Zaro has level dry property surrounding a 16 acre lagoon which he also owns. It faces the Bay and Mount Tamalpais.

He is now negotiating with parties to build waterfront apartments with dock landings for some 400 boats. It will be a several-million-dollar project, he said. It will surround the restaurant which will again be called Zaro's when Sabella's lease has expired this May.

Zaro's great desire is to see the development of all of Richardson Bay waterfront. "My father used to say the Bay was 'Paradise.' I agree, and know that Los Angeles would give her right arm for it—and what are we in the North doing with this bay—nothing?.

"A MAN has got to make something. Why hibernate? God put us on this earth to do things, to develop for future generations, and make this earth a better place for us and others to live."

FOUNDERS OF MARIN'S FIRST PAPER — Ai Barney (left) pioneer, '49er, Marin County official, businessman, founded the Marin County Journal with his son, Jerome, (right) in 1861 on the eve of the outbreak of the Civil War. Jerome followed his father to California, arriving in 1853. As a boy he had apprenticed as a printer in Frederick, Md., and later worked on newspapers in Washington, D. C., and Baltimore. The Journal adopted a strong Union political policy and the editorial page lashed out against the separation of the States during the course of the war. The Barneys' sold the Journal to Simon Fitch Barstow in 1872. Ai Barney's unusual first name has a biblical origin. (Marin County Historical Society)

JOURNAL FIRST PUBLISHED MARCH 23, 1861

Newspaper For People Of Marin

On March 23, 1861, the Marin County Journal, first newspaper published in Marin, hit the streets for the first time with the above dedication heading the editorial.

Run off by hand, page at a time, on a Washington press, the weekly was distributed to anxious subscribers over a table in the dining room of the old San Rafael Hotel. The paper on which it was printed was manufactured at Taylor's paper mill at Olema.

The Journal's founders visualized Marin's news coverage on a county-wide basis rather than town by town. They had perception in recognizing the need for a newspaper in the frontier county that was growing, filling out and quickly finding a place in the sun.

MEN OF COMMERCE needed the newspaper to advertise and were eager to buy space selling for "1 square of 12 lines or less $2.00 for the first insertion, and $1.00 each insertion thereafter."

The people of Marin, the dons, American ranchers, storekeepers, woodchoppers, brickmakers, boatmen were hungry for news and quickly gobbled up the four page, five column weekly. It sold to subscribers for $5.00 a year; $3.00, six months; or $1.50, three months. (Roughly 10 cents a copy.)

The Journal was dedicated by its founders to honest, accurate outspoken journalism. It was destined to meet many journalistic rivals, outlive many publishers, and almost 80 years later be merged with one of its biggest journalistic sparring partners, The San Rafael Independent.

It recorded a county's growth during two centuries. It survived in a journalistic battlefield that saw many go under, and today stands on the threshhold of its second century facing the future with the same purpose the founders dedicated the Marin County Journal to 100 years ago:

"THE JOURNAL will be independent of clique, party or sect, doing justice to all, and favor to none. Its chief aim will be to encourage the development of the resources of the county . . . We shall contribute our advice and support to every laudable undertaking or measure that may be calculated to advance the prosperity of the community; and unhesitatingly oppose every scheme or project that we deam calculated to retard the progress of the county and the prosperity of its inhabitants . . . we hope to obtain a generous support in our endeavors, from what we shall perform rather than from what we promise."

The year 1861 was a big one. The township of Nicasio was formed along with the other new townships spreading across Marin; a man called Minturn started a steamboat service running between Point San Quentin and San Francisco and the first public school was started in San Rafael at the corner of Fourth and E Streets.

Lord Charles Snowden Fairfax bought 45 acres of land west of San Rafael of what had been a portion of the old Rancho Canada de Herrera belonging to Don Domingo Sais; the ruins of the Old Mission were leveled by a carpenter who bought it for its lumber; the County's first game laws were put into effect; a great fire swept up the slope of Mt. Tamalpais and a shot fired at Fort Sumter in the Charleston harbor April 12 plunged the United States into civil war.

News was breaking out like a measle rash everywhere; the founders of the Marin County Journal could not have picked a better time to start setting their 150 pounds of type. News was their business and they knew it.

EARLY HOME OF JOURNAL—The Journal offices were located at many San Rafael sites during its early history. During the 1870s and early 80s it was printed in the Odd Fellows Building on the corner of Fourth and D Streets. The building was burned in the San Rafael fire of 1957. JOURNAL'S EARLY HOME—Editions of the Journal were published in this building on Fourth Street between B and C in San Rafael. The building, originally a hotel, is now occupied by an apartment house on the upper floors and a row of shops at street level. Moore's is located in the old hotel dining room where copies of the Journal were sold across a table in the 1860s. (Independent-Journal photo)

First Publisher's Life Filled With Service To Country, Fellowmen

A father and son founded Marin's first newspaper.

Ai Barney, the father, was 45 when he arrived at Reed's Rancho in November, 1849. He was a well-spoken, well-educated Easterner who had arrived in San Francisco two months earlier as the vice president of the Baltimore and Frederick Trading and Mining Co. out of Maryland.

Thirty men had each invested $1,000 in the company, purchased clothing and machinery shipped it around the horn to San Francisco and a few months later in April boarded the schooner, Creole, headed for the Isthmus of Panama. There the men chartered the brig Corbiene and arrived in San Francisco Sept. 10.

San Francisco was a grim patchwork of shabby tents, clapboard buildings and gawdy gambling halls. Red-shirted Americans headed for the mines, velvet-dressed dons sitting silver mounted saddles, silk-robed wanderers from ports of call in the Far East mingled in the makeshift streets. The gambling halls overspilled their miner customers into the muddy streets.

THE GOLD FEVER burned in all men's eyes, contagious, consuming.

Barney and his companions pitched camp at Dupont and Washington Streets, sent for their supplies and almost immediately started searching for timberland to set up a sawmill. These were businessmen, and they realized that a boom town needed lumber.

They found their timber. It was on the Reed Rancho at Corte Madera del Presidio. They renovated the mill Reed had originally set up in his forest, installed a gang of 15 upright saws and went into business. Five months later they were out of business selling their equipment to B. R. Buckelew.

Barney headed for the Stockton area where he mined for six months before returning to San Francisco in September. He headed north, across the Golden Gate, into Marin and settled in San Rafael in the beginning of 1850.

FOUR MONTHS after Dr. Shorb was elected County Judge he resigned and the governor appointed the clear-thinking Barney to succeed him. Barney served in that capacity for seven years winning a reputation of an "impartial judge" before resigning to open a butcher shop in 1858 on the east side of C Street between Third and Fourth Streets. His partner in this venture was another easterner, Elisha DuBois.

By the time Barney reached the Pacific Coast his life had already been crammed with public service.

He was justice of the peace in Frederick City, Md., for 10 years from 1832 to 1842 and was elected county surveyor in 1844, a position he resigned to head west. Barney was born in Genoa, N.Y., and moved to Niagara County with his parents as a small boy. He had mastered Greek and Latin as a young man, was a school master in Niagara County at 19, and had studied medicine before he was 28.

His eyes were a clear penetrating blue. He had a taste for adventure and sound judgment. After a few years in the meat business the elder Barney was ready to join his ambitious son in a new venture.

ON TAP IS a week in which television viewing is going to be at an exceptionally high level. In fact the programming promises to be so good on several nights that it is going to be difficult to choose your channel.

For instance, the dilemma we'll face on Monday night. At 9 o'clock the most talented of today's actresses, Ingrid Bergman, will appear on KPIX in a 90-minute dramatic special entitled "Twenty-Four Hours in a Woman's Life." And a half hour later KRON will be carrying a one-hour musicfest with the incomparable Bing Crosby as host and the likes of Maurice Chevalier and Carol Lawrence as his guests. And before either of those shows has ended, starting at 10:30, KQED and KRON will air an address by Secretary of State Dean Rusk from the University of California Charter Day exercises.

Miss Bergman's leading man will be Rip Torn. And her executive producer is her husband, Lars Schmidt, marking the first time the two have worked professionally together. The story deals with romance between an English widow and a young American in Monte Carlo. And the supporting cast, largely British, is excellent.

As for der Bingle, he is scheduled to team up with Chevalier in such numbers as "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," "Pigalle" and "I'm Glad I'm Not Young Anymore." The Groaner will solo in the likes of "Without a Song" and "The Second Time Around," and he'll be joined by Miss Lawrence in "Flattery."

Tuesday's another night in which you'll face some hard choices in dialing the TV set. Starting at 8:30 and continuing until exhaustion sets in, a panel of aviation experts presided over by David Susskind will discuss air traffic safety problems on KQED's "Open End" show. While they are still at it, at 9 o'clock, KTVU will take the wraps off a new show of which it is very proud, "Great Music From Chicago." The premiere will feature the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conducting, in a concert that will include works by Tschaikovsky, Sibelius, Rossini, Ibert, Bernstein and Ginastera.

And still that same evening, at 9:30, KPIX will be offering a 90-minute original play by Horton Foote, entitled "The Night of the Storm," with a stellar cast that includes Julie Harris, Jo Van Fleet, E. G. Marshall and Mildred Dunnock. It's a story about depression and its effects upon a family in a small Texas town.

Winding up the big Tuesday lineup of specials will be a documentary in which David Brinkley, just about the hottest thing on television these days, will conduct you on a tour of Hong Kong. It will be seen on KRON starting at 10 p.m. Brinkley promises "an interesting insight into the city where East meets West."

Did some one say that there's never anything good on television?

AS FOR THE rest of the week—

Tonight: Saturday is pretty firmly established as the dullest night of the week on TV. An exception is the fine "The Nation's Future" series, seen at 9:30 on KRON. This evening it will explore an especially hot and timely issue: "Should Public Funds Be Used for Public and Religious Schools Alike?" The debaters will be Jesuit Father Neil G. McCluskey and Dr. Leo Pfeffer of the American Jewish Congress. Or, if you didn't see it Wednesday night, you can tune in on KTVU at 9 o'clock for "The Play of the Week." It's the Paul Osborne comedy, "Morning's At Seven," with Dorothy Gish, Ann Harding and Chester Morris.

Sunday: The "Sports Spectacular" on KPIX at 2:30 p.m. will take you to an Illinois shooting preserve and to a Newfoundland fishermen's paradise. Young performers will be spotlighted as Leonard Bernstein and his New York Philharmonic present another of their Sunday afternoon concerts at 4 p.m. on KPIX. "The Twentieth Century," also on KPIX and seen at 6:30, will tell the story of Minuteman, the intercontinental ballistic missile. Ed Sullivan will salute the composing team of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe on his show at 8 p.m. on Channel 5 with Richard Burton, Julie Andrews and Robert Goulet, all closely identified with Lerner and Loewe musicals, among those present. And the "Chevy Show" at 9 on KRON will see Art Linkletter trying to prove that "Kids Are Funny" with the help of Vic Damone, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyatt and others.

On Wednesday, Shirley Booth will make one of her too infrequent TV appearances in N. Richard Nash's bittersweet drama, "Welcome Home," on the "U.S. Steel Hour" at 10 p.m. on KPIX. KTVU's "Play of the Week" that evening at 8 will be a Rosemary Casey comedy, "The Velvet Glove," with Helen Hayes starring.

Thursday at 7:30 on KRON the NBC true story of Little League baseball and what it did for the kids of Monterrey, Mexico, will be given a repeat showing. The network says that "How Tall Is A Giant?" has been re-edited. Ernie Ford will again narrate. At 10 that evening, on KPIX, Henry Cabot Lodge and Britain's Lord Robert Boothby will debate: "Should Red China Be Admitted to the U.N. Now?" And at 10:30 on KGO, a 1960 pleaser, "Silents Please," will return with Douglas Fairbanks swashbuckling through "Black Pirates" and with other films of pre-talkie vintage scheduled to follow weekly.

On Friday, KQED will show for the fourth and final time its British production of Oliver Goldsmith's comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer."

"ROMPER ROOM," the delightful KGO children's program presided over by Marinite Nancy Besst, will mark its third birthday next Friday, and will celebrate the occasion with a party on the air the following Monday, March 27.

TOWN AND COUNTRY.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Father Lootens will hold divine service in the Catholic Church, San Rafael, on Sunday, September 3d, at 11 o'clock, A. M.

APOSTATES.—It is rumored on the streets that the "sore heads," who are not satisfied with the nominations made on the 7th inst., have in contemplation, the selection of an independent ticket. That's all right—having been fairly beaten, they now desire to be represented by such men as they can control; and after having gone through the Primaries with a pledge to support the nominees of the Convention, they "skin it all back," and attempt to defeat the regular ticket. We were informed on Tuesday last that an attempt would be made to get Mr. McCausland, (the Union nominee), on the "Bolters" ticket for the position of Treasurer, so as to secure the Tomales vote. But we think that gentlemen has too much honor to lend himself to so dirty and nefarious a transaction, especially after his endorsement of the resolution in Convention pledging himself to support and vote the regular ticket. An affiliation with Copperheads is desired so as to secure the loaves and fishes, but our opinion of the Democracy is, that the leading men of that party will not touch the "Bolters" with a "forty-foot pole." Ha! the hounds! how they would like to cruise. Their recent strength exhibited in Convention is a fair criterion of their popularity. Come on with your mongrel ticket, and have it lain in the shade. The 6th of September won't leave a grease spot of it.

A TENNESSEAN lodger in Virginia City got up in the night, took the candle and began to execute vengeance on bedbugs crawling on the wall. The lining took fire and burned the house, the man escaping in his shirt only. But he cleaned out the bedbugs.

NO GO!—We understand a mongrel ticket will be presented to the people shortly, and that the Democratic strength will be relied upon in the support of it. They may catch the "sympathizers," but we doubt it. Oh! the "pures and the best!" What will the dirty hounds be after next? Offals or ruin!"

THERE is a Doctor Amen at Fort Klamath. Awfully suggestive name for a doctor.

THE Calaveras county seat is still in the Courts—San Andreas and Mokelumne Hill being at law. The former has asked a change of venue from Sacramento to San Francisco.

QUERY.—Wonder how the "Mongrel ticket" will be on the "oath" question.

THE French remedy for staring in the street is good. If you regard a gentleman longer or more closely than politeness warrants, he takes off his hat to you.

THERE is a two year old baby weighing two hundred pounds, in Manchester, Vermont, and the parents are going to make a show of the gigantic brat.

A YOUNG man who seduced and afterward married the wife of a neighbor, at Washoe City, was recently "chivareed" and driven out of town, together with his frail and guilty baggage.

THE Secretary of the Treasury has produced reliable estimates of the quantity of cotton west of the Mississippi. The figures submitted to him foot up about 1,000,000 bales.

THE Post Office Department is now self-supporting. Its profits for the last six months of 1864, were $732, 320, and for the first six months of this year will be much larger.

THE consumption of snails has become so great in Paris, that it is said that a special market is to be opened for them.

THE wicked man, not only disguises his crimes or intentions from others, but through excess of self-love, he becomes his own flatterer, calls his vices by soft names, or, mistakes them for virtues; and deems his conduct justifiable, perhaps meritorious, when in fact, it is a hateful compound of impiety, injustice and malevolence, and will very soon be proved to be so.—Scott.

That Pledge.

IN the recent County Convention each candidate for nomination signed a resolution pledging himself to vote for and support the nominees of the ticket; yet, notwithstanding that fact, we understand it is the intention of some of the hounds to attempt to induce Mr. John McCausland to prove recreant to his word, and ignore his claim as a man of honor, by resigning his nomination as candidate for Clerk on accepting that of Treasurer on the "mongrel ticket." Such an insulting proposition should, and will be treated with scorn by Mr. McCausland.—What do the hounds care about their word as long as they can feather their nests? Bah! In favor of the "oath" system, and yet want a man to break his word!

SARATOGA LIFE.—A Saratoga letter says:

"The most distinguished man at the springs is Mr. John Morrisey, the great stock operator and financier, and who is also known as having a taste for the turf. He is the proprietor of two elegantly furnished gambling houses situated near the site of the old United States Hotel. These establishments are conducted on a different principle from the Athenæum or Union clubs of New York. They amount to banking institutions or places for the exchange of finance. The bank opens in the evening and is ready to accommodate visitors until a late hour of the morning. Many thought fortunes have been very easily made at the bank by parties who claimed to have invested in oil. Indeed, it it has come to be pretty well understood in some circles that this is the way in which certain persons have struck their oleaginous substance. All officers are particularly fond of hunting the stranger, and when found, attempting to extract his claws. If the animal is docile and winning, his new acquaintances may experience his generosity and go from his presence richer than when they entered it. But the beast generally puts the boot on the other leg—which seldom seems to fit so well. It is well known here that Mr. Morrisey has become quite a power in the stock board, the statement being that he has acquired a million dollars by operating in Central during the last few months. He may be seen daily at the telegraph office in Congress Hall, during the hours when the New York stock board is in session, in electric communication with his broker on the subject that is thought chiefly to interest him.

"On the other hand, his acquaintances seem to be counted by many financial lights of the metropolis, and by young men who want to 'know the ropes.' I fear that Saratoga will outstrip Baden Baden in some of its peculiarities. Ten thousand dollar ventures on the turn of a card, or the stoppage of a little ivory ball, are not at all uncommon in this section. The successes of these luxurious are fumbled upon quite unawares among the guests at the hotels. Generally, they are the most attractive young men in town—wearing gorgeous raiment and costly jewelry, and using stylish turnouts. It is said that they take orders from lady acquaintances and deduct a commission for acting as brokers between the bank and the fair sex. Perhaps, in time, that ceremonious agony and formal way of toying with the tiger may be superseded by the establishment of a well-kept bank for female gamesters. To many, the bank, and not the waters, is the real attraction of Saratoga."

RESULTS IN THE LAST DITCH.—All the rebel leaders are subdued. There is not a voice or hand raised against the Government. Howell Cobb counsels obedience to the Federal authority, and says that slavery is dead. Breckinridge advises his friends who are in Cuba to come home and take the oath of allegiance. Alex Stephens, during his stay in Fort Warren, has grown excessively loyal. James D. Orr has written a letter from Andersonville, South Carolina, denouncing the idea that Southern men can ever go so far as to unite with the Imperialists in Mexico, in revenge upon our Government. Pryor has ceased hoisting treason, and hung up a law shingle at Richmond; Mallory sends an epistle from prison, declaring his entire conversion. All the rebel Governors save Harris, of Tennessee, are paroled or in confinement. All the rebel Major Generals are on parole. Everywhere power has returned to rightful hands.

The traitor, Albert Pike, has written a letter to the New York Express explaining his connection with the Indian troops in the employ of the late Confederate Government, stating that they were raised by him to do duty within their own territory only, that 700 of them only were brought into the field in Arkansas at the command of the rebel General Van Dorn; that only one act of scalping by Indians had been brought to the attention of Pike; that this barbarity and that and that of shooting down wounded men were condemned by him; that his humanity toward Northern men got him into trouble with his rebel associates, and that, his life being at stake, he desires a little justice done him in opposition to reports of his connivance with the perpetrators of reported atrocities at the battle of Pea Ridge.

EMIGRATION.—The Territorial Enterprise says that the emigration during the past season from the Atlantic States to the States and Territories around and west of the Rocky Mountains, has been immense—larger than has been known for many years. A record of the passing wagons and live-stock is kept at Fort Laramie. From a dispatch from that post, dated July 8th, the Enterprise learns that for the sixteen days ending June 30th, 2,227 wagons, with 18,000 head of stock, passed that point, westward bound, and that about as many wagons, with an equal amount of stock, passed from the 1st to the 14th of June. During the month of May, over 5,000 wagons and 40,000 head of stock passed the same point.

CLEAR AND FORCIBLE.—The matter of "arbitrary arrests" and kindred questions, is admirably stated by Mr. Welsh, of Belmont County, Ohio, in a speech delivered in the Ohio Senate, not long since. He said:

"While war is raging, many of the rights held sacred by the Constitution, rights which cannot be violated by any acts of Congress, may and must be suspended and held in abeyance. If this were not so, the Government might itself be destroyed; the Army and Navy might be sacrificed; and one part of the Constitution would nullify the rest.

"If freedom of speech cannot be suppressed, spies cannot be caught imprisoned and hung.

"If freedom of the press cannot be interfered with, all our military plans may be betrayed to the enemy.

"If no man can be deprived of life without a trial by jury, a soldier cannot slay the enemy in battle.

"If enemy's property cannot be taken without 'due process of law,' how can the soldier disarm the foe and seize his weapons?

"If no person can be arrested, sentenced and shot, without trial by jury, in the county or State where his crime is alleged to have been committed, how can a deserter be shot, or a spy hung, or an enemy taken prisoner?"

AGGREGATE LABOR OF MANKIND.—Along with the compassion that is excited by listening to a tale of want, there is apt to arise, at that time, a feeling of astonishment that such a thing should be in a land like this. Perhaps, however, the true wonder is that want is not universal. One-half of those who survive the period of childhood are women who do not, as a general thing, contribute directly to the production of wealth. Of the men, many are sick, many are old, many are idle, many are wasteful, many are parasites. Those who do not work, and live to the age of three-score years years and ten, spend one-third of their lives in bed, one-twentieth at the table, one-sixth in recreation. Much of the time is wasted in mistakes, much of what they succeed in producing is swept away by fire and flood. During half of the year nature sleeps. One harvest in five proves a failure. Only a fraction of the earth's surface is capable of cultivation. A large part of the general labor is absorbed in the production of luxuries, in repairing the damages of war, in preparing for future conflicts, in the transportation of produce, and in lawyers. Probably not more than one-tenth of the whole amount of human force is expended in earning the world's daily bread. The standing marvel, therefore, of society is, not that any should suffer want, but that there should be any who do not.

AFTER THE SHENANDOAH.—The United States steamer Suwanee came down from Mare Island yesterday, where she has been for the several days since her arrival, undergoing some slight repairs, and about 10 o'clock sailed out of the harbor, firing a salute as she passed out on a cruise in search of the Shenandoah. The Suwanee is of 1130 tons register and carries ten guns and 207 men. She is a staunch vessel, and if she meets the pirate will doubtless put an end to her thieving career as speedily as did the Kearsarge to the Alabama. She is commanded by Commander Paul Shirley. Success to her.—Alta, 21st.

DISEASES AND VICE.—Carlyle says: Nine tenths of the maladies and vices of manhood proceed from idleness; with men of quick minds, to whom it is especially pernicious, this habit is commonly the fruit of many disappointments and schemes oft baffled; and men fail in their schemes not so much for the want of strength, as from the ill direction of it. The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers upon a single object, can accomplish something: the strongest, by dispersing his over many, may fail to accomplish anything.

METAMORPHOSIS IN PLANTS.—Whether there is or not a state of progression from the vegetable to the animal kingdom, we have before us what demonstrates that retrogressive metamorphosis is a fact in the economy of Nature. We look with wonder on the fungi which present a puzzle even to naturalists in determining where the vegetable kingdom ends and the animal commences. We admire and wonder at the petrifaction, in which the animal tissues and fluids have congealed into a solid stone, but few are prepared to believe that a living animal or insect is ever turned into a growing vegetable. The specimen before us was brought from Auckland, in the island of New Zealand. The root of the Metrosideros Robusta, a climbing vine found in New Zealand, is simply a large worm about four inches in length, evidently in its state of animal existence the counterpart of the large green tobacco worm. The larva are deposited by the mother worm in the stock of a certain plant, on which it subsists, and here, safe from the incursions of predaceous entomologia, they undergo the process of incubation. The worm attains its full size about the time the plant goes to seed. Then it accomplishes the great end of its life, an office the philosophy of which remains in the unrevealed arcana of Nature. By some impulse, whether instinct, or a freak of appetite, or some pyschological agency that forces it along independent of its own volition, it climes to the seed, and swallowing a single grain, it descends and burrows in the ground. Here it remains and dies, while the seed it has taken into its body sends forth a sprout from the head of the worm, and becomes a vine, to be the scene of another like phenomenon. Meanwhile, the worm, preserving its shape entire in all the details of its external anatomy, turns into a woody substance, presenting a general appearance similar to the ginseng root. At first glance the specimen might be taken for a mere vegetable eutomoid, but closer inspection presents a clear case of metamorphosis from an animal to a vegetable substance.—Call.

Founder Outspoken, Generous

Jerome Barney Learned To Set Type Early

One of Ai Barney's nine children, Jerome, followed his father to San Rafael in 1853. He was 19.

Jerome had been born in Frederick, Md., where he learned to set type as a boy.

He was apprenticed on newspapers in Washington, D. C. and Baltimore and as soon as he had the fare headed West to join his father.

Jerome was a small, short man who soon gained a reputation for his persistence, outspoken tongue and generosity. His father gave him a job in the meat business, but the butcher counter wasn't for young Jerome.

HE ITCHED TO get back to printing, and finally in 1861 persuaded his father to join him as a silent partner in the publication of the county's first newspaper.

The Barneys and a young apprentice whom Jerome fed, clothed and housed in return for his work, boarded in a small, yellow rooming house on the east side of the hill belonging to a southern woman by the name of Mrs. Sheppard.

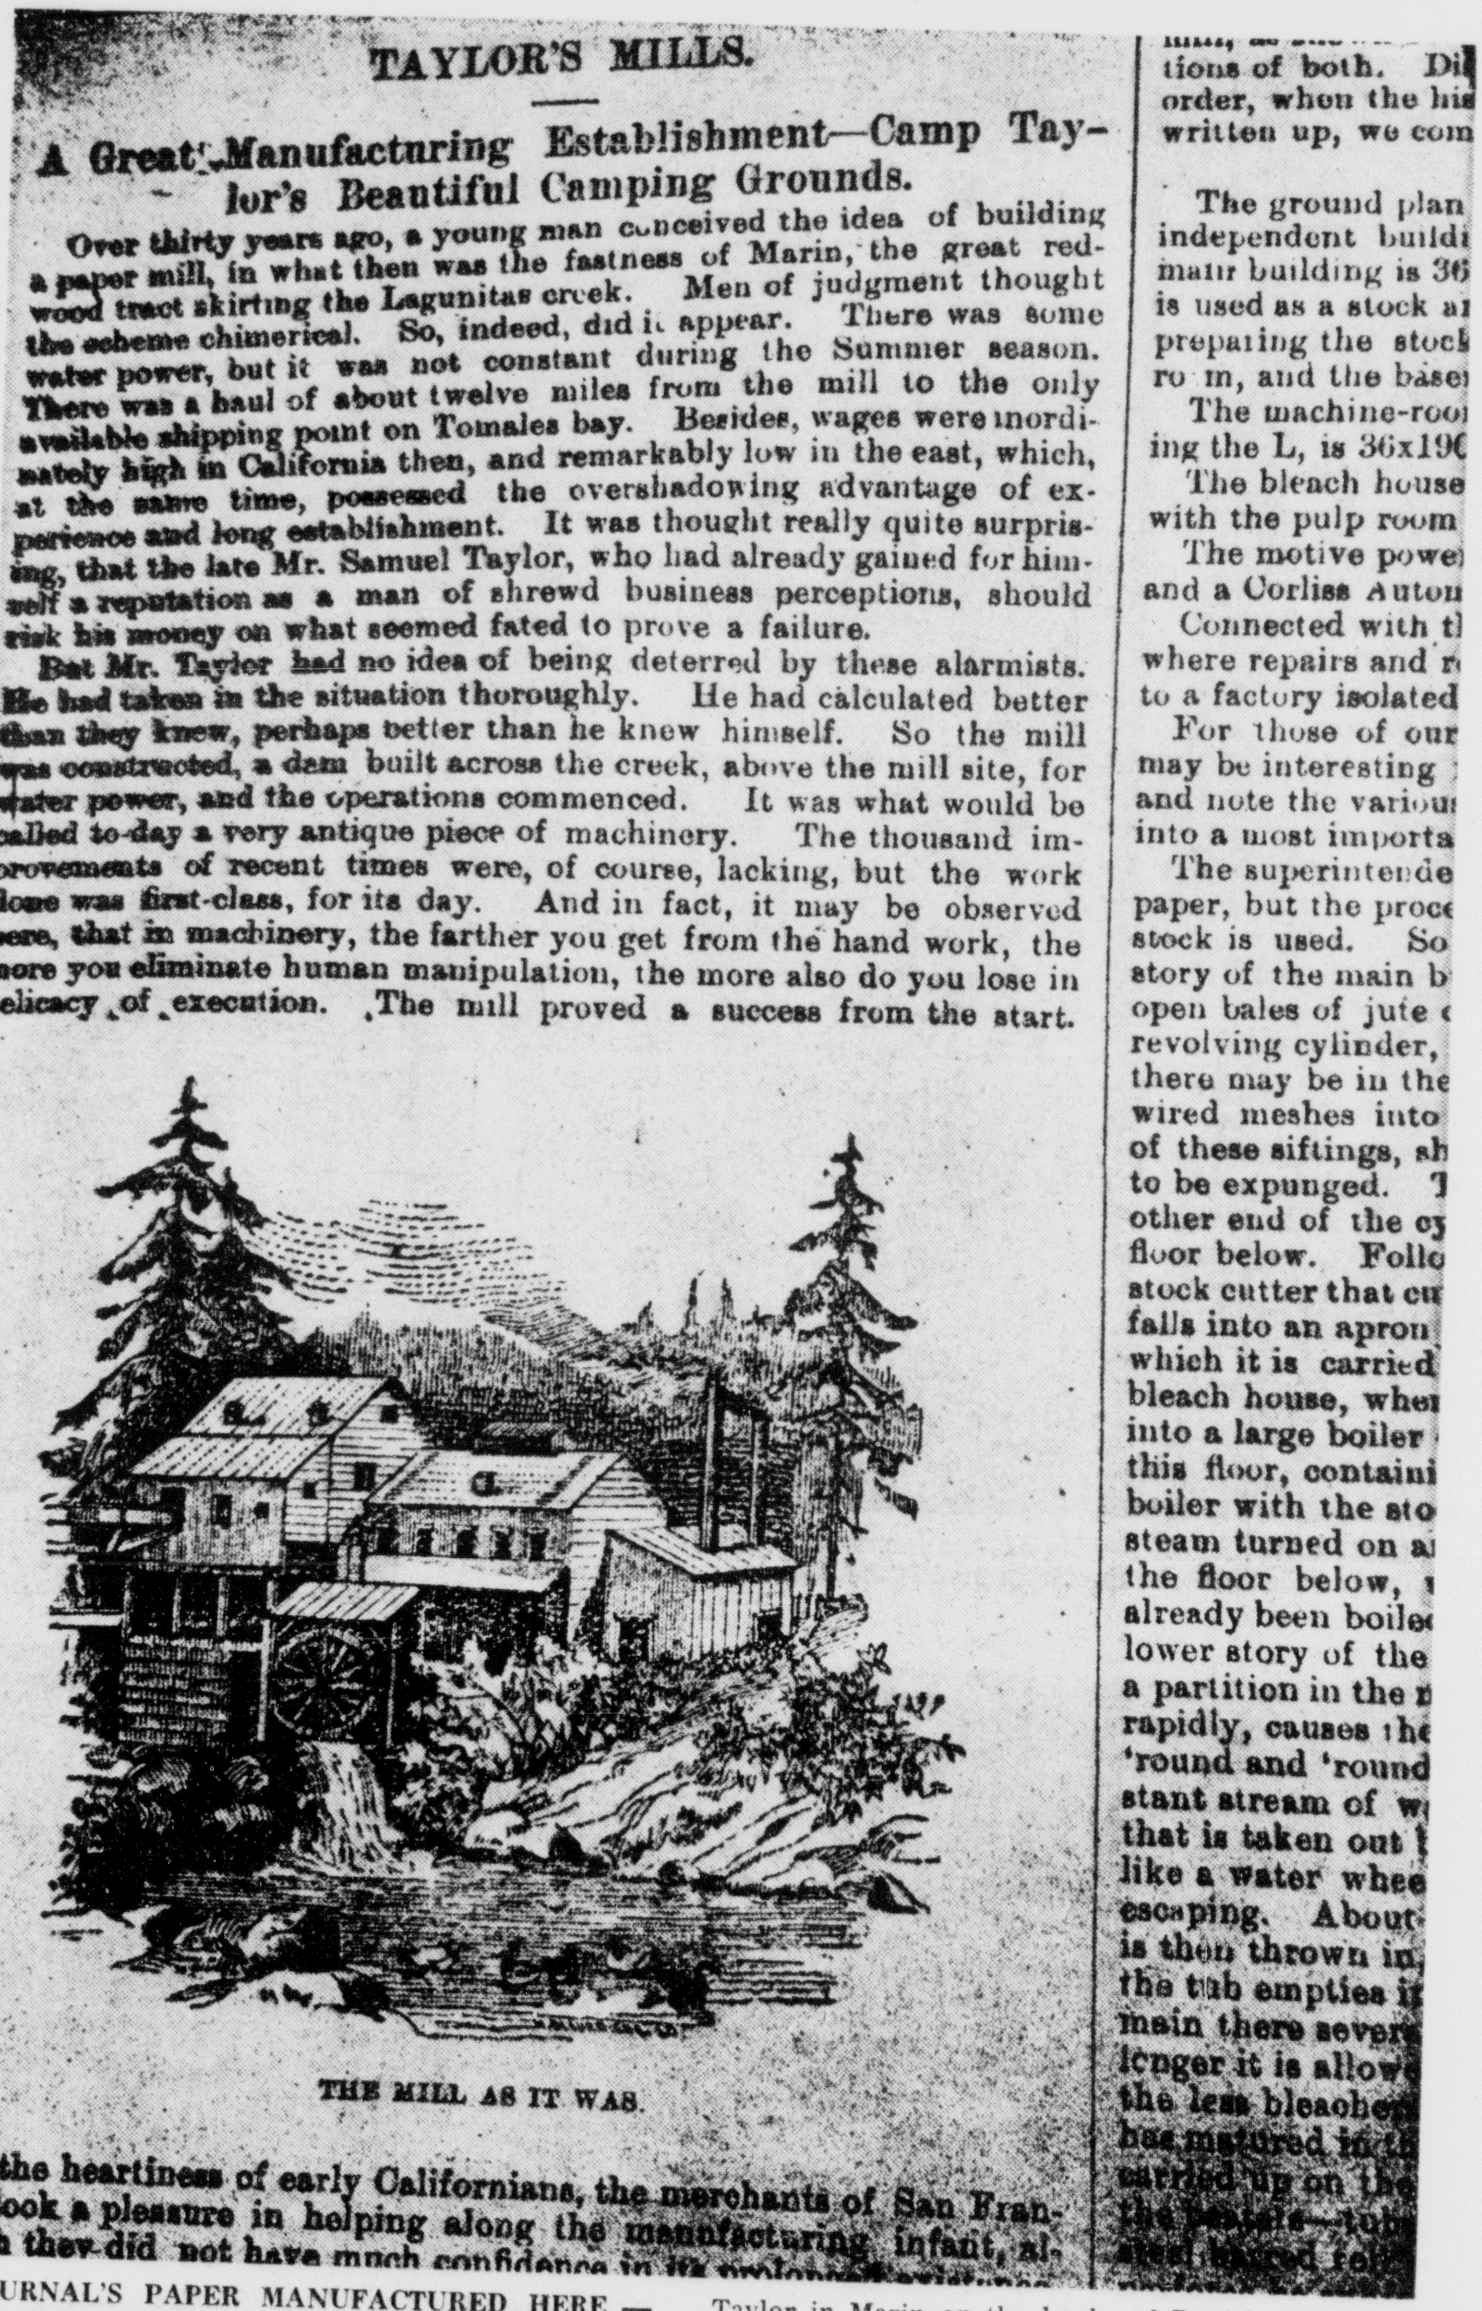
Besides the elder Barney's butcher shop there was in San Rafael in the winter of 1861 a blacksmith shop, two livery stables, two saloons, two hotels and a dozen or so private homes.

The Barneys and their young helper soon moved their printing office to a newly constructed building adjoining the Marin Hotel on Fourth Street between B and C Streets. Here on the upper floor of the building the three men cooked, ate, slept and printed the Journal for many years.

The paper caught on and began to grow. At first the Pony Express news was published in both English and Spanish, but gradually the Spanish faded away.

FOR THEIR EIGHTH anniversary in 1869, the Barneys enlarged the five column spread of the Journal to six full columns and two years later on April 3, 1871, brought the number of columns up to seven in honor of the Journal's 10th anniversary. The newspaper was now safely housed in its own building on Fourth Street, the pages were crammed with advertising and then an editorial printed Oct. 5, 1872 announced that the Journal had been sold.

Jerome Barney planned on taking a vacation and later entering the local political arena. But in less than four years the young man who had nurtured the dream of a Marin County newspaper, and made this dream a reality, was dead at the age of 42.



TAYLOR'S MILLS.

Over thirty years ago, a young man conceived the idea of building a paper mill, in what then was the fastness of Marin, the great redwood tract skirting the Lagunitas creek. Men of judgment thought the scheme chimerical. So, indeed, did it appear. There was some water power, but it was not constant during the Summer season. There was a haul of about twelve miles from the mill to the only available shipping point on Tomales bay. Besides, wages were inordinately high in California then, and remarkably low in the east, which, at the same time, possessed the overshadowing advantage of experience and long establishment. It was thought really quite surprising, that the late Mr. Samuel Taylor, who had already gained for himself a reputation as a man of shrewd business perceptions, should risk his money on what seemed fated to prove a failure.

But Mr. Taylor had no idea of being deterred by these alarmists. He had taken in the situation thoroughly. He had calculated better than they knew, perhaps better than he knew himself. So the mill was constructed, a dam built across the creek, above the mill site, for water power, and the operations commenced. It was what would be called to-day a very antique piece of machinery. The thousand improvements of recent times were, of course, lacking, but the work done was first-class, for its day. And in fact, it may be observed here, that in machinery, the farther you get from the hand work, the more you eliminate human manipulation, the more also do you lose in delicacy of execution. The mill proved a success from the start.

JOURNAL'S PAPER MANUFACTURED HERE — The paper for many early California newspapers including the Marin County Journal was manufactured at the paper mill founded by Samuel Penfield Taylor in Marin on the banks of Daniels Creek in 1856. (The Creek later took the name Paper Mill Creek.) Chinese in San Francisco gathered rags to make the paper. (First published Marin County Journal 1889.)

Barstow Bought Journal, New Era Started

When Simon Fitch Barstow bought the Journal from its founders in the early 1870s the pulse of the county had begun to quicken.

The dairy industry was booming, millionaires were migrating to Marin and the first railroad ties were being strung across the county.

But one facet of the paper remained what it had been from the beginning: strongly Union. After the outbreak of the Civil War the Journal went to the side of Lincoln and the Union.

MANY SOUTHERNERS had settled in the area, and although California officially was northern there were many Confederate sympathizers living in the Bay Area and Marin.

After the close of the war, the Journal went on supporting the Union political ticket (later the Republican party) and Barstow on taking over the publisher's seat in 1870 promised his readers he would boost Union candidate Ulysses S. Grant for president.

Barstow was a hardened, experienced newsman who learned the business in the roughest, rawest days California journalists ever knew; when editors and reporters had to be as ready with their fists or handy with a gun as they were with a piece of type.

He arrived in San Francisco in 1854 when he was 22 years. Barstow was born in Hartford, Conn., learned the hardware business in an uncle's store, and decided to become an apprentice printer. His first job in his chosen profession was on the Chautaugua County Journal in New York.

WHEN HE LANDED in San Francisco, Barstow was hired by James King of William to work on his newly founded Evening Bulletin. King of William had organized his paper as crusade against the underworld's control of city politics. He was gunned down and killed by one of the men he was attacking.

The slayer was tried and hung by the vigilantes led by William Tell Coleman who later became a leading developer of San Rafael.

In 1857 Barstow landed a job with the California Alta where he stayed for the next 11 years. In 1871, he moved to Tulare County where he worked on the Visalia Delta for one year before buying the Marin County Journal from the Barneys.

When Barstow became editor and publisher of the Journal, the county was facing a turn in the road, and Marin's first newspaper was about to meet competition for the first time.
